NIGHT CONFERENCE ON CURRENCY BILL

Republican Leaders Realize Necessity of Financial Legislation to Save Fall Elections.

WORKING FOR HARMONY

Chairman Bartholdt Threatens to Hold Up Public Buildings Measure Until Currency Law Is Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Congress will not adjourn until some currency legislation has been enacted, or at least until another effort to obtain it has been proved futile. The three factions of the Republicans, represented by Roosevelt, Aldrich, and Cannon, are for once working together, and all pushing as hard as they can for some kind of currency bill at this session. Aldrich has been with the President on other matters this year, but this is the first time that the Speaker has joined forces with the White House on an important item of the Administration programme.

Prompt action was taken in the endeavor to whip into shape a measure that would be acceptable to all factions. In the apartments of Senator Aldrich a meeting was held to-night which included all the Republican members of the conference committee, with the single exception of Representative Burton. The discussion lasted until nearly midnight.

At 10 o'clock Senator Aldrich announced that nothing definite had been reached with reference to a bill, but that it was hoped to outline legislation that would be acceptable to both the House and the Senate.

The Senate conferees are not in position to throw out the Vreeland bill conditions entirely. The absence of Burton, it is intimated, was not accidental. Burton has been an insurgent from the start, and one of the most unyielding kind until recently, when he has made some concessions.

It was the belief of the conferees that more progress could be made if they could avoid controversy to-night and attempt earnestly to find some common ground for agreement. Hence Burton, the disturbing element, was eliminated.

Republicans Convinced.

Politics has brought the Republican leaders of the Senate and House together. They are convinced at last that President Roosevelt knew what he was talking about last Fall when he told them they must pass a currency bill at this session. They realize now that a dangerous situation confronts them if there should be no currency legislation. A return of the money flurry next Fall would inevitably hit the Republicans a savage blow. The leaders believe that almost any sort of a bid which could be used to make the country believe that a stringency was impossible, would do the work, whether it had to be invoked or not.

The President has been calling Senators and Representatives to see him in unusual numbers and urging upon them the necessity of doing something to make certain that there shall be no disastrous repetition of the panic next Fall. In the Senate, Aldrich, Allison, and Hale have been working together to devise a form of compromise which could make it appear to the House that it had not surrendered, and which could also be put through the Senate.

The insurgents are helped by the attitude of the Senate Democrats in insisting on the Aldrich bill or nothing. There is a larger and more determined opposition in the House to that bill than to any other currency proposition that has been submitted. But there were indications to-day that Burton and Weeks, the two strongest leaders of the insurgents, were disposed to make some concessions. From the opening of the session the Speaker has been committed to the Aldrich bill. There had been agreement between them even before the bill was drawn.

Previous Conference.

The meeting to-night followed a conference between the Speaker, Mr. Vreeland, and Senators Aldrich and Hale. The two Senators were summoned by the Speaker and were closeted with him for some time. When they left they declined to make any statement. The Speaker's secretary was equally uncommunicative, but he cautioned the correspondents against declaring that there was any yielding on either side. This is regarded as significant, as indicating the strained condition of affairs.

Early in to-day's session the Speaker permitted the information to become general that adjournment before Saturday was impossible, and that it might be even ten days or more away. Following close on the heels of this came the refusal of Bartholdt, Chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings, to report the appropriations for public buildings until currency legislation had gone through. Just previous to his announcement Bartholdt had been closeted with the Speaker.

Currency on State and City Bonds.

The particular form in which Mr. Bartholdt believes the Vreeland bill could pass both houses is practically the Vreeland bill with the single amendment taken from the Aldrich measure allowing banks not in associations to take out an added currency on State and municipal bonds. This amendment, he said, might be allowed to take care of an added issue of $2,500,000, while the unmodified Vreeland provision could control the issue of the remaining $5,000,000.

Bartholdt spoke daringly of his determination to stand out against all persuasion and intimidation.

"If the Speaker himself," he said, "should go down to me on his knees, I should not listen to him. Five hundred men have been dictating to me about this bill for the past three months. The bill is now mine, and I mean to dictate to the five hundred about currency."

Mr. Vreeland had little to say, but he admitted things were looking brighter. Some progress, he said, had been made looking to the discovery of some common ground on which the Senate and House conferees might begin a discussion of the points at issue.

The Senate Democrats are in earnest in their determination to oppose any measure containing any of the Vreeland features, especially the one recognizing commercial paper as the basis for the issuance of emergency currency.

WICKED SAW-EDGED COLLARS

Interfere with Congressman Moore's Speech—Would License Laundries.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Because a saw-edged collar interfered with his freedom of speech in talking to Secretary Metcalf to-day about the desirability of building warships in the League Island Navy Yard, Representative Moore of Philadelphia this afternoon introduced a bill for the regulation of "bulldog and billy goat" laundries in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Moore, after having suffered the agonies produced by the collars which were returned to him in a condition indicating that they had been committed to the care of bulldogs and billy goats, decided that licensing and inspecting would be a good way to prevent the use of acids or other cleansing chemicals and violently whirling machinery. The license fee is to be $50 a year for laundries that employ more than five persons.

No license is to be granted to any establishment that uses chemicals calculated to destroy the linen, or machinery that is more efficient than a bulldog to accomplish its reduction to pulp. A fine of $100 is the penalty for "conducting" a laundry without license.

The jokers say the real reason back of the introduction of the bill is the destruction of the two shirts Mr. Moore brought here from Philadelphia, but those who know the advocate of League Island's uplift assert that the interference with the speech intended for Mr. Metcalf's consumption caused the trouble.

MUCH DAMAGE IN TEXAS STORM

$1,000,000 Property Loss—Dallas in Darkness—Oklahoma Suffers.

DALLAS, Texas, May 25.—Four lives lost, more than $1,000,000 worth of property destroyed, 4,000 persons homeless, and telegraph and telephone wires west and southwest put out of commission are the results of an overflow of the Trinity River last night and to-day.

The river at nightfall passed the record of 52 feet made in 1866, when business houses standing in what is now a poor residence quarter of Dallas were swamped. That same part of the city to-night is under water, and thousands have lost their household effects, while the residence quarter of North Dallas is cut off from the business part of the city so far as street car lines are concerned. Only one line is operating to a part of North Dallas.

The waterworks plant is out of commission and the light plant is inundated. The city is in darkness to-night.

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 25.—Several people are known to be dead here, 5,000 are homeless, and several more are reported to have been killed in North Fort Worth as a result of the greatest rise in the history of the Trinity River.

Stock valued at many thousands of dollars, including 2,500 sheep penned up in the stock yards in North Fort Worth, was washed downstream and destroyed. The property loss cannot be estimated as yet.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 25.—Seven persons are dead, about 450 are homeless, thousands of acres of lowlands are inundated, hundreds of houses are washed away or damaged, railroad and wagon bridges are gone over a large area of the southern part of the State, several railroad bridges are damaged, and the tracks of nearly every railroad company operating in the State are disarranged to-night as a result of heavy rains and overflowed rivers.

WOULD SPLIT THE NEW HAVEN

Bay State Leader Thinks Road Should Be Resolved Into Component Parts.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 25.—"The public welfare demands that first of all the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad be split into its component parts—steam, electric, and water. If the State cannot control the corporation, the corporation will control the State," said Representative Luce of Somerville, speaking on "Right and Wrong in Legislation" before the Methodist ministers to-day.

Mr. Luce is the Republican leader of the Legislature and an active candidate for Lieutenant Governor. He furthermore said:

"Quite apart from the problem of whether two steam roads may well merge, and far above it in ultimate importance, is the problem of whether different systems of transportation shall be allowed to serve the public independently and competitively.

"Probably the best plan is to let the Railroad Commissioners vote the Boston & Maine stock now owned by the New Haven until it can be sold to the public, in lots that will give no one interest control."

RIOTING IN CHESTER.

Withdrawal of State Police Followed by Car Strike Violence.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTER, Penn., May 25.—There was much rioting in the streets here to-night by sympathizers of the street car strikers. A dozen strike-breakers who were in charge of the cars of the Chester Traction Company fared badly at the hands of the strike sympathizers.

At 10:30 o'clock a mob of 3,000 men charged a car which they had followed for four squares, and were throwing stones and hooting the police who had several prisoners aboard. The men had been creating a disturbance at the car barn.

Following a shower of bricks, Sergt. Knoden fired into the crowd. A negro policeman also fired. The crowd paid no attention to the officers until the City Hall was reached. Then they turned, and women and children were trampled to the ground. The people had apparently been awaiting the withdrawal of the State police.

PHILADELPHIA EXPORTS BIG.

Increase of $10,000,000 in First Twenty-one Weeks of Year.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—The value of exports from Philadelphia for the first twenty-one weeks of the present year was $38,022,213, as compared with $28,812,925 for the corresponding period of 1907.

"This increase of nearly $10,000,000," said Chester W. Hill, Collector of Customs, to-day, "is significant, as 1907 broke all records in the value of exports from Philadelphia."

CHARITIES BOAT HIT BY LINER MARAVAL

The Thomas S. Brennan, with 150 Launching Guests Aboard, Rammed During Fog in Bay.

MUCH ALARM; ONLY 1 HURT

Damage All Above the Waterline—Commissioner Hebberd and His Wife Were on Board.

While returning to the Battery from Staten Island with Robert W. Hebberd, Commissioner of Charities, his wife, and a party of about 150 guests aboard, after the launching of the department's new boat, the Lowell, the steamer Thomas S. Brennan was run into by the Trinidad Trading Company's liner Maraval. The accident happened shortly after 6 o'clock last evening, in a dense fog, and that the Brennan was not sunk was due alone, it is thought, to the fact that both boats were proceeding very slowly. There was great excitement on the Brennan, and about fifty of the passengers climbed from her deck to the bow of the Maraval rather than remain on the boat, which they thought to be sinking.

When the first shock came as the liner cut into the side of the harbor boat, there was a rush for life preservers, and some of the women aboard screamed and ran excitedly about. Order was soon restored, but some of the passengers wore life jackets until Pier A, North River, was reached. For ten minutes the Maraval hung with her bow in the great gash cut in the Brennan's side, but when the skippers of both boats were convinced that the damage was above the water line only she backed off. In the meantime a fleet of small boats surrounded the two vessels, ready to pass lines in case of necessity.

The Brennan was struck on the starboard side, aft of amidships, and she was cut down from her superstructure to within two or three feet of the water line. The Maraval drew off with a long pole jabbed in her port side, five feet from the water line and about eight from her bow. She went on her way with the great piece of timber from the Brennan's overhang sticking in her hull.

The Brennan left the foot of East Twenty-sixth Street at 2:30 o'clock with the Commissioner of Charities and his guests. She took them to the F. A. Verdon Ship Yards, at West New Brighton, where the Lowell was launched. She got under way for her return at about 6 o'clock. As she ran along the east side of Staten Island the fog rolled in from the sea and overtook her, and the curtain of mist was so thick that it was impossible to see many yards ahead. On her port side was another department boat, the Fidelity, with her passengers waving from the rail.

Capt. John J. McCarthy was sending the Brennan along at about an eight-knot gait, with his whistle going continuously. The outlines of the vessels at anchor on the Jersey side of the channel could be made out only dimly as the Brennan passed them.

Commissioner Hebberd and a number of women were on the upper deck, all peering ahead through the mist, when with startling suddenness the Maraval loomed up to starboard. She was apparently under way, and turning as though from an anchorage to make her way to Perth Amboy. Her course lay almost across the fairway, and she was headed directly for the Brennan. At first it looked as though the latter might clear her, but the distance was not enough. There came from the Brennan a sharp blast of her whistle, a chorus of shouts from those on deck, and then the Maraval's prow struck her fairly in the side.

In the scene of short-lived excitement which followed one man ran to the rail and jumped to the bow of the Maraval. In the cabin the women showed signs of hysteria, but Commissioner Hebberd, the mate, and others of the crew kept shouting that there was no danger. The bow of the Maraval stuck in the hole she had made, and within a few seconds after the accident men and women began to scramble to the bow of the steamship. Some of the women were passed through a smashed window of the Brennan's cabin and then lowered through a mass of wreckage to the Maravel.

On the Maraval the men ran to the bow as soon as it was apparent that she was going to strike, and then came the rattle of her starboard anchor chain as she let go. On the Brennan two of the deckhands began to strip off the lifeboat coverings.

In response to distress whistles from the Brennan, the Fidelity stood by, and was joined by the revenue cutter Calumet, which came out of the fog as did also the tugs Florence and C. N. Kimpland. There was a great jangling of bells and much whistling, which added to the confusion.

Then came word that the Brennan was not damaged below the water line, and the Maraval backed slowly off and disappeared in the fog, while the Brennan got under way again. The tug Kimpland afterward took off the passengers, who jumped from the Brennan to the Maraval, and brought them to the Battery.

The only person injured was M. U. Ray, the man who jumped from the deck of the Brennan to the bow of the steamer. He was taken to Bellevue with a badly sprained foot.

The Maraval arrived on Sunday night from Trinidad. She usually goes to Perth Amboy, and was probably getting under way for there when the accident happened.

"I cannot talk of the accident until I have made my report," said Capt. McCarthy. "We were running slowly through the fog and were whistling. I will say, however, that the Maraval did not answer my whistles."

The Brennan has just been made over at large cost, and she will now have to undergo more extensive repairs before she gets back into active service.

Among those on the Brennan besides the Commissioner of Charities and his wife were Dr. John Larkin of the College of Physicians and Surgeons; Dr. S. T. Armstrong, Superintendent of Bellevue; Dr. Goldwater of Mount Sinai Hospital; the Rev. D. J. McMahon, Church of the Epiphany, Twenty-second Street and Second Avenue; Deputy Commissioner of Charities of Brooklyn M. J. McInerny, R. O. Baker, Frank Jerald, Dr. Lee K. Frankel of the Russell Sage Foundation, Dr. William Mabon, Thomas M. Mulry, State Board of Charities; Dr. Edward J. Butler, and Charles Cassidy.

SEMINOLE ASHORE IN FOG.

Clyde Liner Strikes Near Point Pleasant, N. J.—Passengers in a Panic.

By Wireless Telegraph to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STEAMSHIP SEMINOLE, May 25.—The Clyde Line steamship Seminole, Capt. McKenzie, bound for New York from Santo Domingo ports and Fortune Island, with fifteen passengers and heavily laden with a valuable cargo, went ashore 350 yards from Point Pleasant Inlet Beach, N. J., at 11:30 A. M. in a fog so dense that it was impossible to distinguish objects half a boat's length away.

As soon as the vessel struck the lifeboats were cleared and swung away ready for launching. Chief Mate Cary was sent ashore in a boat to ascertain the vessel's exact position. Capt. McKenzie, after trying to free his vessel by her own power, sent word by wireless to the Clyde Line offices in New York and the Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Company. The tug Relief was at once sent to her assistance and arrived here. Preparations are now under way to float the Seminole at high tide, 5 A. M.

The vessel struck at low tide and pounded heavily. There was a small-sized panic following her striking, and some of the passengers made preparations to leave the vessel at once. The officers went about and assured them that there was no danger.

Even this assurance was not sufficient to quiet them, but the arrival of two life-saving crews and the partial lifting of the fog, disclosing the shore line, helped to restore confidence.

The coolness of the Captain and the crew was the chief factor in restoring confidence.

There was never an instant when the Captain did not have the situation well in hand. The cargo, which consists of sugar, tobacco, and other merchandise, is very valuable. It is covered by insurance. At midnight the cargo was resting easy and there was no danger.

Efforts to float the steamer were without result, and early this morning she was resting easily, while a wrecking boat stood near by to await the slack water following high tide early this morning. When the liner struck the passengers became panic-stricken, but were finally reassured on learning that they were in little danger.

The Seminole carries a crew of fifty men.

ANOTHER STEAMER ASHORE.

Unidentified Ship Reported Aground at Bay Head, N. J.

From the Galilee, N. J., wireless station last night came this report: "Life-saving crew of Bay Head and Manolokin have started to the assistance of an unidentified steamer ashore at Bay Head, ten miles from where the Seminole is aground. She is evidently a freighter."

FOG, FOG, AND MORE FOG.

No Let Up, the Weather Man Says—Capt. Mills Blames the Gulf Stream.

Fog rolled in from the sea again yesterday, and, this sort of thing having been the almost daily experience for a week or ten days, the weather man was asked about it yesterday. He explained that the fog has been caused by a combination of a long-continued southeast wind and the difference in temperature on land and sea. Yesterday a temperature of 63 degrees was recorded out on the ocean, while it was three degrees less on land.

A remarkable feature of the prevailing weather was shown at the Times Building, where persons on the upper floors perspired in a humid atmosphere, while those on the street experienced dampness and chill.

The official weather prohpet said last night that there will be a continuation of the fog during the next few days.

Capt. Arthur Mills, the skipper of the American liner Philadelphia, was also consulted.

"It's the Gulf Stream," he said, shaking his head. "The stream is getting closer to New York every year, and I expect, if I live that long, to see the Gulf Stream running right past our door and New York become a tropical city, with an almost continual fog rolling in from sea."

STEAMER WHITNEY HELD FAST

Boatmen Think Rocks Have Penetrated Her Hull—Removing Her Cargo.

Despite the fact that tons of freight have been taken out of the steamship H. M. Whitney of the Metropolitan Line, which stranded in a fog on the north edge of Flood Rock, in Hell Gate, while en route to Boston Saturday night, the vessel is still held fast. All yesterday a fleet of wrecking tugs and lighters hung around the vessel, while derricks brought barrels, crates, and boxes out of her hold.

She lies about 200 yards off the Astoria shore in about the centre of the main channel, and boatmen are of the opinion that she is held fast by rocks that have been driven through her steel hull.

It is thought that by this morning sufficient of the cargo will be lightered to make an attempt to patch her up and if possible stop the inflow of water and get her afloat. In her present position she is a menace to traffic.

HUNDREDS RE-EMPLOYED.

St. Louis Manufacturers Taking Back Their Idle Workmen.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 25.—The National Prosperity Association's "re-employment day" has been anticipated by St. Louis manufacturers and corporations and hundreds of idle workmen are being put to work.

The original declaration was that June 1 should be "re-employment day" and it was planned that all the corporations and manufacturers should take back as many as possible of the workmen laid off during the business depression.

Seventy-five industrial corporations in St. Louis have signified their willingness to get in line. Of these seventy-five, about half have already started re-employment, and are putting additional forces to work each day. It is intended in each of the establishments in question to have its full force at work as soon after June 1 as possible.

The Order of Railway Conductors, through President Garretson, have indorsed the sunshine movement and joined the association.

PROTOS AUTO TAKES LEAD IN SIBERIA

Germans Go Ahead Along Railroad Line While Americans Strike Impassable Roads.

FLOOD STOPS THOMAS CAR

Returns to Nikolsk and Will Take Up Chase This Morning Over Roadbed of Trans-Siberian Line.

Special Cable from THE NEW YORK TIMES's Staff Correspondent with the Racers.

NIKOLSK, May 25.—The German Protos car took the lead in the New York to Paris race to-day. While the American Thomas car was struggling with impassable roads deep with mire and covered with water the Protos went ahead on the railroad bed of the Trans-Siberian line, and to-night it is some distance ahead of the American racer.

We did not know of the passing of our German rival until we returned to this place to-night after a futile struggle with the mud. Then we learned of the Protos's movements and that we had lost the lead. We will follow its example in the morning and try the railroad bed, hoping to overtake the big German machine before nightfall and resume the lead.

When we left here yesterday afternoon the sun was shining for the first time since our departure from Vladivostok, and we anticipated steadily improving conditions. We had not been on the road for two hours when we were overtaken by a violent thunderstorm which flooded the roads and made them worse than ever. Streams were badly swollen as a result, and the lowlands were overrun with water.

With the crew wading ahead to pilot the driver, the car proceeded for some fifteen miles at little better than a snail's pace. Then the rear wheels sank out of sight in the water and the hubs became imbedded in the mud beneath.

We discovered we were in the middle of a swollen stream and thirty feet from either bank. There was nothing to do but use the block and tackle to pull us up to the bank again. A number of peasants were then engaged to assist us for five miles further, but the road grew constantly worse, leading us deeper and deeper into an apparently impassable bog. A post wagon came along, and the driver told us that the road ahead was even worse. So the crew determined to turn back and seek shelter at a little village which we had left four miles behind.

We again slept on the floor of the posthouse, and arose to another breakfast of canned meat, and then turned back to this place, where on our arrival we were informed of the Protos car's movements. Another supper of eggs and canned goods, and we are about to retire for the night, to push on over the ties in the pursuit of the Germans in the morning.

BEVERIDGE TRICKS SENATE.

Calls Up Liability Bill by Number, but It Fails to Pass.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Although Senator Beveridge made to-day a determined fight, preceded by a strategic flank movement that trapped his opponents, he failed to carry his Government Employers' Liability bill to victory. It was crowded over, although Beveridge and Depew made appeals that it be permitted to come to a vote. The measure has the indorsement of the White House, but it is regarded with disfavor by the Senate leaders.

Beveridge yielded to several Senators who sought to introduce bills. The suspicions of the watchers were lulled, and when Depew, who had been properly coached, innocently called up the Liability bill by its calendar number, it came up. It stayed up, also, for when the opposition discovered the trick it was too late to head the bill off. After two hours of wrangling the motion to adjourn made by Hale was carried.

There was opposition on the part of Beveridge, who called for a division, and later for a roll call. This angered Hale to the point where he displayed the party lash and informed the Senate "that there were some things the Senate could do without the invaluable assistance of the Senator from Indiana."

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE GIRL.

Eight-Year-Old Boy Almost Drowned—Tugboat Hand Saves Both.

Walter Shea, 8 years of age, of 440 West Twenty-sixth Street, in trying to save Grace Vanderhoff, a thirteen-year-old schoolmate of 449 West Twenty-ninth Street, when she fell into the river at the foot of West Twenty-second Street, last night, nearly lost his own life. Peter Johnson, a fireman on the tug Water Front, saved the two children by jumping in after them.

Walter and Grace were on a large raft where children gather in the evening. Grace removed her shoes and stockings and went down the steps in the centre of the raft and put her feet in the water. Her hand slipped and she went into the river.

Running down and holding onto the side young Shea tried to reach the little girl's hand, when he, too, fell in. Johnson then plunged in and saved both children.

JOHNSON PLEASED.

Calls the Vote at the Alabama Primaries a "Happy Disappointment."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 25.—Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota, en route to Tuscaloosa, Ala., where he will deliver an address Tuesday at the commencement exercises of the State University, arrived in Birmingham to-day and will remain here until to-morrow. In answer to a question as to the recent Democratic primaries in Alabama he said that the result was a happy disappointment.

"It is certainly gratifying," he said, "to receive between 30 and 40 per cent. of the vote for Presidential nomination in a State which I never before had the pleasure of visiting."

CONCERN FOR MR. CLEVELAND.

Has Not Made the Expected Progress Toward Recovery and Sleeps Poorly.

There is renewed concern over the condition of ex-President Cleveland, who has long been ill at Lakewood, N. J. While it cannot be said that Mr. Cleveland has grown definitely worse, at the same time he has not made the expected progress toward recovery. It is understood that he has not been out of bed at all in the last two weeks, and it is learned from those immediately about him that he is very wakeful at night, but frequently falls into a deep slumber in the daytime.

Mrs. Cleveland has arranged for the removal of her children from Princeton to the Cleveland Summer home at Tamworth, N. H.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—When Senator Scott burst on the Chamber to-day he astounded Fairbanks, startled Teller, and brought a gasp from Gallinger. He was clad in his Philippine suit of yellow silk, with white shoes, white tie, white belt, and white flower in the lapel of his coat.

When the Senators discovered that Scott had not braved convention by appearing in his pajamas, they crowded around him. Incidentally, the Senate thermometer is registering these days between 87 and 93 degrees.

$208,000 FOR SHADOW LAWN.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., May 25.—Shadow Lawn, formerly the property of John A. McCall, when he was President of the New York Life Insurance Company, was to-day sold at Sheriff's sale to Myron H. Oppenheim of New York for $108,000 above the $100,000 mortgage held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Abraham White, the present occupant, a week ago asked for a week's extension, and said he would be able to take care of the mortgage. Mr. Oppenheim said to-night that if Mr. White made good he would let him redeem the property; if not he would start a bungalow colony, using the McCall cottage as a casino.

HORSE KILLS MAD DOG.

Attacks It on Road Where Children Were in Danger.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 25.—A horse owned by John Darlington of Sharpsburg a suburb, interfered to-day when a mad dog was attacking some children playing in the road. Before the horse killed the dog he had received wounds which will cause his death, even if rabies does not ensue.

The dog came racing along by the farm while a party of children were playing in the road. The horse dashed at the dog and the challenge was accepted. The dog sunk its teeth into the neck of the horse, which screamed with rage and pain, throwing off the dog again and again. The dog finally succumbed when the horse planted both fore feet on its body, crushing it.

ATTACKS SPEAKER CANNON.

Minister Says He Defeated Sabbath and Temperance Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—Speaker Cannon of the House of Representatives received some harsh criticism to-day at the meeting of the Methodist Preachers' Association in Wesley Hall. The Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, General Secretary of the International Reform Association, declared that Mr. Cannon was responsible for defeating legislation upon the Sabbath question and many other reform measures.

"Speaker Reed was bad enough in this respect, but Cannon is infinitely worse," said Mr. Crafts. "His manners and morals are the lowest of any man in Congress. When I am asked why it is that such a man comes to the top in Congress, I am apt to reply that it is for the same reason that a regiment chooses a pig for its mascot."

Mr. Crafts said that temperance legislation was being retarded by the influence of Speaker Cannon.

BILLIARDIST MYERS A SUICIDE

Shoots Himself at Railway Station After Visit to His Parents.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., May 25.—William Myers, ex-amateur billiard champion and once a well-known baseball player, died to-day from a bullet wound in the head. He shot himself last night in the railway station in Haddonfield. He had been visiting his parents, and when he left them was apparently in the best of spirits. Just as a train drew in he shot himself.

Constable Elwell of Haddonfield said this morning that he had been notified to look out for Myers, as there were warrants out for him in this city and Philadelphia.

Myers was divorced from his first wife, an actress, and recently married again.

GIRL FIRST TO THE RESCUE

Highwaymen Beaten Off and One Arrested—Attack in First Street, Near First Avenue.

A daring attempt to wrest packages containing $43,000 in cash from the hands of three bank messengers was made by three Italians at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the heart of the most crowded section of the east side. Red pepper, knives, and blackjacks were freely used by the three highwaymen, and one of the messengers was stabbed in half a dozen different places. The messengers clung to the money, however, though unarmed, and fought until their assailants were driven off.

The assault was principally directed against the eldest of the three bank employes, who carried the largest share of the money in a small black satchel. Though his eyes were blinded by the pepper and the three highwaymen pounded his head with their blackjacks and sawed his left hand in which he carried the bag with knives until they nearly severed it at the wrist, he held on until the crowd had frightened off the highwaymen. Then he and his fellow-messengers, still gripping the packages of money, dropped in collapse on the sidewalk.

A Girl First to the Rescue.

The attempt occurred just east of First Avenue, in front of 83 First Street, where a small Polish and Russian restaurant is kept by Nosti Ronkolwok. The narrow street was crowded with hundreds of working people on their way home. An enormous crowd collected at the first alarmed shouts of the messengers, but of all the dozens that witnessed the hold-up only one, a sturdy young Polish girl, Eva Javnovitzka, attempted at first to assist the three men.

She was standing in the door of her home, which is over the restaurant. Running into the street at the first attack she grasped the arm with which one of the highwaymen was wielding a knife, and her action probably saved the life of one of the messengers. Aroused by the girl's heroism some men in the crowd jumped in, and the highwaymen, seeing that it was useless to continue the fight, darted away. One of them was caught a few minutes later as he was walking west on Second Street on the other side of the avenue. A policeman's attention was attracted to him by blood on his hands and clothing and by the cries of a crowd of boys who were following him. Half a block more and he would have escaped.

Had $43,000 in Gold and Bills.

Joseph Velsor of 341 Marion Street, Brooklyn; Samuel Adelman of 278 South Fifth Street, Brooklyn, and Abraham Stern of 75 East 114th Street were the three bank employes. Velsor is a bookkeeper and Adelman and Stern regular messengers. They left the branch of the Jefferson Bank at Clinton and East Houston Streets to go to the main bank at Canal and Forsythe Streets just before 5 o'clock. The $43,000 was in four packages, the bulk of it in the satchel, carried by Adelman. Velsor carried two small bags of gold and Stern a bundle of bills of large denomination in a wooden box.

It was the regular Monday transfer from the branch to the main office. The highwaymen were probably aware of this, and were waiting for the three men. It was the messengers' custom always to walk through First Street to First Avenue and there take the Second Avenue Elevated south to Canal Street. They followed this route yesterday, and when attacked were not much more than fifty feet from the stairway to the elevated station.

None of the three bank employes was able afterward to remember from just what point the three assailants jumped out. Nor could the Javnovitzka girl, who saw the beginning of the attack, tell afterward whether the highwaymen had been following the men or whether they pounced out upon them.

Story of the Polish Girl.

By the aid of an interpreter she told the following story at the Fifth Street Police Station:

"I saw the man who was arrested throw the pepper in Adelman's face and then he and his two companions commenced to strike and slash all at once at the three men carrying the packages. I ran into the street crying 'Murder!' and jumped between this man (indicating the prisoner) and Adelman. Then the prisoner reached into his pocket and pulled out a big clasp knife, which he opened with his teeth, and commenced to stab at the man. I clung to his arm and tried to ward off the blows, screaming as loud as I could."

All this time one of the other highwaymen was sawing at Adelman's wrist with a knife, while the third one was beating off Velsor and Stern. The messengers were fighting blindly, their eyes burning with the red pepper, when finally the crowd rushed to the rescue and the robbers made off. The three men were carried to the office of Dr. David Adler, at 65 First Street, where their wounds were dressed.

One Messenger Badly Injured.

Velsor was sent to Bellevue Hospital with a blackjack wound in his head which it was at first thought might be a fracture of the skull. Stern was not badly hurt, but Adleman had a deep cut in his right forearm, one on his right hand, another on his forehead, and his left wrist was badly gashed by knife slashes.

While the physician was working over

Adelman and Stern, who had fainted, Policeman Ryan brought in the prisoner, whom the messengers identified at once. Ryan was standing at First Avenue and Third Street when he saw a bloodstained man turn into Second Street, followed by a crowd of boys. Halting him, Ryan asked what the trouble was.

"I was in a fight back there," replied the fellow.

"Come back with me, and we'll see what the trouble was," said Ryan.

"No, I want to get home," the man objected.

But Ryan turned him about face without more ado, and the fellow went along without making trouble.

Then one of the boys volunteered the information that the man "had just killed three men over in First Street."

Police Rush to the Scene.

Some one had carried the news of the holdup to the Fifth Street Station, and Capt. Shaw and a dozen men were on the scene very quickly. The first man to arrive was Policeman Unger, the clerical man of the station house, who ran down in his shirt sleeves. He found Ryan with his prisoner pinned in a doorway at 67 First Street, surrounded by a large crowd. As they held him there waiting for the reserves they heard something drop on the pavement. It was a new 32-calibre revolver, fully loaded. Four more cartridges were found in the prisoner's pocket.

He was marched to the station house surrounded by half a dozen policemen. The news of the holdup spread swiftly through the neighborhood, and by the time Inspector McCafferty of the Detective Bureau and Fourth Deputy Commissioner Arthur Woods had arrived the station house was surrounded by hundreds of excited men and women. Twenty policemen were sent into the streets, and traffic was lined off for a block north and south on First Avenue after the manner of fire lines.

In the meantime Adelman and Stern and the packages of money that they had so pluckily protected were brought in. The two men were questioned briefly and sent to their homes in carriages. They could give only a meagre description of the two men who got away. They said they were young and athletic, and evidently Italians.

Prisoner a Plasterer by Trade.

The prisoner said that he was Casimo Riccobono, 26 years old; that he was a plasterer by trade and lived at 426-8 East Thirteenth Street. Further than this he would not talk. He was later taken to Police Headquarters, and will be arraigned in the Yorkville Court to-day. At the Thirteenth Street address no one could be found who would admit knowing the prisoner, but at No. 216-8, a fish market, the proprietor was found to be one Caesario Riccobono. Persons in the neighborhood said he was Riccobono's uncle and that they had been in this country about four months. No one seemed to know where Riccobono lived, as it was said he had recently been married and moved away from the neighborhood.

About 9 o'clock two Italians and a boy were brought to Headquarters by detectives, and it was announced that they were Riccobono's father and two brothers, Giovanni, 55 years old; Salvatore, 21, and Dameano, 18. The old man and the younger son gave their address as 440 East Thirteenth Street, and Salvatore said he lived at No. 435. They all gave their occupation as peddlers. They were locked up as suspicious persons, and will be questioned by Inspector McCafferty this morning.

At 11 o'clock another Italian was brought in. He said he was Antonio Riccobono, and that Giovanni is his father. He was also locked up.

Velsor was able to leave Bellevue for his home, in Brooklyn, late last night. His sister came over for him in a carriage, and one of the doctors accompanied them across the river.

Max Roth, Vice President of the Jefferson Bank, and William H. Devlin, the cashier, arrived at the police station about 6 o'clock and took the $43,000 in cash downtown to the bank. They were accompanied by a plain-clothes man and two detectives, and went in a carriage.

Mr. Roth said that, so far as he knew, no one in the bank had ever received a threatening letter, nor had there ever been an intimation that a robbery was being planned.

OTHER STREET HOLD-UPS.

Yorkville Bank Messenger Attacked in 1905—Liquor Dealer Robbed.

Messengers employed by banks and business houses have frequently been attacked by highway robbers, and in the last few years there have been several hold-ups of a nature similar to that of yesterday.

In May, 1905, Carl Kueher, a messenger employed by the Yorkville Bank, was held up and robbed of his money satchel by four men at Hudson and Houston Streets. Dozens of persons were passing, but none paid any attention to the occurrence, thinking it a brawl. In Kueher's satchel were only five checkbooks, although it had contained several thousand dollars only a few minutes before the hold-up.

Morris Tischler, owner of a liquor store at 2,018 Second Avenue, sent a messenger named Wolf Parker to the Twelfth Ward Bank, in East 125th Street, on Saturday, Feb. 9, last year, to cash a check for $2,900. Parker got the money and was walking along 105th Street on his way back when he was held up by three men and knocked on the head. He was able, however, to call the attention of the police to the fleeing assailants and one of them was captured.

Paymaster William Knapp of the Worthen & Aldrich Bleacheries at Delawanna and his driver, George Cummings, were held up by four men on the river drive near Passaic on Nov. 15 of last year and relieved of the $7,000 which he had drawn from the Hoboken Trust Company to meet the weekly pay roll. Knapp and his driver were then tied to trees and left. Mrs. Mary Hester saw the robbery from her home and her alarm resulted in the arrest of three Italians.

On July 18, 1900, Laura Rickerick, Cashier in the Jersey City office of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, started to deposit the day's receipts in the Hudson County National Bank. As she started up the bank's steps a man coming down seized the satchel and made off with it. In the chase which followed Mrs. Henrietta Fuhling died from excitement. The robber escaped.

THAW LOSES SUIT FOR HIS RELEASE

Court Declares Prisoner Insane and a Menace—To Determine Legality of Commitment.

MAY ASK FOR A GUARDIAN

Thaw Makes a Statement on His Case—Effort to Have Him Transferred from Matteawan.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 25.—Justice Joseph Morschauser to-day dismissed the writ of habeas corpus of Harry K. Thaw, declared him insane and a menace to the community, and decided against the contention of his counsel that the law under which Justice Dowling had cimmitted him to Matteawan was unconstitutional. Justice Morschauser did not order Thaw back to Matteawan on account of the pending question as to his ruling on the point raised over the commitment of Thaw by Justice Dowling, a question which will be taken to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

Notice was given that on June 6 counsel for Thaw would request that the prisoner be transferred from the jail here to some institution for the insane other than Matteawan. District Attorney Mack was informed over the telephone that District Attorney Jerome would oppose any such effort to remove Thaw from the asylum for the criminal insane.

An effort was made to get Assistant Superintendent Amos T. Baker of Matteawan to ask for the appointment of a guardian for Thaw immediately after the verdict of the Judge. When Mr. Jerome heard of this he asked Mr. Mack to object to any such appointment. The head of the institution may apply for a guardian for an inmate without having the inmate go before a lunacy commission.

On the other hand if any of his family asks for the appointment of a guardian for him, Thaw will have to face a commission.

Mr. Jerome, it was learned to-day, through District Attorney Mack, would not put any obstruction in the way of an application by any member of the family for the appointment of a guardian, but would fight any effort to relieve the family of their share of responsibility in the establishment of Thaw's mental condition.

Thaw Calmly Hears Decision.

Thaw heard the news of the decision without any show of excitement until he was asked about a rumor to the effect that the marriage annulment suit of his wife was to be withdrawn to-morrow in New York and that this withdrawal would be followed by an application by her to be appointed his guardian and controller of what estate he has left.

Thaw had left his lawyer, J. G. Graham, to join a number of reporters in the office of Jailer Robinson, and was smoking a cigar and answering questions calmly when this question was put up to him.

The prisoner jumped to his feet and started to leave the room as if no other person were in it.

"Counsel for your wife, Dan O'Reilley, is reported to have decided on this course," he was told.

"There is not a chance of her doing anything of the kind," he said. "She cannot sue for annulment, then withdraw the suit, and finally ask to be the guardian of my affairs. Col. Bartlett will attend to that."

The mention of his wife's name and the possibility of her being in control of his affairs upset him greatly. He showed extreme nervousness and hastened from the room.

Thaw's mother, attended by a nurse, paid him a visit in the jail during the forenoon, left for dinner, and returned in the afternoon. They had two long talks together, the nurse being sent from the building during the time of the conference. The mother seemed much enfeebled physically, but still strong of spirit.

In response to a note sent him during the afternoon, Thaw arranged for an interview with a reporter of THE TIMES to-night. He entered the reception room for jail visitors and sat down, offering a cigar.

"I don't know whether you will use it all," he said, in a low voice, "but I have prepared a statement of what occurred when I was on the stand."

Harry K. Thaw's Statement.

He handed a typewritten document to the reporter.

"Did you prepare this yourself, without the aid of counsel?" he was asked.

"Why," he exclaimed, as if surprised at the question. "I haven't seen counsel since early morning. I prepared this myself."

The typewritten statement offered by Thaw consisted of a copy of the stenographic account of his testimony on the stand in the habeas corpus proceedings. It was prefaced with this:

"This is my first statement since the day before Christmas.

"The last evening of court I was called to the stand just when the stenographer's hour was up. It was some time before the new stenographer entered the room; meanwhile, two flashlights were exploded within twelve feet of me. Probably it was during this wait that I appeared nervous.

"The witness chair was comfortable, but a railing pressed against my knees, so I was forced to turn my back toward the Judge or toward the newspaper reporters. I turned toward the Judge; consequently, the reporters could not hear my answers.

"There are two points in my answers that Mr. Jerome understood, but others might not.

"First, when Mr. Jerome asked if I understood the evidence which would guide the Judge, I objected to evidence presented at my last trial being used as though sworn to before Judge Morschauser.

"Second, Mr. Jerome's alienists had testified professionally; therefore, I did not consider that their private or society reputation had much to do with the case."

Thaw was asked whether the stenographic report did not verify the longhand reports of the newspapers, and was asked to point out any injustice done him in the reports.

"I don't say that any injustice was done me," he said, nervously. "I simply say that you newspaper men could not hear me, and that consequently you could not print all that I said. I spoke too low, and my back was to you a part of the time."

During the morning interview Thaw said that the newspaper men had neglected the importance of the testimony of Dr. Jacoby, who swore that he had examined him and had found no trace of manic depressive insanity.

"You are not experts," he said to a number of reporters. "But I don't blame you. You were looking for stories. Mr. Jerome did not examine Dr. Jacoby on that point. He was 'there with the hot air and the big yell.' It was interesting as reading matter but not evidence."

He was asked whether the testimony of Dr. Wells, the English expert, had not aided in establishing manic depressive insanity.

"I'll tell you about Dr. Wells," he replied. "When I was in his hospital in London they had me in a big room. I was suffering from ptomaine poisoning. He left a young girl to watch me. Would he have left a young girl to guard a maniac?"

As he started for the door of the room THE TIMES reporter said to him:

"Mr. Thaw, I would like to ask whether your conferences to-day with your mother concerned the appointment of a guardian for your estate."

"We did not discuss that at all," he said.

Thaw's jailors said last night that he was apparently cheerful, and that he had left one hope—that he will be kept out of Matteawan, in jail or in any other asylum, but away from Quimbo Appo and the hundreds of other lunatic murderers, forgers, and other criminals who are prisoners there.

Justice Morschauser's Decision.

Justice Morschauser's decision says:

"I am satisfied from the evidence adduced before me that the mental condition of Harry K. Thaw has not changed, and I find that he is now insane, and that it is so manifest as to make it unsafe for him to be at large."

Of the constitutionality of the law under which Justice Dowling sent Thaw to Matteawan, Justice Morschauser says in his opinion:

"I have made careful examination of the authorities, and I do not find that this statute has ever been passed upon by any of the courts of this State. It has been in existence and operation for many years without question, and it is the duty of the court to presume in favor of the validity of the statute until its violation of the Constitution is established beyond all reasonable doubt.

"In construing this statute it should be borne in mind that the safety and welfare of the community are of more importance than the freedom of the individual.

"The relator claims that the statute does not provide a method by which Thaw can be discharged.

"Section 99 of the insanity law provides, 'Any inmate, not a convict, held upon an order of a court or Judge in a criminal proceednig may be discharged therefrom upon the Superintendent's certificate of recovery, made to and approved by such court or Judge.'

"I believe no injustice has been done to Thaw or will be done to him by depriving him of his liberty until such time as he can be discharged by the method prescribed by law.

"Bearing in mind that the usual punishment for the act which led up to the detention of said Thaw is death or a long term of imprisonment and that Thaw escaped the consequences of such act solely by reason of his existing mental condition, I do not deem it proper to allow Thaw his freedom, suffering, as he is, from some form of insanity, with the possible recurrence of an attack similar to that which the jury believed he was suffering from when he killed Stanford White.

"In view of the existing mental condition of said Thaw, the safety of the public is better insured by his remaining in custory and under observance until he has recovered or until such time as it shall be reasonably certain that there is no danger of a recurring attack of the delusion or whatever it may be."

Justice Morschauser then announced that, pending the settlement of the construction of the law under which Justice Dowling sent Thaw to Matteawan, he would retain Thaw in the jail here.

Justice Morschauser is practically in the same position as Justice Dowling. Both consider the slayer of White insane and a menace to the community, but neither has had him put before a commission to pass on his condition of mind. As the point involved is based on the commitment of Thaw to Matteawan without an inquirendo de lunatico, the recommitment of Thaw to Matteawan by Justice Morschauser would bring up once more the question of the right of the Justice to hold him in the asylum for the criminal insane.

AS EXPECTED, SAYS LITTLETON.

Attorney Declares Thaw's Attempt at Freedom Now Was Ill-Advised.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 25.—That the action in filing the habeas corpus proceedings for the release of Harry Thaw from the Matteawan Asylum for the Insane was ill-advised was the statement made by Attorney Martin Littleton of New York this afternoon, when informed that the court had declared Thaw insane. He characterized the filing of the proceedings as hasty and premature, stating that the result was to be expected at this time.

Mr. Littleton said that Thaw's insistence that steps be taken at once for his release would probably cause him to remain at Matteawan for another year, when he might have obtained his freedom by waiting until the Fall. He said that he had sought to impress his former client at their last conference with the futility of attempting to gain his freedom at once.

Regarding the proceedings instituted by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw for an annulment of her marriage, Mr. Littleton said that he did not believe that the case would ever come to trial.

"In my opinion," said he, "it would be impossible for either to secure an annulment of the marriage."

Mr. Littleton is on his way to visit his father at Kingston.

JEROME FAVORS MATTEAWAN.

Objects to a Sanitarium for Thaw, as He Might Escape.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., May 25.—District Attorney Jerome, accompanied by his assistant, Francis P. Garvan, arrived here this evening for the summing up to-morrow before Commissioner Hand on the King Committee charges. On the same train came Franklin Pierce, counsel for the committee.

On the train Mr. Jerome received a telegram from an assistant notifying him of the decision of Judge Morschauer in the Thaw case. Asked whether he would consent to Thaw being sent to a private sanitarium, Mr. Jerome said:

"I don't like to say what I will do until the matter has come officially to my attention. I will say, however, that I would not feel inclined to consent to Thaw being put in any place where there is no guarantee that he will not be able to escape.

"It would undoubtedly be a good thing to relieve the State of the expense of caring for any person who is able, as Thaw is, to pay his own way in a private asylum. Ordinarily, I would not object to such a thing, but in Thaw's case I do not see how it could be done, because of the possibility of his escaping. At large he would be a dangerous man. My idea is that he ought to be kept at Matteawan."

THAWS WILL OPPOSE GUARDIAN

On Ground That Harry's Estate Was Disposed Of by Father's Will.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 25.—No doubt was left to-day that the Thaw connection has arranged to fight any attempt on the part of Mrs. Harry K. Thaw to have herself appointed custodian of her husband's estate. Through a statement made by Frank Semple, attorney and financial agent of the Thaw estate, here to-night, it is made known that the Thaws will fight on the ground that the estate of Harry was finally disposed of by a codicil to the will of William Thaw, the father.

The father, it will be remembered, cut Harry off with $2,400 a year.

WHITMORE ON TRIAL FOR WIFE MURDER

Prosecutor Declares Evidence Will Show Wife Was Slain for Sake of Another Woman.

JEALOUSY ALSO A MOTIVE

Jersey Justice Swift in Swamp Tragedy, Sixteen Witnesses Being Heard on the First Day.

Jersey justice moved swiftly yesterday in the trial of Theodore S. Whitmore, the elevated road motorman, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Jersey City, for the murder of his wife, Lena, whose nude body was found in Lampblack Swamp, Harrison, N. J., on Dec. 26 last. A jury was obtained in forty-three minutes, and at the close of the morning session not only had eight witnesses been heard, but Assistant Prosecutor George T. Vickers had outlined new and important allegations which he said the State would prove. Eight more witnesses were called in the afternoon.

Mr. Vickers asserted that the State could prove that the defendant was not only with his wife on the night before the day of the finding of the body, but that it would show him at 12:50 on the morning of the day upon which the body was found leaving a train alone that had passed through Newark. A motive, the prosecutor said, would be found in the expressed wish of the defendant to get rid of his wife and marry another woman. Also, that Whitmore after the murder had tried to get possession of property and money belonging to his wife, and that he was accompanied in these efforts by a friend. This was taken to mean that the prosecutor had obtained much new evidence, both from Mrs. Georgia Dickinson and from Fred Elliott, the Boston & Albany brakeman, arrested in Boston last January, who was with Whitmore after the murder.

Two Judges Officiate.

As a large part of the evidence to be offered to connect Whitmore with the crime is circumstantial, there were two Judges officiating at the trial. They were Judge John A. Blair, who sits regularly in the Hudson County Court House, and Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze of Trenton.

Whitmore, at ease and occasionally smiling, had been brought in when the work of choosing the jury began, a little after 10 o'clock. As soon as the jury had been obtained and Francis E. Jewkes of 651 Bergin Street, Jersey City, had been chosen foreman, Assistant Public Prosecutor George T. Vickers made the opening address, stating that the State would show that Mrs. Whitmore was thrown alive into the swamp, probably while unconscious, and that the cause of death was drowning.

"The State will show that within a week of the murder this defendant attacked his wife, and that there was some evidence of this violence upon her body when she was found dead," the prosecutor said, "and that on the day previous to the commission of the crime this defendant had an encounter on the street with his wife, threw her to the ground, and took her pocketbook, and that only because of the interference of outsiders did he return it.

"The State will show that on Dec. 25 the defendant and his wife met in the neighborhood of 7:30 A. M., that he induced her to return to his home, and that they were last seen together in the house at 7 P. M. in New York City. We shall also place the defendant at 12:50 on the morning of Dec. 26 leaving a train that came through Newark after midnight.

In Love With Another Woman.

"The State will show a manifold motive for this crime. The defendant was jealous of the wife and then tried to get rid of her. The reason that the defendant wanted to rid himself of his wife at this time was because he himself was in love with another woman, and that he had arranged to live with another woman. Twenty-four hours after his wife had disappeared he installed this woman in his house for a time. We shall also show that the defendant intended to take his wife's jewels and money."

Mr. Vickers went on to say that the State would prove that Whitmore tried to conceal his wife's death. It would be shown, he said, that on Dec. 26 Whitmore went with a friend to a house where a bank book belonging to his wife was and got it. He then went to the bank and said that the old book had been burned and he wanted a new one. This same friend, said Mr. Vickers, remained at Whitmore's home in Brooklyn for several days, and at Whitmore's instigation wrote various letters signed "Lena," explaining to Mrs. Whitmore's friends her absence.

The first witnesses, Irving Webster Crane, Albert Thompson, and Fred Kirkman told of the finding of the body. William B. Salter, a brother of the dead woman, Mrs. Bessie Smithers, a sister, and Martin Smithers told of the identification of the body. Dr. Otto H. Schultz of New York, Coroner Shrady's physician, said that in his opinion death was due to drowning. The bruise at the base of the skull was sufficient to cause unconsciousness. There were scratches upon the body which could not have been caused by its being dragged out of the water. Dr. Charles B. Converse, the Coroner's physician of Hudson County, gave similar testimony.

Bernard Walsh, the undertaker of Harrison, in whose morgue the body lay for some time, told of the failure of the husband to identify the body of his wife.

"He looked like a man who expected to find something and did find it," said the witness, but this was objected to. Alexander Simpson, counsel for Whitmore, brought out on cross-examination that Whitmore had first seen the body by lantern light and that subsequently he had been permitted to look for marks of identification in daylight.

When Gus C. Roeder, a reporter, was cross-examined by Mr. Simpson the latter tried to make Mr. Roeder say that he had told Whitmore not to identify the body while other reporters were about. This he refused to say, though he admitted that another reporter with him on the story might have done so.

Joseph M. Branegan, the Police Magistrate of Harrison, who had detained Whitmore for several days, said that Whitmore had told him that his wife had worn her rings on the day of her disappearance. He had also said that some of the letters received by Mrs. Whitmore's relatives had been written by Elliott, the brakeman, though later he had said that they had been written by Lynch, a Philadelphia fireman. Whitmore had admitted that he himself had sent the telegrams signed "Lena."

Mr. Vickers tried to get in evidence through Harrison's Chief of Police, Michael Rogers, a statement made by Whitmore to the police in Brooklyn and one made to the police in Harrison. These, Mr. Vickers said afterward, would have shown that Whitmore had described minutely the rings his wife wore upon her disappeaance, and that the statement made in Harrison would have proved that Whitmore had described the jewels after the police had found a saloon keeper in Brooklyn with whom Whitmore himself had left them for safe keeping. Mr. Vickers could not get these statements in, however, because the chief "could not remember." The trial will go on to-day.

FOOD.

DR. TALKS OF FOOD

Pres. of Board of Health.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food, known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.

"From overwork, I suffered several years with malnutrition, palpitation of the heart, and loss of sleep. Last Summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short time after I commenced its use the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, my heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out, and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth.

"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can gainsay but that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Any one who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured and may thereby know the facts as to its true worth." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WOMAN'S BODY IN SWAMP.

Screams Heard and Police Think It a Second Whitmore Case.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOUCESTER, N. J., May 25.—The murder of Mrs. Helena Whitmore, who was killed and cast into "Lamp Black" Swamp, near Newark, last December, was recalled by the New Jersey police, who found the body of a woman in the mud along Big Timber Creek, near Gloucester, yesterday. Harvey Moore, a Gloucester fisherman, told the police that he was certain that the woman had been murdered late Saturday night.

"I was out rowing between 11 o'clock and midnight Saturday," Moore told the officers, "and saw two persons alight from a trolley car at the Camden end of the trestle which spans Big Timber Creek. One wore a man's straw hat and the other appeared to be a woman, although I could not be certain.

"The car went on, and I was drifting with the tide when I heard a scream from the shore. It was a woman's scream. She called loudly several times, but I could not make out the words. I rowed toward shore. The cries ceased, and when I pulled along the trestle I could see no one."

Coroner Hunter found no marks of violence on the body to-day. He said the woman might have been murdered or have been a suicide, and the inquest resulted in an open verdict of "Death from means unknown." The woman was about thirty years old and of refined appearance. She was five feet four inches tall and weighing 110 pounds. Her eyes were brown, her hair black. The clothing consisted of a small black coat, a black skirt with a red loop, a white shirt waist, a white lace collar into which were stuck two pearl pins, three underskirts, one blue with white stripes, one black, and one white; button shoes, black lisle stockings, and a dark leather belt with an oxidized buckle in the shape of a woman's head.

All the clothing bore the name of a department store in Philadelphia, and the police believe the woman came from Philadelphia.

PHILIP MURDER TRIAL STARTS.

New Yorker Shot Cabman at Washington a Year Ago.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The trial of Gaston C. Philip, well known in New York and Washington, and son of a prominent family, who a year ago shot and killed Frank B. Macaboy, a cab driver, was begun to-day before Justice Job Barnard, in Criminal Court No. 2.

His plea is self-defense. It is said that testimony of a sensational character will be brought out by the prosecution.

The two men came to the Arlington Hotel May 18, 1907, where Philip was a guest, after an all-night ride in the latter's automobile. It is said that Philip and Macaboy had quarreled over a fee the latter demanded for acting as guide. Philip entered the hotel, and was followed to his room soon after by Macaboy. An altercation occurred in a corridor, and a shot was fired. A clerk found Macaboy on the floor with Philip leaning over him, pistol in hand. A bullet had entered Macaboy's chest near the heart.

The principal witnesses are employes of the hotel, members of Macaboy's family, and hospital attendants. Since his release under heavy bail, Philip has been living at Claverack, N. Y., where the Philips have a country home.

When court convened the work of obtaining a jury was begun, there being eleven jurymen in the box when the panel was exhausted. An adjournment was taken until to-morrow to obtain an extra panel of fifty talesmen.

MAY HAVE BEEN MURDERED.

Edgewater, N. J., Authorities Find Body of Drowned Man in North River.

The body of a man about 50 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighing about 150 pounds, was found floating in the North River off Edgewater, N. J., late last evening, and after it had been examined by the Jersey Coroner's physicians they decided that marks on the head were probably made before it entered the water. One was a deep wound in the middle of the forehead. The body was clothed in a black suit and blue shirt.

It had evidently been in the water about three weeks. The only mark of identification to be found in the pockets of the clothing was a postal card addressed "August Wasserman, New York." There was no street number.

WOMAN JUMPS FROM A ROOF.

Unidentified Suicide Wore a Handsome Gown and Considerable Jewelry.

An unidentified woman jumped from the roof of a seven-story building at 252 East Seventy-seventh Street last night and was killed. She wore a handsome tailor-made suit of blue serge, a black hat and silk waist, and carried two pocketbooks, one containing $22 and the other $2.44 and a latchkey.

Michael Phillips, who lives directly across the street, saw the woman on the roof of 252. She seemed to be kneeling, and her hands were pointing upward. Then he heard a scream, and the figure plunged down to the pavement. It fell within a few feet of three men who were talking in the street.

The body was taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station. On the woman's left hand was a wedding ring, engraved with the initials "F. R. H." On her right arm was a heavy gold bracelet, and she wore a gold chain around her neck. She carried a handkerchief marked "E." Nobody in the house from which the woman jumped could identify her. From her actions she appeared to be a widow.

The police think she selected that particular building because it is the highest one in the neighborhood. They expect to find that she lived thereabout.

MRS. GUNNESS FLED IN MAN'S CLOTHES?

Mayor Darrow Gets Information from a Former Resident of Indiana.

DEAD GIRL MAE REILLY?

Theory That Mrs. Gunness Put In the Ruins the Body of Missing Rochester Girl.

LAPORTE, Ind., May 25.—That the body of Mae Reilly, who disappeared from Rochester, N. Y., last Fall, was put in the ruins of her house by Mrs. Gunness, believing it would be taken for her own, is the latest theory advanced by Attorneys Darrow and Worden, the attorneys for Ray Lamphere. The attorneys say they have obtained evidence to substantiate such a belief.

That Mrs. Gunness escaped in man's clothing from her "death farm" is the statement made in a letter from a man in Arkansas to Mayor Darrow. The writer, whose name is withheld, is known to Mayor Darrow, having formerly lived in Marshall County, this State, and therefore credence is placed in his statements. This man positively declares that Mrs. Gunness escaped, and that he had a letter from her May 3, five days after she, according to the official findings of Coroner Mack, was burned to death.

The writer says he will produce this letter and turn over to the officers other letters and will also give additional information regarding her if he is personally interviewed by the officers either in Laporte or at his home in Arkansas.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 25.—Chief of Police Hayden received a communication last week from the Sheriff of Laporte County, Ind., asking for information of Mae Reilly of Troup Street, Rochester, who was supposed to have disappeared from this city. At the Troup Street address no trace of the woman could be found, and the police were unable to locate any of her relatives in this city.

POMMERY "Sec" AND Brut
THE STANDARD FOR CHAMPAGNE QUALITY.

USEFUL HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

A COAT of Natural Jap-a-Lac applied over old or new linoleum or oil cloth will double its life, by preserving the original coat of varnish which would otherwise soon be washed or worn off.

WEATHER BEATEN front doors are revived and beautified when coated with Jap-a-Lac, and "newness follows the brush." It is best to use the color nearest that of the old finish.

WINDOW and DOOR screens should be coated with Jap-a-Lac each spring, using the Brilliant Black on the wire, and the Mahogany, Oak, Cherry or Walnut on the frames. It gives them new life and the wire cloth is protected from rust.

PORCH FURNITURE should be protected and beautified each spring with Jap-a-Lac. It is best to use the color of the old finish; but if you wish to change the color, use Red or Green Jap-a-Lac.

WICKER FURNITURE coated with Mahogany, Ox-Blood Red, Malachite Green or Gloss White Jap-a-Lac, looks better than new.

WATER PIPES, furnace fronts, radiators, hot water tanks and iron fences are preserved and beautified with the use of Jap-a-Lac. Use the Gold, Aluminum, Dead Black or Brilliant Black.

PICTURE FRAMES, candelabra, gas fixtures, lamps, etc., given a coat of Gold, Aluminum or Dead Black Jap-a-Lac, are renewed almost beyond belief;—the Dead Black produces that beautiful wrought-iron effect.

OLD AUTOMOBILES, carriages, wagons, agricultural implements, etc., Jap-a-Lac-ed with either Brilliant Black, Red, Green or Empire Blue, look 100% better, and are given new life. The cost is nominal, and the work can be done by an inexperienced person.

JAP-A-LAC is a household necessity, and can be used in a hundred and one ways, from "cellar to garret," and is especially adapted for finishing old or new floors and woodwork. Ask your paint dealer.

DECREE OF DIVORCE FOR MRS. VANDERBILT

Gets Custody of Her Son and Right to Remarry, Which Is Denied to Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

MME. RUIZ'S NAME IN CASE

Nothing in the Papers Referring to Alimony or Any Financial Arrangement.

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman signed yesterday an interlocutory decree of divorce in favor of Mrs. Ellen French Vanderbilt against her husband, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt will be free to remarry in three months' time, the statutory period which must elapse before the divorce decree can be made final. Mr. Vanderbilt is forbidden to marry again.

The child of the marriage, William Henry Vanderbilt, who was born on Nov. 24, 1901, is to remain in his mother's care, but arrangements may be made whereby Mr. Vanderbilt may have access to his son at certain specified times. No mention is made in any of the records of the case as to what financial arrangements were made between the pair, nor is the question of alimony touched upon.

The interlocutory decree was signed on the report of David McClure, who was appointed referee to take testimony. He found in favor of Mrs. Vanderbilt. The decree directs that the "said parties and each of them be freed from the obligations" of the marriage, and that it be dissolved by reason of the defendant's misconduct.

After the decree had been signed, the record was given into the care of Clerk Smith of Part III., Special Term. For a time it was not known whether the testimony and other papers in the case, with the exception of the decree, had been ordered sealed by the court, but upon application to Justice O'Gorman it was found that he had refused to order the sealing of the papers.

The complaint showed that Mrs. Vanderbilt charged her husband with misconducting himself with an unknown woman while traveling on his private car, the Wayfarer, from Richmond, Va., to Norfolk, Va., on or about Oct. 17, 18, 19, or 20, 1906. Then followed the usual statutory declaration that Mrs. Vanderbilt had not condoned the offense. Mr. Vanderbilt made a general denial of his wife's charges.

The testimony taken at the hearings before Referee McClure was confined solely to this one charge against Mr. Vanderbilt. The principal witness for Mrs. Vanderbilt was Harry Kempster, her husband's valet.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was the second witness. She was questioned only as to her marriage to the defendant, and the fact that there was a child. Among the other witnesses for the plaintiff was Thomas Benedict Clarke, Jr., a banker. He told of Mr. Vanderbilt introducing him to a woman named Ruiz, who later in the testimony is also referred to as Mlle. Flores. There were two other witnesses whose testimony was merely formal.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who is accounted the richest of the younger set of millionaires, was born on Oct. 20, 1877. He married Miss Ellen French on Jan. 11, 1901. The first rumors of their marital differences were heard about two years ago, and on April 21 last the news that Mrs. Vanderbilt had begun divorce proceedings against her husband was made public by the appointment of David McClure as referee to take testimony in the case. On that day Mr. Vanderbilt left for England, where he has been ever since.

LAUNCH NEW CHARITY BOAT.

Crowd at West New Brighton to See the Lowell Take the Water.

The Department of Charities boat the Lowell, named in honor of Mrs. Josephine Shaw Lowell, and built at a cost of $75,000, was launched yesterday from the yards of the F. A. Verdon Company, West New Brighton, S. I. About 1,000 persons saw the launching, which was also attended by Commissioner of Charities Hebberd, President Cromwell of the Borough of Richmond, and a number of other city officials and charity workers. Miss Ruth Hoadley, daughter of the Rev. James H. Hoadley, pastor of the Thirteenth Street Presbyterian Church, named the vessel, breaking a bottle of wine on the boat's bow as she slid down the ways.

Before the launching there was speaking in a great tent erected alongside the ways by Commissioner Hebberd, President Cromwell, Dr. Edward T. Devine, and Dr. Hoadley. The launching came off without a hitch. The guests departed on the Department of Charities boats Fidelity and Thomas S. Brennan.

The Lowell is especially arranged for carrying the sick. She will make daily trips between the different boroughs transporting patients. She is 130 feet long, 30 feet beam, and 10 feet draught. Her contract speed is 12 knots an hour.

INVOKES NEW COMMERCE LAW

Tobacco Merchant Gets Damages Against the B. & O. Railroad.

An action of importance to shippers of freight came before Municipal Court Justice Sturges in the Ninth District Court yesterday, when Louis Barth, a leaf tobacco merchant, sued the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company for damage by wetting caused to shipment of 200 samples of Wisconsin leaf tobacco, which came from Stoughton, Wis., to this city.

It was proved that the goods left Stoughton in good condition, but on arrival here they were found to be badly damaged. The court, in its decision, construed for the first time the recent amendment to the inter-State commerce law, and held that the Baltimore & Ohio Company was alone responsible, and entered judgment against it accordingly. L. Boehm appeared for Barth.

LOST—ONE GOLD MINE.

Its Non-Arrival for Garden Exhibit Forces Postponement of Opening.

A Nevada gold mine, bound East on a fast freight of the Southern Pacific three weeks ago, has been lost, strayed, or stolen, and has caused the promoters of the International Mining Exposition Company a lot of trouble. The gold mine, consisting of quartz and the material for equipping a mine, is scheduled to figure as one of the chief attractions in a mining exhibit in Madison Square Garden.

Announcement had been made that the exhibition would be opened to the public last night, but there was no gold mine, so the doors remained closed. Those who bought tickets were told that the exposition would surely open on Friday afternoon.

Samuel P. Davis, Chairman of the Nevada State Mining Commission, arrived in town on Friday, and learning that the mine was missing, started to hunt for it. He learned that the Southern Pacific had taken the mine to Galveston and shipped it by steamer for New York. So it will probably show up later in the week. The exhibit, when it does get going, is likely to be interesting. Among other things there will be a rock-drilling contest between eight Western miners for prizes.

COW IN RAILWAY STATION.

Rushes Into Lackawanna Waiting Room, Then Runs Wild Outside.

Excitement was caused in the Lackawanna Railroad station in Hoboken yesterday afternoon when a cow that had escaped from a nearby stable rushed into the waiting room, which was full of passengers. Women ran screaming from the room, while a few brave men "shooed" the scared cow back into the street.

There it knocked over a fruit stand, scattering apples, oranges, bananas, and peanuts over the roadway.

In the excitement while the cow was charging down the street, two men fell off the ferry slip, but were rescued. The trouble was ended by Thomas McAleer, who lassooed the cow and milked her in front of the ferry house. Then she became quiet.

AUDITS BOOKS, THEN SUICIDE.

Julius Katz Arranges All His Accounts and Then Takes Poison.

After auditing and putting in order the books of several Hebrew organizations of which he was the Treasurer, Julius Katz of 73 East Eighty-fifth Street committed suicide yesterday at his home by taking poison. He had been despondent because of ill-health.

Several months ago Katz was informed by physicians that he had cancer of the stomach and was advised to prepare for an operation. He was saving money to pay the specialists and had about enough money put aside when his daughter became ill with meningitis. The money he had saved went to pay doctor bills for the daughter.

Katz had suffered intense pain for several days. On Sunday afternoon he got the books of several small societies of which he was the Treasurer and put them in shape. Early yesterday morning Mrs. Katz was aroused by groans and found her husband writhing in pain. Dr. Pearce of the Presbyterian Hospital was called, and he said Katz had taken some kind of poison. He was hurried away to the hospital, where he died a short time later.

EXECUTION AS OBJECT LESSON

POTTSVILLE, Penn., May 25.—In order to teach the foreign population of the coal regions a lesson, Sheriff Clay Evans has decided to make the execution of Felix Radzius Tuesday public, so far as the leading representatives of the Poles, Hungarians, Slavs, Lithuanians, Russians, and Italians are concerned.

Tickets of admission have been given to these men to see Radzius die. Sheriff Evans believes that their recital of the event to their countrymen will do much to prevent murders in this section of the coal regions.

Mae Wood Out of the Tombs on Bail.

Mae C. Wood, who has been in the Tombs since Thursday, when she was committed by Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman after he had given his decision in her divorce suit against Senator Platt, was released yesterday. She was taken before Justice Greenbaum, who accepted bail, furnished by the American Surety Company. Mrs. Wood signed the bail bond "Mae C. Wood-Platt." Her case was not presented to the Grand Jury yesterday, owing to the absence of Assistant District Atorney Frank Garvan. It will come before that body Thursday.

STRIKER CONFESSES USING DYNAMITE

Conductor in Cleveland Tells Police Chief He Wrecked a Car.

EXPLOSIVE FROM THE UNION

Vice President of the Union Says He Does Not Know the Man and Confession Must Be a Mistake.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, May 25.—Chief of Police Kohler announced to-night that Otto Posehke, a striking conductor on the St. Clair line, had confessed that he dynamited a St. Clair Avenue car Thursday night, and said that he got the dynamite at the strike headquarters, opposite the St. Clair car barns.

Chief Kohler said he also had a confession from James J. Stanard, another St. Clair Avenue striking conductor, who admitted showing Posehke where the dynamite was hidden.

Two other St. Clair Avenue strikers, John Bleckert and Kimball B. Sackett, he said, had confessed that they burned and cut feed wires.

Vice President Behner of the Car Men's Union said: "I do not know the men reported to have confessed. Something must be wrong. If these men are strikers and are found guilty I will dismiss them from the union."

President Dupont of the Municipal Traction Company to-day announced that the motormen and conductors now employed by his company had, by an overwhelming vote, declined to submit their rights to seniority of position to arbitration. Therefore it had been decided that the men who worked during the strike should have first choice of runs. Many of the strikers, it is said, returned to work to-day, accepting whatever runs were assigned to them.

TAG DAY IN YONKERS.

Homeopathic and Maternity Hospital Gets $10,000 by Quaint Plan.

Nearly every one in the streets in Yonkers yesterday afternoon wore one of the little red pasteboard crosses indicating that he had contributed to Tag Day fund for the benefit of the Homeopathic and Maternity Hospital. It is estimated that $10,000 was raised.

From early morning the 300 chaperons and the 400 or 500 assistants, all dressed in white with red crosses on their arms and white caps, circulated through the city to receive contributions. Many persons in the early morning declined the little red crosses, which were given in return. They soon found out their mistake, for they could not get far without being held up again for a contribution.

The wearing of the emblem made one immune from taggers, and it became quite a joke to steal a man's cross and thus force him to contribute again.

Mrs. Dr. R. R. Trotter, at the Hollywood Inn, was Chairman of the day, and her chief assistants were Mrs. F. D. Blake and Mrs. J. C. Walker.

Five Hurt in Auto Smash.

Two women and three men were injured early yesterday when an automobile struck two farm wagons on the Hudson Boulevard near Hamilton Avenue, North Bergen, N. J. The injured are Ida Gold of 219 Hill Street, West Hoboken; Elizabeth Carpenter of John Street, Union Hill; Louis Weluke of Main Street, Union Hill; Max Goldfern of Englewood, and Henry Kaiser, a policeman. None was dangerously hurt, but all were cut and bruised, and Policeman Kaiser had his collarbone broken. The automobile was driven by Frederick Tyson of 211 Plum Street, Union Hill. He was locked up. He was the only one to escape injury.

SLIP IN AUTO TEST CASE.

Writ Dismissed in Jersey Hearing on Technicality, but Prisoner Rearrested.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 25.—United States Judge William M. Lanning, late this afternoon dismissed the application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Richard H. Johnson of New York, who was arrested here last Friday while en route from New York to Philadelphia at the instance of the White Automobile Company to test the constitutionality of that feature of the Frelinghuysen Automobile law, requiring all persons touring in this State, whether residents or not, to have New Jersey licenses.

Capt. John J. Cleary, who made the arrest, testified to serving the warrant, and that Police Magistate Harris had held the prisoner in $200 bail. He testified that no bail was furnished, but that he had not detained the prisoner. The court refused to go further, saying that the case was not one for habeas corpus proceedings. So this attempt to test the automobile law in the Federal courts came to a sudden end.

Capt. Cleary, however, immediately rearrested Johnson, who was bailed before a Police Magistrate.

SUGGESTS MOVING PLATFORMS

One Way to Solve the Transportation Problem, Says B. J. Arnold.

Moving platforms as one solution of the transportation problem of the city are brought prominently forward in the report of Bion J. Arnold to the Public Service Commission. He points out the possibility of such platforms to be run in a subway at a speed of 12 miles per hour, each platform to carry 5,280 passengers for each mile of its length, thus having a carrying capacity of 62,500 passengers per hour.

"This capacity," says Mr. Arnold, "is more than twice the possible seating capacity of ten-car trains running on sixty-second headway with fifty seats per car; but the platform only moves at the rate of twelve miles per hour, whereas the train can move its patrons at an average schedule speed of twenty-five miles per hour. In other words, the train method of operation has the advantage of having double the speed of the platform method, and the platform method, on the other hand, has the advantage of having twice the seating capacity of the train method."

Preparing for Vanderbilt Race.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 25.—A. R. Pardington appeared before the Nassau County Supervisors this afternoon and discussed with them the chances of holding the 1908 Vanderbilt Cup race over the roads of this county. He said formal application would probably be made on Monday. He spoke of policing the course with troops. The Supervisors seemed favorably inclined toward the race.

TEA PARTIES SPLIT Y. W. C. A. OF PARIS

Mrs. Ruth Field, Once Associated with Helen Gould, Forced to Give Up Secretaryship.

RELIGION SUBORDINATED

Devoted Her Energies to Social Side of the Organization—Many Members, Sympathizing with Her, Resign.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 25.—The Anglo-American branch of the Young Women's Christian Association is now in the throes of a factional fight which may result in a dissolution of the old organization and the formation of an independent society.

The quarrel arose over a difference between Mrs. John J. Hoff, the wealthy President of the association, and Mrs. Ruth Fuller Field, who at the time was Secretary of the organization.

Mrs. Field was once the private secretary of Helen Gould. She gave up an important post in America in order to accept the Secretaryship of the Paris branch of the Young Women's Association. Mrs. Hoff was in America at the time Mrs. Field left New York for Paris.

Mrs. Field inaugurated numerous changes in the association. For one thing, she gave more importance to the social side of the organization than ever had been given to it before. She declared that her theory was that if the association made a pleasant home for English and American working girls in Paris the religious interests of the institution would take care of themselves. Informal tea parties, literary evenings, and amateur theatricals followed one another in quick succession.

In the course of time Mrs. Hoff returned from America. She always had taken deep interest in the religious life of the working girls in Paris, and after she had been back in Paris a little while she told her friends she was much shocked at the turn taken in the association's affairs during her absence.

Presently she summoned the new Secretary to give an explanation of her management. Mrs. Field maintained she was right in promoting the social welfare of her charges, and said she made no pretense of teaching religion. Mrs. Hoff replied that to teach religion was the chief end of the Young Women's Christian Association, and concluded with asking Mrs. Field to resign.

Mrs. Field resigned immediately. She is now engaged in the organization of a self-help club in which American and English girl stenographers in Paris and other young business women are to find social diversion as well as moral training. The young women of the Young Women's Christian Association are much wrought up over the loss of their Secretary. Many already have resigned, and others threaten to resign.

FALLIERES REACHES LONDON.

French President Warmly Welcomed—Dines at Buckingham Palace.

LONDON, May 25.—King Edward, the Prince of Wales, other members of the royal family, Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey, Premier Asquith, and Home Secretary Gladstone welcomed M. Fallières, the President of the French Republic, when he arrived at the Victoria Station this afternoon to return the visits which King Edward and other members of the British royal family have paid to the head of the republic in Paris.

The station, which was closed to the general public, had been converted by florists into a huge conservatory. As the special train bringing M. Fallières and the members of his party from Dover ran into the station, the King, the Prince of Wales, and all the army officers present stood at salute. His Majesty was the first to greet the French President, welcoming him like an old friend.

After the usual introductions, a procession of state carriages, with postillions, was formed and proceeded to York House, that portion of St. James's Palace where M. Fallières will reside during his stay in London. The King, M. Fallères, the Prince of Wales, and the Duke of Connaught occupied the first carriage. The streets along which the procession passed were effectively decorated, and there was a great display of the military. The large crowds that had assembled gave the visitor a most enthusiastic welcome.

The King and Queen entertained their French guests to-night at a banquet at the palace. It was a brilliant affair and characteristic of great state functions. The banqueting hall was beautifully appointed, the famous Windsor gold plate and fine candelabra being particularly noticeable. The dinner service was green Sèvres, and out of compliment to the guests the floral decorations throughout were La France roses. The guests included numerous peers, Ministers, and ex-Ministers.

President Fallières, in replying to King Edward's toast, expressed the great pleasure the visit afforded him, confirming as it did the cordial relations existing between the two countries. In behalf of the French Nation, he drank to the prosperity of Great Britain and the development of this auspicious friendship.

President Fallières will visit the Franco-British Exhibition to-morrow. His great popular reception will come to him Wednesday, when he goes to the Guildhall to be the guest of honor there at a luncheon provided by the Corporation of the City of London.

DECIDED IN YALE'S FAVOR.

Blount's Will Bequeathing $350,000 to University Is Probated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 25.—It was settled to-day that the bequest of an estate valued at $400,000 to Yale University contained in the will of Archibald Henry Blount holds good. This determination came in the form of a judgment delivered in the Probate Court that Mr. Blount was of sound mind when he made his will, June 4, 1907, twelve days before he died. Against this judgment no protest was made nor was any notification filed by relatives of a contest of the will, so that it may be said that there are no longer any obstacles to the university's entering into the enjoyment of the Blount bequest.

Henry Stoddard, one of the counsel for Yale Corporation, and Lee McClung, the Treasurer of Yale University, told THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent to-night they were much gratified at the assistance given them by Mr. Blount's relatives while here in connection with the final settlement of the case.

When the expenses in connection with the Probate Court and the settlement of the estate shall have been deducted the university will receive about $350,000.

"The greater portion of this sum," said Mr. McClung, "was invested in British and colonial securities, a large portion of which is gilt-edged, but something like $50,000 is represented by real estate. This last portion—real estate of some 400 acres in Herefordshire—was sold to-day and realized a good price. I shall remain here ten days longer for the purpose of looking after the securities, some of which we shall sell now, and others hold for a better market.

"So far as we can learn, Mr. Blount had no reason to leave his money to Yale, further than that when he visited America some ten years ago he was greatly pleased with the country, and especially with its educational methods, and believed Yale to be a representative American institution. As he was very careful with his money, even to the point of closeness, the fact that he was impressed by the more generous expenditures of some of his relatives may also have influenced him in making the bequest."

Mr. Stoddart has been looking after the legal points of the case, and has had the assistance of several well-known English solicitors. He returns to America Wednesday.

"The English country is delightful," he said to-day, "but this London combination of foggy, dust-laden, petroleum-smelling atmosphere is too much for me."

COUNTESS SZECHENYI HAPPY.

Delighted with the Attentions Shown Her by Hungarian Aristocrats.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, May 25.—The Count and Countess Széchényi are having a very gay time at Budapest, being seen at almost every social event. The season is now at its height.

The Countess is highly delighted with the attentions shown her by the women of the Hungarian aristocracy.

Her mother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., was the guest Saturday of the aristocratic Park Club of Budapest, and greatly enjoyed the polo contests that took place on the club's grounds.

SUE PORTUGUESE ROYALTIES.

Tradesmen Can't Collect Bills—Dowager Queen Owes Butcher $210.

LISBON, May 25.—The royal household of Portugal is being besieged by its creditors, and the newspapers of Lisbon are filled with the notices of suits brought by tradespeople against its members. The courts already have awarded a butcher $210 and costs, the amount of an unpaid meat bill, against Dowager Queen Maria Pia and the Duke of Oporto.

This situation arises from the fact that the members of the royal household have not received any money whatever from the State since King Carlos and his son were assassinated. The explanation of this lies in the fact that the new civil list cannot be approved until after the financial accounting of the reign of the late King Carlos is completed, and this is held up by threatened revelations from Senhor Carvalho, who was Minister of Finance under ex-Premier Franco.

The official figures of the deficit for last year show the amount to be only $300,000. This has convinced the public of the honesty of ex-Premier Franco's administration.

SEEKING RUNAWAY PRINCESS.

Amelie Louise of Austria Said to Have Eloped with an Auto Agent.

VIENNA, May 25.—The Austrian Princess whose elopement a couple of days ago caused a great sensation in Vienna is said here to be Princess Amelie Louise, sister of Prince Emile Egon von Fürstenberg, head of the Roenigshof branch of the Fürstenberg family.

It is stated she ran away with the local agent of an automobile company named Kozian. The police are actively at work trying to locate the fugitives.

The Princess is 24 years old. The family has large holdings in Bohemia and a residence in Vienna.

CUBAN ELECTIONS AUG. 1.

To Choose Provincial and Municipal Officers—No Yellow Fever on Island.

HAVANA, May 25.—Gov. Magoon has issued a decree that the combined provincial and municipal elections shall take place Aug. 1, each province electing a Governor and eight Councilmen, and the municipalities electing an Alcalde and a proportionate number of Councilmen. The Governors will hold office until Feb. 24, 1913, and the Mayors until Aug. 1, 1912.

Major J. R. Kean of the Medical Corps reports that not a single case of yellow fever exists in Cuba.

ROME, May 25.—Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee was received by the Pope in private audience to-day. The Pontiff was very gracious to his visitor and said he was glad to see him in Rome.

LONDON, May 25.—The conference in this city of representatives of the Atlantic steamship companies which opened to-day was very brief. It took only a few hours to dispose of a number of minor questions unsettled in the conference held earlier in the year. None of the points settled is of public interest. The differences between the German and the Italian lines with regard to steerage business was left to the lines interested to settle at a future meeting.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 25.—There is a possibility that King Edward will prolong his projected visit to Russia and visit Emperor Nicholas at Peterhof. The original programme restricted the coming of the British sovereign to Reval.

LONDON, May 25.—A general ballot of the men involved in the shipbuilding strike was held to-day and resulted in favor of accepting the terms offered by the employers. Consequently work will be resumed May 28.

MME. GOULD TO WED SAGAN ON JUNE 14

Authoritative Denials That the Couple Were Married by Hoboken Justice of the Peace.

CASTELLANE MAKES THREATS

Reported That After Publication of Banns Next Sunday He Will Ask for Custody of Children.

PARIS, May 25.—Mme. Anna Gould and Prince Helie de Sagan will be married two weeks from next Sunday. Their banns will be published next Sunday, so that the French law requiring publication of banns ten days in advance of a wedding will be complied with generously.

There will be a civil ceremony and also a religious ceremony, the latter to be performed by a Protestant minister. The couple will be married under what is known in France as the "separation of property régime," each party remaining in absolute control of his or her own fortune, which in the event of death will not pass to the survivor, but to the heirs of the deceased.

After the marriage the Prince and Princess de Sagan will reside in France, the idea of selling Mme. Gould's magnificent mansion on the Avenue Malakoff and her country seat, the Château Marais, and living abroad having been abandoned.

M. Cachard of the firm of Coudert Brothers, attorney for Mme. Anna Gould, who is engaged in preparing the contract for the marriage, authorizes an unqualified denial of the story that the couple were secretly married at Hoboken on the eve of their departure from America last month.

Count Boni de Castellane, the divorced husband of Mme. Gould, is prepared the moment the banns are published to bring suit to transfer the custody of the Castellane children to himself on the ground that Prince de Sagan is not fit to be their stepfather. The Count, however, evidently is not yet apprised of the exact situation, as he imagines that Mme. Gould is still hesitating with regard to the marriage. He counts upon the continued opposition of George Gould, who, he says, is expected in Paris within a fortnight.

There is an intimation from sources friendly to Mme. Gould that Count Boni would not dare bring suit for the custody of his children, as it would assuredly provoke the revelation of certain damaging matters affecting him which heretofore have been held in reserve.

W. C. Budenbender, the Hoboken Justice of the Peace who was quoted as stating that he married Prince Helie de Sagan and Mme. Anna Gould in his office in Hoboken, denied positively yesterday that any such ceremony had been performed by him. He said he had never seen the Prince de Sagan nor Mme. Gould, and that all the stories printed about an alleged mysterious midnight visit to his little office, at 404 Washington Street, Hoboken, by the Prince and Mme. Gould were inventions and nothing more.

Justice Budenbender's statement followed a demand that he appear before the Hoboken Board of Health to-morrow and explain why, if he had performed the marriage ceremony, he did not file a certificate, as required by law.

FRANCO-GERMAN RELATIONS.

Bound to Improve, von Holstein Says—But Frankfort Treaty Must Stand.

BERLIN, May 25.—Baron von Holstein, who for many years was Director of the Division of Higher Politics of the Foreign Office, and who, since his retirement in 1906, has continued to exercise a certain influence in the foreign policy of Germany, discusses Franco-German relations in a remarkable interview made public to-day. This interview was probably issued with the approval of the Foreign Office, insomuch as it appears in the Norddeutscher Zeitung.

Referring to the efforts of private persons to bring about a Franco-German understanding, the Baron says:

"I consider the time will come when the hatrde of the two nations will diminish because it causes useless expenditures. I should regard such efforts as entirely inoffensive if it were not for the occasional cropping up in the French press of a tendency to interpret them as the first symptoms of a disposition of the mind which eventually will lead to a revision of the treaty of Frankfort. This current of thought could only bring disillusionment and a consequent recrudescence of bitterness.

"I am sure that Germany as a nation would reject with the utmost energy the idea of such a revision. It would be an affectation to dismiss the possibility of the existence of a certain class in Germany which would welcome changes in the treaty as one of the most efficacious methods to bring about the decomposition of the empire, yet an overwhelming majority of Germans are prepared to defend the terms of the Frankfort treaty, and in a similar manner they are ready to defend the empire.

"I am unable to give Emperor William's views on this subject, but I believe myself in a position to state that his Majesty is in perfect accord with the majority of his subjects in maintaining the integrity of his grandfather's work. I think the peace of the present day has a splendid chance of continuing. So many influences and counter-influences would be set at work in the event of war that nobody can foresee the developments which a European war would have in Europe and elsewhere."

MAY KILL A FEW GERMANS.

Mulai Hafid Will Do It if Necessary to Get German Intervention.

PARIS, May 25.—Mulai Hafid, the usurping Sultan of Morocco, is quoted by the correspondent of the Matin as saying that he would, if necessary, have several German subjects killed in order to secure the intervention of France's rival in Morocco.

FEZ, May 25.—Mulai Hafid's envoys have returned here with a letter from Gen. Bagdani, Chief of the army of the Sultan Abd-el-Aziz, announcing his intention to bombard Mequinez. The usurping Sultan became furious at the definance and placed Gen. Bagdani's brother under arrest. He is now engaged in raising an army among the neighboring tribes, with the avowed purpose of exterminating Gen. Bagdani and his forces.

THE BIGGEST CLOCK STARTS.

Mayor Wittpenn of Jersey City Presses Button for Colgate's Timepiece.

At precisely 3 P. M. yesterday Mayor Wittpenn of Jersey City touched the electric button that set in motion the big clock that has been set up on the roof of Colgate & Co.'s soap factory.

The clock, which is the largest timepiece in the world and has already been described in THE TIMES, is located on top of a tower at the southeast corner of the big plant, which covers an entire block. The clock faces the river, and the dial, which will be illuminated at night by electric lights, will be visible for several miles. The dial is 38 feet in diameter. The hour hand is 15 feet long, and the minute hand 20 feet long.

Col. Austin Colgate introduced Mayor Wittpenn, Richard Colgate, Joseph A. Dear, and Mr. Lapham, representing the Seth Thomas Company, which built the clock, as the speakers. At the conclusion of the speeches the invited guests, numbering about fifty, inspected the plant. Photographs of the clock were distributed as souvenirs.

FAVOR ROME PORT PLAN.

Italian Engineer Gets Local Support in Project for Ship Canal.

Paolo Tuccimel, the Italian engineer, who is in this country in the interest of the committee of capitalists and prominent men of Rome who have launched the proposition of making Rome a port, arrived in this city yesterday from Washington and had a consultation with the Italian Consul, Count Reybaudi Massilia.

They immediately made arrangements for a conference with the leading members of the Italian Chamber of Commerce to be held at the National Italian Club on June 4, at which Mr. Tuccimei will explain the details of the projece. Arrangements will also be made for the organization in this city of a committee to cooperate with the Roman committee in the work. Similar organizations have already been organized by Mr. Tuccimei in Philadelphia, Washington, and Boston.

Contrary to the impression that has been circulated that the Italian Government is not with the municipality in the movement, it has agreed to build the seaport at the Mediterranean end of the proposed canal, which will cost many millions of dollars. Work on the highway and electric road from the sea to Rome has already been begun by the municipality, but the plans for the canal have not yet been completed. It is hoped that the entire system will be opened by 1911 in time for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the making of Rome the capital of Italy.

FLORIDA READY FOR 'BATTLE.'

Monitor Which Will Be Target Sails from Norfolk Navy Yard.

NORFOLK, Va., May 25.—The United States monitor Florida sailed from the Norfolk Navy Yard to-day for Hampton Roads preparatory to the gunnery tests in which the Florida will serve as target ship. The monitor Arkansas and the torpedo boat Morris, which will participate in the tests, accompanied the Florida.

These tests will begin Wednesday on the old southern drill grounds in lower Chesapeake Bay. The tugs Mohawk and Rocket have been detached from the navy yard for use by newspaper correspondents and others designated by the Secretary of the Navy to observe the gunnery tests at close range.

The Florida is ready for the "battle." In the tower built on the monitor for the tests there have been placed "dummy" men, who will act as targets for sharpshooting from the other vessels.

The torpedoes to be shot at the Florida by the Morris will be repelled by a "torpedo net" about the monitor below her water line. This will be the first test of the "torpedo net" by the American Navy.

CHILDREN VISIT FLEET.

Admiral Sperry and Senior Officers Guests at Banquet—Ohio Detached.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 25.—Thirty thousand school children to-day visited and overran the warships of the Atlantic Fleet without a single mishap.

The most important social event attending the visit of the fleet took place to-night at the Rainier Club, where a banquet was given in honor of Rear Admiral Sperry and his senior officers.

From a spectacular point of view tomorrow will be a big day in the fleet's sojourn. Six thousand men will be landed from the ships and, attended by artillery from Fort Lawton, will march through the principal streets of the city.

The Ohio was detached from the fleet to-day and sailed to the navy yard at Bremerton, where she will take stores aboard preparatory to her return to San Francisco to be docked.

SEAMEN DESERTED, THEY SAY.

Were Destitute in Hospital at Dominique When Whaler Sailed.

Two forlorn looking whalers with a story to tell applied for aid to Shipping Commissioner Hanbury yesterday. They arrived destitute on Sunday as "Consul's men" on the steamer Korona. They walked to the Commissioner's office to find it closed, so spent the night in Battery Park.

The men are Amos Lucy and Jack Colby, and they said they were from the John R. Manta, out of New Bedford, for a cruise nine months ago. They, with four others, were sent to a hospital at Dominique, and deserted, they say, by their vessel, without receiving a cent of pay. They also claim a $70 share in the oil taken on the cruise.

The men were referred to the American Seamen's Friend Socity, which will undertake to right their wrongs.

Three Boys Hurt by Blasting Caps.

Three small boys were injured by the explosion of several blasting caps with which they were playing in the street in front of 4,428 Carpenter Avenue, the Bronx, early last evening, and taken to Fordham Hospital. The boys are Nathan Johnson, 8 years old, of 4,421 Carpenter Avenue; his brother Arthur, 7, and Edward Olsen, 5, of 3,434 Carpenter Avenue.

Arnold Vibrator.

FREE BOOKLET. "ASK FOR IT"

For Health and Beauty.

The Public Are Cordially Invited to Attend the Demonstration of the Arnold Vibrator, 424 Fifth Ave., corner 38th St.

Twenty-five very handsome, private demonstrating parlors with competent physicians, nurses, and masseurs in charge. We are glad to demonstrate free of cost The Arnold Vibrator for Health and Beauty.

It instantly relieves pain—rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, or any other similar ailment. Excellent for the complexion.

The Arnold Vibrator is the latest scientific method of giving Swedish movement and hand massage by mechanical means. With this little instrument you can give as powerful massage as the strongest expert masseur, with far greater efficiency and in one-tenth of the time.

The instrument is protected by United States Government patents. We are the original manufacturers, but, like all good things, there are cheap imitators and infringers. Look out for these so-called Vibrators.

The Arnold Vibrator increases the circulation of the blood in the small capillaries and stimulates the nerves. It is so simple even a child can use it.

GREAT FOR THE SCALP.

Keeps the hair and scalp healthy, prevents Baldness, Dandruff, etc.

By following the book of directions you can immediately relieve any kind of pain. You can secure perfect health, complexion, and figure.

Poor blood circulation anywhere in the body causes ill health, and the congested blood in the small capillaries causes pressure on the thousands of little nerves, thereby causing an ache or pain.

Massage with the Arnold Vibrator will immediately relieve an ache or pain in a natural way—it makes perfect blood circulation.

The Arnold Vibrator takes the place of drugs and medicines in successfully treating all of the common family ailments. It is particularly effective for children, whose little stomachs cannot stand drugs without permanent harm.

The Arnold Vibrator is effective in beautifying the complexion, because it exercises the skin to perfect health, rubs out all disfiguring wrinkles, cleanses and closes up unsightly pores, thus giving that perfect complexion which makes even irregular features wonderfully attractive.

It helps to assure a perfect figure by removing superfluous fat, exercising away the double chin or over-stoutness anywhere, for superfluous fat is unnatural; and by building up the figure into graceful curves by filling all hollow angles, for overthinness is unnatural.

The Arnold Vibrator has really become a household necessity where health, beauty and joyous spirits are estimated at their true worth. Anyone, anywhere, can use one, for it can be run by dry batteries, which we supply if you haven't the electric light in your home.

Use an Arnold Vibrator five minutes a day. You will get well and keep well—without drugs—by the natural way—massage.

REGRETS ROOSEVELT'S SCORN OF LAWYERS

A Knowledge of Law Would Have Aided the President, Says J. M. Beck.

TALKS TO COLUMBIA CLASS

College Seniors Celebrate with Speeches and Poetry—Vote The Times Most Popular Paper.

The seniors of Columbia College held their annual Class Day yesterday afternoon with parades around the campus, exercises in the gymnasium, and the planting of the ivy vine under the walls of the new college building, Hamilton Hall. All wore caps and gowns. Morningside Heights was thronged with college girls and friends of the seniors.

Class President Howard Fowler made an address, and John Neville Wheeler of Yonkers read the class history. The class poem was read by James H. Donohue. The ivy oration was delivered by William T. MacGreevy of Cleveland. Frederick Hamilton Rindg, Jr., was the valedictorian. He also received the alumni prize of $50 for the "most faithful and deserving member of the graduating class."

The statistics for the year were read. It was announced that THE TIMES was the class's most popular newspaper. The average weight of the class was 140 pounds, and the average height 5 feet 9 inches. Sixty-six per cent. of the class were smokers, and 59 per cent. drinkers. The statistics showed, however, that the most popular drink was water, chocolate ice-cream soda coming next, and whisky a strong third. The recommendations of the statistician, who based his observations on the result of voting, was that football was most needed by the college. Cheers greeted this.

President Butler watched himself caricatured when one of the students conferred a degree upon Kitchell Boorman. He was termed the "high financier" of the class, and so entitled to a special degree. The hood that went with the degree was made of a bulky potato sack.

The annual address to the Columbia Law School graduates was made by James M. Beck, ex-Assistant Attorney General of the United States. Mr. Beck said in part:

"In modern political discussions frequent reference is made by responsible leaders of thought to the supposed low tone of the bar. On more than one occasion President Roosevelt has referred slightingly to 'law honesty,' and in his annual message to Congress in 1905 he referred to the great need of 'a higher sense of ethical conduct, especially among business men and in the great profession of the law.'

"It is to be regretted that Mr. Roosevelt did not carry out his original intention of studying law with Joseph H. Choate. Had he sat, as Saul, at the feet of that great Gamaliel of the law, he would have had a better opinion of law and lawyers, and would doubtless have become a mose effective and vigorous advocate. Moreover, I am tempted to add, a wider knowledge of the law would not have lessened the value of his public services.

"His political rival, Mr. Bryan, was even more emphatic in a recent address. He hoped that the day would come 'when we will not have so many men who will sell their souls to make grand larceny possible. Perhaps some time it will be less disgraceful for a lawyer to assist in gigantic robbery than for a highwayman to go out and hold up the wayfarer.'"

BARNARD'S CLASS DAY.

Ninety-six Girls in the Graduating Class—Elections to Phi Beta Kappa.

The class of 1908 of Barnard College held its class day exercises yesterday morning at 10 o'clock when the ninety-six seniors filed into the Columbia gymnasium, where the exercises were held.

Miss Ellen Kathryn O'Gorman, the class President, spoke the salutatory. Miss Margaret Hall Yates gave the class statistics.

The vote for the most popular girl in 1908 and the most popular girl now in college went to Miss Marguerite Newland. Miss Eleanor Curran and Miss Ellen O'Gorman were voted the prettiest girls in 1908. The biggest "kicker" was Miss Gertrude Stein; the noisiest girl, Miss Agnes Miller; the cleverest, Miss Dorothea Eltzner; the biggest worrier, Miss Ada Muller; the "Fluffy Ruffliest," Miss Florence Sammet; the best-dressed, Miss Olive Roe; the most famous in the future, Mrs. Helmina Jeidell, who is going to study medicine; the most sensible girl, Miss Jessie Houston, although three girls who dropped out of college to get married were voted close seconds. The most athletic and the most idealistic girl was voted to be Miss Florence Mastin.

The average age of the class at graduation was 21 years and 5 months. Miss Yates told on three girls in the class who are engaged. Many are going to teach, although one in answer to the query about "future occupation" gave an emphatic "not teaching." Several of the girls are going into settlement work, and some into society.

There followed the singing of the class day song, and then Mrs. Jeidell presented the class gift to the college, a large tea urn for the undergraduate study. Miss Adelaide Requa read the class will.

Miss Doty announced the elections to Phi Beta Kappa as follows:

Miss Clara Cecilia Eaton, Miss Dorothea Eltzner, Miss Ethel G. Everett, Mrs. Helen Loeb Kaufmann, (Mrs. Mortimer J. Kaufmann,) Miss Evelyn Blunt MacDonald, Miss Mabel Peterson, Miss Edith Cushing Richardson, Miss Florence Martha Wolff.

The exercises closed with the valedictory delivered by Miss Marguerite Newland.

STANDARD OIL TANK BLOWS UP

40,000 Gallons in Williamsburg Plant Burned—Explosion Like Earthquake.

Brooklyn firemen had a stubborn oil blaze to deal with yesterday in the Standard Oil Company's Williamsburg plant at North Thirteenth Street and Kent Avenue, when a tank containing 40,000 barrels of refined oil exploded from spontaneous combustion.

The tank was among a large number close together, and each having a capacity of from 30,000 to 50,000 gallons. When the explosion came half a dozen employes who were near by were stunned by the concussion. The explosion resembled an earthquake, shaking houses for several blocks around, and creating terror among the occupants, many of whom rushed into the streets.

Pending the arrival of the firemen employes formed a fire brigade, and with streams of water cooled down the surrounding tanks. This was kept up until all the oil from the tanks had been pumped through underground pipes to the company's refineries in Greenpoint and Long Island City.

The firemen aided the company's brigade until all the tanks and stills excepting the blazing one were out of danger. The fireboats David A. Boody and Seth Low also fought the blaze. Several firemen had their hair singed and faces burned. The fire burned itself out in about two hours.

OKLAHOMA BUSINESS RALLY.

State Conference Called to Devise Measure to Enlist Capital in State.

A movement looking to the enactment of legislation to place more lenient restrictions on the railroads and other corporate bodies in Oklahoma is now on foot in that State, and a conference has been called for May 28 in Guthrie to "call into life that safe and sane public sentiment, that spirit of justice inherent in every right-minded citizen, which will insure to capital a cordial welcome and fair treatment."

The Commercial Club of Tulsa is the leading spirit in the movement to attract capital to Oklahoma. A special train with 113 business men, all members of the club, recently made a trip through the Eastern and Central States telling the story of the undeveloped rosources in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and the great Southwest.

In Kansas City on April 27 the club adopted resolutions expressing confidence in the State and National Administrations' intentions toward corporations and deploring the tendency of certain newspapers and politicians toward corporation baiting. The club has now sent out the following appeal:

The Commercial Club of Tulsa, Oklahoma, a non-political organization of business men of this city, widely differing in their personal politics, but agreeing that business sanity should characterize not only the legislative acts but the utterances of the press and the people; and,

Believing, from the uniform expression of the hundreds of representative business men, the commercial organizations, and the newspapers, in the chief cities of the Central and Eastern States recently visited by us, that the financial interests of the country are growing more and more timid concerning investments in Oklahoma because of a wrong conception of the character of our State Constitution and a fear of hostile legislation and unfair taxation; and,

Believing, that by reason of this wrong conception of our laws and our people, capital needed in the development of our vast resources is being withheld from our State; and,

Believing, that the time has come when every friend of Oklahoma, in strictly non-partisan spirit, should join in earnest effort to combat this growing distrust of the integrity of our State;

The Tulsa Commercial Club hereby invites all commercial bodies in the various cities and towns of Oklahoma to participate in a joint conference, to be held in the City Hall at Guthrie, Oklahoma, at 10 A. M., Thursday, May 28, 1908, to take such vigorous action to preserve the good name of Oklahoma as the extreme gravity of the situation demands; to call into life that safe and sane public sentiment, that spirit of justice inherent in every right-minded citizen, which will insure to capital a cordial welcome and fair treatment, thereby stimulating the growth of all our cities, the building of industrial enterprises, the creation of a better market for our farm and factory products, the employment of labor, and the happiness and prosperity of all our people.

One half the delegates will be Republicans and the other half Democrats.

North Carolina to Vote on Prohibition.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 25.—In the State election on prohibition to-morrow a light vote is expected, though the campaign has been hotly contested. The measure is held to be non-partisan and prohibition has been urged both by the Democratic and Republican leaders. Estimates of a prohibition majority ranging from 10,000 to 30,000 have been made by the prohibition forces. The anti-prohibitionists give no figures, but say that they believe the State will go "wet."

Omit Religion from Prohibition Platform.

SEATTLE, Washington, May 25.—The State Prohibition Convention, which has just closed here, voted down a proposition to incorporate the words "We accept Jesus Christ as our leader" in the preamble of the State platform. Ministers and delegates stood solidly against it, saying it would arouse the hostility of the Jews and others who differ in religion. The platform opposes local option as a compromise scheme.

ACCUSE M'CARREN OF FRAUD AT POLLS

Charges Made at a Hearing on His Bill for Better Party Government.

TO SETTLE CONTESTS

Bill the Outcome of the Treatment the McCarrenites Received at the Democratic Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 25.—Advocates and opponents of the McCarren bill, "for the better government of political parties," met in wordy contest before the Senate Judiciary Committee at a hearing, which began this afternoon prior to the session of the Legislature and continued after the session had adjourned until nearly midnight.

The bill, the outgrowth of the treatment received by Senator McCarren and his delegates to the Democratic State Convention at Carnegie Hall, provides for the settlement of all contests by the courts instead of by a committee on contested seats chosen by a convention. It also provides for the election of a new Democratic State Committee at the State Convention this Fall by delegates from each Senatorial district.

Chairman Conners and others who opposed the bill argued that having the courts determine contests would tend to drag the judiciary into politics.

Henry A. Rubino, a lawyer representing the Democratic Party of Kings County, the anti-McCarren organization, in opposing the bill, said, pointing his finger at McCarren:

"You know that you have managed to keep in power only by voting dead men. We have proofs from the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters that you permitted criminals and convicts to man the polls."

McCarren said, "That is not true, and you know it."

The lawyer paid no attention.

Isaac M. Kapper, Chairman of the Law Committee of the Kings County Democracy, presented the principal argument in favor of the bill.

GRADY RAPS HEARST'S PARTY.

Asks That It Produce Before Senate Its "Self-Confessed Repeaters."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 25.—A memorial addressed to the Governor and both branches of the Legislature by the Executive Committee of the Independence Party, in which attention was called to a recent Grand Jury presentment on the subject of election frauds in New York City, and legislation to stop the evils was asked for, evoked an angry retort from Senator Grady.

He moved that the memorial be referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee, and that this body order the Independence Party to produce before it all the self-confessed repeaters whose affidavits bearing on election frauds have appeared in the Hearst newspapers of late.

"The citizenship of New York is not perfect, but never was a more atrocious and malignant libel perpetrated on it than in these newspaper articles. I want to see the men who made the affidavits repeat their story under circumstances where they can be punished for perjury if they do not tell the truth."

At this point, McCarren, who himself has grievances of his own against Tammany Hall, got up.

"There is some more glory in store for the Independence Party," said the Brooklyn Senator, with mock solemnity, amid bursts of laughter from his colleagues. "I join hands here and now with the Independence Party in this noble effort to stop abuses and violation of the election law."

SENATOR WALLACE IS SEATED.

Session May Continue Until June 10—Race Track Bills Held Back.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 25.—That the extraordinary session of the Legislature will not come to an end with the present week became known when the Senate and Assembly reconvened this evening. It is now predicted that it will remain in session until June 4 at least, and that it may not adjourn sine die until June 10, leaving just time enough for legislators who have been elected delegates to the Republican National Convention to prepare for their journey to Chicago.

William C. Wallace, the newly elected Senator from the Niagara-Orleans District, took his seat to-night.

Gov. Hughes did not send to the Legislature to-night any message recommending the enactment of his postponed race track reforms, nor is there any likelihood of any such message being sent in this week.

Many of the Senators who voted for the race track bills at the regular session received hundreds of letters this evening calling upon them to change their votes in order to please their constituents.

COHALAN IN COCKRAN'S PLACE

Murphy's Chief Personal Adviser Made Grand Sachem of Tammany.

The long-expected deposing of Bourke Cockran from his seat as Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall came last night when the Sachems of the society met at the Wigwam and elected Daniel F. Cohalan to succeed him. Cohalan is Chairman of the Law Committee of the Hall and has been Mr. Murphy's chief personal adviser since Cockran fell from favor several months ago.

The meeting was a short one and little business was transacted except the appointment of a committee to make arrangements for the annual Fourth of July celebration. Last year Mr. Cockran delivered the oration at this function.

TAMMANY PLEADS FOR THIEF.

But Judge Gives Him Long Term for Robbing a Crippled Woman.

Judge Malone of General Sessions yesterday sentenced Charles Halpern, convicted of burglary, to not less than twelve years and four months nor more than twenty years in prison.

Several persons of prominence in Tammany Hall had asked clemency for Halpern. He had robbed the flat of Annie Levy, a cripple, at 122 Ridge Street.

Charles Miller, convicted of having burglars' tools, was sent to State prison for six years and seven months.

MAYOR ON 'HIGHER THOUGHT.'

Discussed It with McCarren During Senator's Call, He Says.

Senator McCarren dropped in at the City Hall yesterday to see the Mayor before he departed for Albany. As soon as he was gone Mr. McClellan was asked if the call was of anything more than the social variety. He replied:

"Don't think the Senator and I waste our time. We were engaged in a very interesting discussion of the higher thought."

WANTS ROOSEVELT NAMED.

T. W. Phillips, Pennsylvania Delegate, Won't Support Knox.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Another Pennsylvania delegate to the Republican National Convention has announced that he will not support Senator Knox at Chicago. He is Thomas W. Phillips of Newcastle, and he declares his intention to vote for the renomination of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Phillips was Vice Chairman of the Industrial Commission, the work of which body resulted in the creation of the Department of Commerce and Labor. The idea of a Commissioner of Corporations with inquisitorial powers was first put out by Mr. Phillips in his final report of industrial conditions. For that reason he claims the honor of having created the effective part of the "big stick," which, to his mind, is that which led to the twenty-nine-million-dollar fine of the Standard Oil Company.

CHARGE EXTRAVAGANCE.

Conferrees on Civil Appropriation Bill Accuse Each Other of Favoritism.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Direct charges of extravagance and repeated insinuations of favoritism marked the agreement of the House and Senate to-day to the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill. The criticism was not confined to the Democrats.

Senator Aldrich was especially bitter. An item for a revenue cutter on Narragansett Bay, introduced by him, was stricken from the bill in conference. The excuse given was that the item was not provided for by any existing law. Aldrich showed that nearly a score of items permitted to remain in the bill were also unauthorized, and flayed the conferees for their zeal in eliminating one.

Senator Teller called attention to the fact that if Congress went at the pace it was now going, it would pass the two-billion-dollar mark in appropriations before the Sixtieth Congress had ended.

May Make Report on Paper To-day.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—A report from the Select Committee of the House appointed to investigate the wood pulp and print paper question may be made to the House to-morrow. The committee was in executive session the greater part of to-day going over the mass of evidence presented and endeavoring to arrive at conclusions. Neither Chairman Mann nor any of his colleagues would predict what the report would be.

Would Have Lobbyists Register.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Representative Bartholdt of Missouri to-day introduced a lobbyist publicity bill which requires that every person retained or employed to promote or oppose the passage or executive approval of bills or resolutions by either house shall make written declaration of his business and file it with the Attorney General of the United States. Other provisions of the bill purport to throw further hindrances in the way of lobbying.

Register Steamboat Passenger Lists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The House to-day passed the Greene Omnibus Navigation bill. The measure includes provisions allowing yachts from foreign ports to clear American harbors without charges in cases where the foreign port in question allows the same privilege to American yachts, requiring the registration of passenger lists on steamboats going over 800 miles a day, and directs that all seagoing scows shall be equipped with a life line at least three feet above the deck.

TWAIN EULOGIZES QUEEN VICTORIA

Humorist Speaks at Victoria Day Dinner of British Schools and Universities Club.

"HAD NO PEER IN HER TIME"

Mentioning War Only to Scoff at Idea, He Tells of Affection Between Countries.

Old "boys" from many famous English universities and schools, including Oxford and Cambridge and Eton and Harrow, met at Delmonico's last night to celebrate Victoria Day, under the auspices of the British Schools and Universities Club. Victoria, or Empire, Day, as it is more generally known throughout the British colonies, was founded on the late Queen's birthday, the 24th of May. Falling this year on a Sunday, the annual dinner of the club had perforce to be held one day late.

The chief guest of honor last night was Samuel L. Clemens, who as Mark Twain is loved throughout the British Empire as much as he is in his native land. Mark Twain is an Oxford Doctor of Literature, this degree having been conferred on him by the university during his visit last year.

Dr. W. E. Lambert, President of the Club, was toastmaster and read a cable from King Edward sent through Lord Knollys, conveying a message of good will to the club. Seated at the guest table with him were Mr. Clemens, W. Courteney Bennett, C. I. E., British Consul General at New York; J. E. Grote Higgins, the Rev. A. H. Judge, past President of the club; the Rev. D. Parker Morgan, D. D.; Dr. John MacPhee, President of the Canadian Society; Robert P. Porter, Reginald Walsh, and J. D. Petersen, Secretary.

Mr. Clemens responded to the toast, "Queen Victoria—An American Tribute." He prefaced his remarks by reciting one or two of his humorous experiences, including an imaginary interview which he thought he overheard between Livingstone and Stanley, when the latter found Livingston in Central South Africa. Livingstone wanted to know the news of the world for the five years he had been in Africa, and Mark Twain overheard Stanley tell how the rulers of most of the countries had been changed, finally concluding, "and Horace Greeley has changed his political faith."

"As a woman the Queen was all that the most exacting standards could require. As a far-reaching and effective and beneficent moral force she had no peer in her time among either monarchs or commoners. As a monarch she was without reproach in her great office. One may not venture, perhaps, to say so sweeping a thing as this in cold blood about any monarch that preceded her, either upon her own throne or upon any other. It is a colossal eulogy, but it is justified.

"What she did for us in America in our time of storm and stress we shall not forget, and whenever we call it to mind we shall always remember the wise and righteous mind that guided her in it and sustained and supported her—Prince Albert's. We need not talk any idle talk here to-night about either possible or impossible war between the two countries; there will be no war while we remain sane and the son of Victoria and Albert sits upon the throne."

Consul General Bennett, alluding to the feeling between England and America, said:

"I will stake my reputation that there never can be serious trouble between the two countries. They are marching along the same line, with the same object in view, and they are marching now as they will in the future, as one great nation."

THE FIFTY-YEAR FRANCHISE.

There will be very general regret that Gov. HUGHES has felt constrained to withhold his approval from the Robinson Rapid Transit bill, beyond all question the most important measure affecting the interests of New York City which was passed by the Legislature at its last session. But if the Governor felt that, as a matter of principle, he must veto the bill, we are sorry he was not able to support his action by reasons more consistent with themselves and with the public interest, and by arguments of higher validity. The fifty-year franchise is the stumbling block. "No fifty-year franchise" has become as great a fetich as "no more perpetual franchises" some years ago. We are, in effect, asked to believe that there is something morally abhorrent in a fifty-year franchise, when, as a matter of fact, the granting or withholding of a franchise is purely a business matter, to be determined upon business considerations.

Gov. HUGHES says that "the city should not lose control over its highways for rapid transit purposes for such a period. Any one who reflects upon what the city was fifty years ago and upon what it is likely to become in the course of the next fifty years must realize this." Obviously, then, the Governor believes that it would be a bad bargain for the city to permit private capitalists to build and operate a subway upon a fifty-year franchise. That is, through increment of value and of earning power the franchise would, in a few years, come to have a value very much greater than the grantee ought to enjoy on the basis of payments adjusted at the present day. He would make altogether too much money, to the loss of the public. In the ratio of its improvidence for the city, the grant would be profitable and much coveted by bidders. It is, therefore, astonishing to have the Governor inform us that "I do not think it likely that private capital could be induced to construct upon the proposed terms." We do not say that this is incomprehensible, we merely say that we cannot understand such reasoning, and we doubt if it will be generally comprehended. A bargain upon terms that would not attract private capital could not be very wasteful for the municipality. With the provisions of the Robinson bill for periodic adjustments of the payments to be made to the city by the grantee, it would seem that the city would have sufficient power of control over the holder of the franchise to protect itself against the risk of getting cheated.

The consequence of the veto is that, instead of making immediate preparations for new subways, we must wait, probably, until the limit of indebtedness can be modified by a Constitutional amendment, which cannot be voted on by the people before November, 1909. It is not easy to see how the loss and waste incident to the granting of a fifty-year franchise could possibly be greater than the burden of public discomfort and the loss due to postponed increments in assessable valuations due to this long delay. Three years ago, on May 15, 1905, the Rapid Transit Board sent to the Board of Aldermen a communication regarding the Seventh Avenue Subway, the Third Avenue Subway, and the Lexington Avenue Subway, from which this is an extract:

> These routes are certainly among those which are most sorely needed. The demand for an adequate east side line, which shall relieve the pressing requirements of the Bronx, ought to be met without delay. And the completion of the Pennsylvania Railroad Station which will bring many thousand travelers hourly from New Jersey and Long Island to the neighborhood of Thirty-second Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, should find the municipality prepared, by its lessees, to distribute these multitudes to their ultimate destinations in the city.
> It has been the effort of this board to arrange the routes now submitted for the consideration of your honorable body, so that each of them should, first, be capable of separate operation; second, be capable of advantageous operation in connection with some existing means of passenger transportation within the city; third, be practicable to build at once, both from the engineering, transportation, and financial standpoints. In this way the largest possible measure of effective rapid transit will be secured, while at the same time an opportunity is afforded for active competition among strong rival bidders.

Nobody but a pessimist would have supposed that three years would elapse without a beginning being made upon these routes. But, as we enter the fourth year of delay, Gov. HUGHES, by his veto, insures us practically two years more of deferred hope.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

The "bloody Fourth" can be made a civilized holiday; that is the contention of Mrs. ISAAC L. RICE in The Century Magazine for June. Mrs. RICE rightly makes secondary the statistics of fatalities, maiming, blinding, and cases of lockjaw incident to the annual celebration. Although the journal of the American Medical Association recorded 102 deaths and 1,489 injuries last Independence Day, these make up the lesser count in the indictment.

The charge against it on humane grounds is its effect on the sick, "varying in intensity for days, or even weeks, and deafening for twenty-four hours at least." Of course, except as giving dangerous vent to natural ebullitions of young spirits, the prolonged disorderly discharge of firecrackers, firearms, lyddite, and dynamite is inappropriate and meaningless. For inspiring patriotism Mrs. RICE shows, by testimony of leading foreign officials and citizens, that the national holidays of Switzerland, France, Germany, and even of Brazil and Japan, with their more rational ceremonies and fêtes, are more impressive and effective than our own.

The Anti-Noise Society should have the countenance and support of city, State, and Federal officials, including the President of the United States, in a movement to make the National celebration of the Fourth of July less noisy and more sincere and patriotic.

THE INSANITY OF THAW.

In denying the application for the release of THAW from the Matteawan Hospital for the Insane, Judge MORSCHAUSER says: "I am satisfied from the evidence adduced before me that the mental condition of HARRY K. THAW has not changed, and I find that he is now insane, and that it is so manifest as to make it unsafe for him to be at large." That opinion is solidly based upon the testimony given at the hearing, and it disposes of the matter in the only way consistent with justice and the public safety. It ought to put an end to the attempt to set THAW free.

It appears, however, that further efforts will be made, most unwisely, it seems to us, for if the family and friends of THAW were well advised they would hardly wish to incur the risks of further trouble and disgrace naturally incident to giving him his liberty. He, of course, is mentally and morally irresponsible. But his family and his lawyers by putting in the plea of insanity, with the full knowledge that his acquittal on that ground would, under the law, result in his commitment to the State lunatic asylum, practically estopped themselves from seeking to get him out in the face of convincing evidence that he has not become sane. Their plea, which was successful, led inevitably to the prisoner's commitment to Matteawan. Their present position is practically that of applying for release after having entered a plea of guilty.

It is reported that they will endeavor to get District Attorney JEROME's consent to THAW's commitment to some State hospital other than Matteawan, in which case they will make no appeal from Judge MORSCHAUSER's decision. We hope the District Attorney will make no such bargain. THAW will be as well treated and as safe in Matteawan as in any other hospital for the insane, and he ought to stay there. The object of the transfer, it may be supposed, is to select some hospital where there would be a better chance of success for the next application for release.

TWO WAYS WITH "GOOD" TRUSTS.

The verdict of $35,000 damages against a band of Kentucky nightriders was encouraging as far as it went, but why should a man be reduced to sue for damages in the interruption of his pursuits as a farmer? Why should not the authorities prove that Kentucky has a republican form of government, where every man's life and property are safe? We do indeed read of the movements of the militia almost as in time of war, but the enemy appears to get the better of the soldiers. The cavalry's horses are hamstrung, and the nightriders carry their campaign across counties and rivers. This happens although the offenders against the peace of the community are well enough known to be brought into court and mulcted in damages. Why are they not sent to jail, as an encouragement to those left free?

Gov. WILSON appears to take right views of the situation. He called this gentry "Kentucky's Anarchists":

> They are cowards and criminals and felons, and should be killed when making attacks and should be in the penitentiary when detected after attacks. I do not believe in palavering and smoothing over penitentiary crimes that destroy liberty. I believe in killing the criminals while in attacks, and in putting every one not killed in the penitentiary, if it took a thousand.

Gov. WILSON evidently is careless whether or not he gets the nightrider votes, but it may be that he will make up the loss by getting the votes of good citizens who are not nightriders.

Upon the whole, the general mass of citizenship of Kentucky, and in greater degree Americans outside of Kentucky, will prefer Gov. WILSON's words and manner to that exemplified at Washington. It is better to mobilize the militia than to authorize such organizations of farmers, "not for profit," to apply for a license to break the anti-trust law. Doubtless even such a license would not dispense with punishment for arson and assault, but it can be imagined that if the proposal had been enacted deceitful professions might have been made in the secrecy of a bureau procedure which would have embarrassed the administration of justice in cases not otherwise doubtful. Happily it has been demonstrated that some things are too bad for enactment even in a Presidential year.

SPEAKER CANNON'S BRAVERY.

"A plague on schemes for asset and credit currency and central banks. They have no place in this legislation. Let us get together and do what the people expect." These are sentiments attributed to Speaker CANNON in the Washington correspondence of The Herald. And the Speaker is described as going on to say that Congress does not "dare" adjourn without providing for an emergency currency.

It is a great step in advance to have placed on record this admission by almost the greatest Bourbon of them all. The system under which we must face the crop-moving season is the same as for a generation past. Year by year we have had these convulsions in varying degrees, and never before have we had any admission by those in responsible position that any alleviation was necessary. Surely never was there less apparent necessity than this year. Business is prostrate, and bank reserves are swollen. Yet it is this year that a position is taken which is as wrong now as it would have been right last year, or almost any year but this.

The reason that the Speaker's reported views are wrong this year is that the harm has been done, and done so thoroughly that no one of those who gave truthful warnings when they were disregarded is repeating them now. Nobody now anticipates trouble from moving the crops, but many are remarking upon the daily proofs of the harm done by the methods which the Speaker's party proposes to exaggerate by way of an "emergency" remedy. Last week, during a 1 per cent. money market and exports of gold, the National bank circulation increased $751,180. The stock market has been feverishly strong, and is likely to be abnormally weak, when later on it becomes necessary to recall the speculative loans now being made to use idle funds which cannot be diminished in amount. These are merely duplications in miniature of last year's troubles, and the Speaker is brave enough to propose a remedy so bad that it is necessary to limit its operation to three years. If the Speaker's party thinks that the patient's strength will carry him through three more years of the same disease it is open to others to urge that his strength is adequate to await the curative effect of something really remedial.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE FINANCES.

In connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Brooklyn Bridge the fact is published that its profit and loss account is creditor by $76,445. That is to say, receipts exceed the expenses for operation and maintenance by that amount. It is singular that accounts exceeding $21,000,000 should so nearly balance. And it is more singular yet that after a quarter-century the bridge is still unfinished. When it was opened a van or an elephant was regarded as dangerous above a moderate speed. Now nearly 4,000 twenty-five ton trolley cars cross daily, and those responsible for the bridge think that it can carry a succession of six-car elevated trains, each car a motor car, with as many passengers as can be crowded in. Altogether the bridge's capacity has been increased tenfold, and is about to be enlarged almost as much as by any other single improvement in the past.

Creditable and even wonderful as this record is, the fact remains that it has taken a quarter of a century to reach it, and that even now there is a smaller financial return than might have been had from a traffic which is the most intensive in the world. The moral is worth drawing, for it applies to each of the city's several bridges. The Williamsburg Bridge has been open five years, and the first elevated car is yet to pass over it. The Blackwell's Island Bridge traffic is altogether unarranged for. The Manhattan Bridge design is not adapted to the subways which have been planned since the bridge itself. And in no case has the traffic been submitted to such studies as those just published in connection with the Subway.

This is a striking contrast between the efficiency of a management altogether public and one which is private regarding operation, although ownership will become public after many years. The point is only secondary that possibly the city might realize more in money from its investment in bridges. The primary lesson is that such utilities are best worthy their name when they render greatest service, and that the development of the service of the Brooklyn Bridge is incomplete after a quarter of a century. Praise for what the bridge management has accomplished must be mingled with regrets for what it has left undone, which it is imaginable a private owner would have done, both sooner and more fully.

Commissioner BINGHAM need not long ask for an appropriation of $25,000 to establish a Secret Service against "Black Hand" criminals if they proceed boldly, as they are now doing in Harlem, to transfer their operations from the foreign quarters to native residence districts. These desperadoes have long preyed, without detection and with impunity, upon foreign resident merchants and immigrants. Therefore a new species of outlawry has grown up in this "land of the free" which any European Government would have taken prompt measures to stamp out.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Roads as Bad as Ours. One's first emotion on reading about the experiences of the Thomas and Protos cars in the region just back of Vladivostok is a feeling of something like selfish satisfaction. For the description reveals that there are in the world roads worse than those in our Middle and Far West, and comparable for badness even with the trail which runs through our own Montezuma Marshes.

While the racers were in this country, struggling now with Indiana snows, now with Iowa mud, and now with the shifting sands of Death Valley, they vehemently declared, as of all-embracing knowledge, that as road-builders we stood at the very foot of the list, and, of course, such statements, coming from experts, were deeply humiliating to a people who, as has been well said by several Fourth of July orators, are "a proud and sensitive race." Alaska vindicated us, however, by offering roads from which the most determined of the racers turned back after a single look, and now Siberia provides a genial combination of morass, logs, and boulders for its main highway from the coast into the hinterland, with the result that the American roads have lost their evil eminence in the minds of these hurried travelers.

To be sure, little in the way of transportation facilities is expected of either Alaska or Siberia, while much is expected of the United States, and, therefore, we cannot be too haughty over this belated recognition of our superiority in the fundamentals of civilization. Be that as it may, the great race is on again. The number of competitors, indeed, is sadly depleted, the process of elimination having gone only two degrees less than that which reduced the ten little nigger boys to none at all, but there are still enough left to maintain interest in the result, and if even only one of these gets through he will have accomplished so much more than did the Peking to Paris racers that his achievement will stand by itself, alone and incomparable.

The thing can be done by a sufficient expenditure of money and strength, and both seem to be available. Summer will be along soon, in Siberia as elsewhere. Then the mud will dry up, and, with the Cossacks to lend an occasional helping hand in the hardest places, the innumerable miles will be numbered at last. The final stage, that of crossing little Europe, will be only a pleasure excursion, and glory, not to speak of advertising, waits expectant in the City of Light. The weeks on the Pacific, when no news came, gave the impression to some that the race was over, but it isn't, by any means, and its Asiatic section is likely to be altogether the most interesting.

Hydrophobia Is a Dire Reality. It is lamentable that all the outgivings from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in regard to the dog scare into which so many people have fallen, are tinged by a delusion possessing some of the organization's higher officials—the delusion that hydrophobia is merely a disease of the imagination and that the people who die of it are simply scared to death. The argument they repeat over and over again is that their dog catchers are bitten almost daily while engaged in the practice of their ungentle trade, and that, although they do not take the Pasteur treatment and rarely resort to the dubious and barbarous protection of cauterization, their wounds heal up in the usual way and give no further trouble.

The facts are unquestionably as stated, but the conclusion drawn from them is the most ludicrous of non-sequiturs—or would be if its acceptance were not calculated to do dreadful harm in the case of persons who really have been bitten by rabid animals. Of course, the bite of a dog not suffering from rabies does not give hydrophobia, and its consequences depend entirely upon the extent of the lesions and the avoidance of the ordinary infections to which all lesions are subject. The dog catcher's wounds are usually of the most trivial sort, since he is supposed to know his business, and, as rabid dogs are extremely scarce, even among the strays with which he has most to do, there is no mystery at all in his apparent immunity.

Apparent it is, however, and only apparent. Rabies does exist, nevertheless. Of that there is no reasonable or intelligent doubt, and the truth cannot be too emphatically stated. The symptom-complex in the living victim is definite and unmistakably by those who know it; the infection can be experimentally transferred from animal to animal, and its characteristic results are always found on post-mortem examination of brain and spinal cord. What more is needed to prove the reality of any disease? The death rate from dog bites is fortunately infinitesimal, and there isn't the slightest cause for panic, or even for apprehension, in the vast majority of instances, but when rabies is known or suspected there is only one thing to do, and that is to utilize the discovery of the great PASTEUR. Those who deny its utility or its efficacy put themselves on a mental level with the opponents of vaccination, and must be ranked among public enemies.

Gas Bag and Aeroplane. As the Morrell "airship" was made without regard to the known weakness of the material used in the construction of its balloon, the accident which befell it has little bearing on the relative merits of machines lighter and heavier than air, and it will not, and need not, prevent those who shrink from the difficulties incidental to the use of the aeroplane in any of its forms from continuing their experiments with the older device.

Indeed, it seems to be a mathematical certainty that, for the transportation through the air of any such weight as Mr. MORRELL hoped to carry, the motor balloon, in spite of all its weaknesses and limitations, will have to be employed until metals lighter and stronger than any now known are discovered. To carry such weights is an ambition legitimate enough, but we already have fairly satisfactory contrivances for the transportation of freight and passengers on a large scale, while the aeroplane, already of proved practicability for one skilled and courageous operator, with the high probability of affording place for a second, would come into competition with nothing now in existence and would serve many highly useful purposes.

That none of the men in the Morrell airship was killed outright by its fall is in a way a vindication of the principle of its construction, for the huge bag, though completely wrecked, yet served as a parachute, exactly as the friends of the balloon claim, and had its burden not been far beyond what an experienced balloonist would have placed upon it, probably nobody would have been seriously hurt. The Wright machine, however, showed the same capacity in its last test, for after its motor stopped it glided obliquely to the ground instead of dropping with a crash, and thus equaled the balloon in its one point of supposed superiority.

THE PLATT SCANDAL.

A Shame to Every Citizen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial in this morning's TIMES, "The Platt Scandal," should be read from every pulpit. I have never read an article which contains so much truth and brings shame to every decent citizen.

C. L. CALLMAN.

New York, May 23, 1908.

Stirred.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Show us the way to protest against Platt.

New York, May 23, 1908. W. C. F.

What Will the Governor Do?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will our great and good Governor, who is so shocked and horrified at the idea of allowing horses to race, now say something on this monstrous subject of allowing the great State of New York to be represented by such a man as Platt? He promptly removed the wicked Ahearn, who allowed holes to remain in our streets. Now here is a chance to show his pious leanings.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

State Island, N. Y., May 23, 1908.

Unfit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial of to-day was a fitting denunciation of a man who for years has been unfit to hold any public office in the gift of the people.

D. C.

New York, May 23, 1908.

Smells to Heaven.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I hope your rousing appeal to the moral sense and decency of the people will call forth a tremendous response. The United States Senate should be flooded with petitions from all over the land urging that this unfit representative be summarily removed from their body. His offense is rank and smells to heaven.

JAMES WALLACE.

New York, May 23, 1908.

A Moral Malefactor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After looking into the case thoroughly, it seems funny that the complainant in the action was sent to jail for her offense, while Senator Platt goes free. Which was the worse malefactor in the eyes of morality? The Governor should send a message to the Legislature calling upon it to pass a resolution asking Platt immediately to resign from that great office he now occupies.

S. G.

New York, May 23, 1908.

Without Ability or Decency.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to express to you my sincerest thanks for the editorial in to-day's TIMES headed "The Platt Scandal." That the Empire State should have so long allowed one of its Senatorial offices to be incumbered with this man of neither legislative ability nor decent moral character is, indeed, a revolting spectacle.

HUGH RUSSELL FRASER.

Cornwall-on-Hudson, May 23, 1908.

A Race That Is Worth While.

From The Evansville (Ind.) Courier.

THE NEW YORK TIMES is organizing an automobile race to be run from New York to San Francisco and back again. This contest, while it will not be as prolonged as others that have been attempted, will be interesting and valuable because its terms do not imply running at a reckless rate of speed. THE TIMES announces that the winner will be not the car that brings back to the starting point little more than its name, owing to repairing and substitution of parts on the way, but the car that can most quickly twice cross the continent because of the excellence of its original construction.

Of course, as always, much will depend on the skill of the drivers, which is not a factory product. But it will have to be skill of the careful sort valued in ordinary touring, and therefore the result will be in the highest degree informative to the man whose desire is to get the automobile that will carry him far and safely over roads of every sort, and with the least expense for maintenance.

THE TIMES will have done a good work if it succeeds in establishing the belief generally that durability and long, efficient service are as important in the building and operating of motor cars as the speed which so many try to attain to the exclusion of everything else.

The Educated Italian's Opportunity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The great majority of Italians in this country need no hospitals or poor houses, nor do they need clubs. But libraries, yes, and protection from their own educated Italian brothers.

We have "benevolent" societies with Italian supervision. Send a poor, ignorant Italian to them—what shameful treatment, with what airs of officiousness they greet him! A shrug of the shoulders and out you go; and the next you hear, the one goes out to wander away for manual labor, the other to his home Government.

JOSEPH RIVARA.

New York, May 25, 1908.

The Dog Scare.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many thanks for your editorial on the "Mad Dog Scare." It is to the newspapers chiefly is due this unreasoning fear among the people. Twice I have rescued dogs from these howling mobs by throwing a cloth over their heads and carrying them into the house until they were over their fits.

I know of no such degrading spectacle as human cowardice.

IT.

The Earth is floating like a little ball
Upon thin air—and on its back—a man;
Since that strange chaos from which all began
So hath it bobbed—sea, mountain, man, et al;
Yet not a one hath ever had a fall,
'Though land and water, envious of place,
Have shifted often, leaving little trace,
In such proportions do both stretch and sprawl.
And all around, above, about, below,
Are other bubbles dancing on the air;
Some million billions, rolling here and there,
And on their shells more men, for all we know.
Yet in this scheme stupendous, our great wit
Saith once for all—Man and his Earth are IT.

PROTESTANT CHURCH UNION.

Presbyterians to Discuss Plan for Action Against Temporal Evils.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 25.—Education and the relation of the Church to Freedmen were among the important subjects considered to-day by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of America. The Rev. J. S. Dixon, Secretary of the College Board of the Church, said:

"In 1889 only 8 per cent. of the men in theological seminaries were from denominational colleges. In 1908, in eleven instances, only 6 per cent. were from undenominational colleges. That is the result of the work that has been done by the College Board."

The Rev. J. Ross Stevenson, Vice President of the College Board, said that 85 per cent. of the foreign missionaries come from denominational colleges.

"We are a college-building Church, and not a cathedral-building Church," he said. "But is the result satisfactory in an educational sense? I quote from an eminent authority when I say that our religious education in America has been most ineffective, most unintelligent, and most haphazard. It was this condition which brought into existence the College Board twenty-five years ago."

Formation of a political organization of all the Protestant churches in the United States, with supreme executive power centred in a President and an Executive Committee, is a programme for church union formulated by the Rev. Mark A. Mathews of Seattle. It is declared that this is to be one of the most discussed topics at this week's session of the Assembly.

Mr. Mathews said that he did not propose establishing a Protestant Popery. It is proposed, according to his plan, simply to direct concerted action against temporal evils and for temporal good, not to be in any sense an intermediary in spiritual matters.

KAISER TO SEND EXHIBIT.

Metropolitan Trustees Accept His Offer to Show Examples of German Art.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art is to be the scene next Winter of an exhibition of the best there is in modern German art. Arrangements for the exhibition are complete and Emperor William has officially sanctioned the exhibition. The objects to be exhibited will consist of paintings and sculpture in marble and bronze.

The proposal of the German Government to give this exhibition was transmitted to the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum by Karl Buenz, German Consul General in New York. It was unanimously accepted by the Trustees, and the exhibition will probably be held next December.

Consul General Buenz's letter to the Metropolitan Trustees, under date of May 12, explains in detail the scope of the exhibition. This is the letter:

> Gentlemen: In December, 1905, Mr. Edward D. Adams addressed a letter to your President, Mr. John Pierpont Morgan, in which he said among other things that he had been authorized to state that should the Metropolitan Museum of Art desire and be willing to appropriate the necessary space a representative collection of modern German art could be obtained for exhibition in the museum in the Autumn of 1906. I understand that Mr. Adams's letter was laid before the Executive Board of the museum by its President, and that the board expressed its sympathy with the proposition, but regretted the lack at the time of suitable space in the galleries of the museum for such an exhibition.
>
> The objection being now, as I understand, about to be removed by the new addition to the galleries, I beg to state that, as the representative of the German Government in this city, I have been recently authorized by my Government, with the special sanction of his Majesty the Emperor, to bring the subject officially to the attention of your honorable board, by asking you to kindly appropriate the necessary space in the galleries of the museum for an exhibition of 1908-9.
>
> Acting upon this mandate, I have the honor to add the followinging remarks:
>
> 1. The exhibition will comprise pictures and sculptural works in bronze and marble.
> 2. The number of pictures to be exhibited will be not less than 125 and not more than 150.
> 3. The bronzes and marbles will be used principally for decorative purposes, according to the space which can be appropriated.
> 4. The objects to be exhibited will be collected through the influence of a committee to be appointed and to act under the general supervision of the Art Director of the Imperial German Government, with the distinct purpose of securing for the collection only those paintings and sculptural works that may be approved by the highest art authorities in Germany as being truly representative of the best work of the art of the present day.
> 5. The expense of gathering, packing, forwarding, returning, insuring, delivering within the grounds of the museum such an important collection will be borne by some of the friends of German art, who, with the approval of your honorable board, will also bear any expense incidental to the hanging and taking care of the collection.
> 6. It is perfectly understood and guaranteed by my Government that there shall be no feature in the exhibition which would be objectionable to your board, and which would not be in perfect harmony with the high principles that would have to govern an exhibition under the auspices of your noble institution. Especially any feature which might lead to the suspicion that the exhibition was meant for commercial purposes whatsoever will be entirely and conscientiously eliminated.
>

CLINTON BURIAL HONORS.

City Flags to Fly at Half-Mast Thursday—Torpedo Boat Convoy Here.

A proclamation was issued yesterday by Mayor McClellan in regard to the parade on Thursday in honor of the passing through the city of the remains of Gov. George Clinton, which will be taken to Kingston for burial.

The Mayor directs that from sunrise to sunset on Thursday the flags on all city buildings shall fly at half-mast and requests citizens to observe the occasion in a fitting manner. He also requests that the churches shall toll their bells as the body is being carried from the Battery to the City Hall.

A hitch has occurred in the programme for the reception of the body. It was to have been conveyed from Jersey City to the Battery by the revenue vessel Mohawk, but it has been discovered that the cutter draws too much water to get into the slip at Jersey City. It is probable that if no other revenue vessel is available, the Wasp, the State Naval Militia vessel, which will carry the Governor's body to Kingston, will also transport it to the Battery.

The fleet of torpedo boats and destroyers which will convoy the Wasp up the river comprises the Scorpion, Porter, De Long, Thornton, Blakeley, and Tingey, and the submarines Plunger, Nina, Hist, Viper, Tarantula, and Cuttlefish will also go along.

CUSTOMS AGENTS' SHAKE-UP.

G. F. Cross, Long Chief of Local Bureau, Transferred to Buffalo.

Secretary Cortelyou gave the special agents of the Treasury Department a general shake-up yesterday, when shifts in nearly all of the important posts of the country were announced.

G. F. Cross, who intermittently has been chief of the local bureau for nearly a quarter of a century, was transferred to the Buffalo district, and will be succeeded here temporarily by Jay C. Cummings, for many years a special agent in New York. When the Hawaiian Islands were organized into a Territory, Mr. Cummings was sent there to reorganize the customs service at Honolulu.

The shake-up will become effective on July 1. In explanation of the shake-up Secretary Cortelyou said that no special agent should be retained at a post more than a few years in the interest of good administration.

To Safeguard Public Buildings.

An ordinance to compel the fireproofing of all curtains, hangings, and woodwork of public schools, jails, hospitals, theatres, hotels, churches, and public halls has been introduced in the Board of Aldermen by Alderman Marx. A public hearing will be held at the City Hall on Thursday afternoon.

METHODISTS FAVOR LOCAL OPTION LAW

General Conference, After Stormy Meeting, Indorses Work of Anti-Saloon League.

TWO BISHOPS ARE ELECTED

Rev. Drs. W. A. Quayle and Charles W. Smith Break Deadlocks—Presbyterians to Discuss Protestant Union.

BALTIMORE, May 25.—The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at a prolonged session to-day, put itself on record as indorsing unqualifiedly the work of the Anti-Saloon League, and also favoring local option. Both of these positions are new with the Church, as up to this time no special organization has had the specific indorsement of the Church, while it has stood, on the other hand, for absolute prohibition everywhere.

This result was attained only after one of the stormiest meetings yet held, during which the opponents of the majority report called to their aid all manner of parliamentary tactics in their efforts to defeat it. It was contended by the minority adherents that it was wrong for the General Conference to indorse any particular organization, and also that it was a distinct lowering of the standard for the Church to come out in favor of local option.

The majority supporters maintained that the Anti-Saloon League was worthy of this recognition, declaring that it is the organization that is doing the work for temperance at the present time, fusing as it does all other societies and efforts into one. They upheld local option on the ground that it was to be used toward State-wide prohibition. When the final vote was taken only nineteen out of the entire body of upward of 750 delegates registered in favor of the minority report.

The Rev. Dr. William A. Quayle, pastor of St. James's Church, Chicago, and a lecturer and author of wide repute, was elected Bishop on the tenth ballot, thus breaking the deadlock which has existed since the second ballot.

The vote, which was taken last Saturday and counted to-day, resulted as follows: Total, 734; necessary to a choice, 488. The Rev. Drs. William A. Quayle, Chicago, 519; Wilson S. Lewis, Sioux City, Iowa, 483; Homer C. Stuntz, Madison, N. J., 458; Charles W. Smith, Pittsburg, 444; Robert McIntyre, Los Angeles, Cal., 389; Edwin H. Hughes, Greencastle, Ind., 367; David G. Downey, New York, 317; Joseph B. Hingeley, Minneapolis, 168; Daniel Dorchester, Jr., Pittsburg, 160; Richard J. Cooke, New York, 144; M. C. B. Mason, (colored,) Cincinnati, 138; Henry C. Jennings, Cincinnati, 136; Charles L. Goodell, New York, 131; Frank M. Bristol, Washington, D. C., 107.

The conference decided that there shall be two Corresponding Secretaries of the Board of Freedmen's Aid, who shall be co-ordinate, the understanding being that one shall be a white man and the other a negro.

Just as the debate on the temperance reports, presented last Saturday, was about to recommence, the result of the eleventh ballot for Bishops was announced. It showed no election, the vote being as follows: Total, 752; necessary to elect, 502. Smith, 479; Lewis, 470; Hughes, 449; Stuntz, 409; McIntyre, 395; Downey, 335; Hingeley, 170; Mason, 140; Jennings, 139; Cooke, 122; Bristol, 117; Dorchester, 115; Goodell, 103.

The name of Dr. Freeman D. Bovard of San Francisco, who received 23 votes on this ballot, was withdrawn.

The Rev. Dr. Charles W. Smith of Pittsburg was elected Bishop on the twelfth ballot. The vote was: Total, 744; necessary to a choice, 496. Smith, 511; Hughes, 477; Lewis, 465; McIntyre, 404; Stuntz, 390; Downey, 328; Hingeley, 168; Bristol, 159; Mason, 147; Jennings, 137; Cooke, 99; Dorchester, 82; Goodell, 61.

Careers of Drs. Quayle and Smith.

The Rev. Dr. William Alfred Quayle was born at Parkville, Mo., June 25, 1860. He was Professor of Greek at Baker University, holding this office for three years, acting as Vice President of the university during the last year. In 1890 he was elected to the Presidency of the institution. He has written several books on different subjects, and is well known as a lecturer.

The Rev. Dr. Charles William Smith was born in Fayette County, Penn., Jan. 30, 1840. He entered the ministry in the Pittsburg Conference and filled pastorates in different parts of his native State. For four years he was the Presiding Elder of the Pittsburg district of the Methodist Church. He is well known as a writer, has served as the editor of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate, and has earned the reputation of being one of the most powerful editorial writers of his Church.

PRESBYTERIANS ON CALVIN.

Prof. Smith Declares "Infant Salvation and Damnation" a Dead Issue.

GREENSBOROUGH, N. C., May 25.—Without opposition Savannah, Ga., was chosen as the place for the 1909 meeting at to-day's session of the Southern Presbyterian General Assembly. A motion was made that a committee be appointed to express sympathy with the workers for prohibition in this State to-morrow. Objection was raised to such action, and the matter was finally disposed of by reaffirming the resolution adopted by the Assembly of 1886 upon this subject. This decried the liquor evil, "and recommends to all our people the use of all legitimate means for its banishment from the land."

A motion was made by Prof. C. Alphonso Smith of the University of North Carolina that the programme for Calvin Day at the next Assembly be reconsidered and that the subject "Calvin and Infant Salvation" be eliminated therefrom. The professor argued that it was hurting the Church to keep up discussion as to infant salvation and infant damnation, and that it was a dead issue. He thought the Church had reached the point where it did not care particularly what John Calvin thought on the subject.

"The discussion is doing harm," said Prof. Smith. "We are here to consider live issues and not dead issues."

After arguments upon both sides, Prof. Smith's motion was lost, 86 to 55.

Most of the speakers expressed the opinion that the Presbyterian Church of today does not teach nor believe in infant damnation.

Of all the expedients to laughter none enjoys a more venerable and threadbare antiquity than the hen-pecked husband. With the garrulous mother-in-law and the domineering, hectoring wife, he is part and parcel of the common or garden variety of American humor, alleged, wherever it is found. The fact, then, that this figure created no inconsiderable amusement at the New York last night is in itself a testimony to the ability of the performer of it. Mr. Richard Carle has a whimsical personality; moreover, he knows how to make the most of it, how to get comedy points. He is an agile dancer and an exceptionally fine pantomimist; his is not exactly a fine singing voice—indeed, it is nearer the crow than the nightingale—but it is a voice that has been properly trained to go with the face, the arms, and the legs of its possessor. Like all of these, it is an aid to points—points to laughter.

According to the programme "Mary's Lamb" is adapted from the French farce "Mme. Mondogin," by Mr. Carle, who also wrote the lyrics, composed the music, and staged the play. All this, while apparently a good deal for one man to accomplish, is not really the brain-fagging task that might be supposed. Especially since Mr. Carle is apparently as handy with his left hand as with his right, and appears to enjoy the acrobatic blessing of double joints.

At other times he has provided entertainments in which the fun was sustained more continuously, and in which there has not been the same resort to "spice" to keep things moving. One or two of the specialties, in fact, are quite raw.

But with Mr. Carle's personal part in the entertainment there is no occasion to quarrel. He is a funny man, and as the husband who "can recognize any automobile by the sound of its horn," and who enjoys a few brief moments of freedom from his henpeckdom in the society of an engaging burlesque queen, he is dryly amusing at times and hilariously mirthful at others. And the Lady Macbeth ferocity and seriousness of Elita Proctor Otis as his "better two-thirds" provides just the right foil for his more amiable drollery.

The best singing in the play is provided by Berta Mills, whose unaffected manner and simple prettiness provide a refreshing contrast to a more familiar type of musical comedy ingenue.

John B. Park does many things well and is a useful supporting figure in the cast, and Mr. Belcher, Miss Lee, and Miss St. Clair add occasional interesting moments.

APPLAUD GRACE MERRITT.

Carnegie Lyceum Audience Likes Her in "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

For the first time in a long while the Carnegie Lyceum was occupied last night by a regular professional company. The attraction was Grace Merritt in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," Paul Kester's dramatization of Charles Major's romantic novel of the same name. Miss Merritt was supported by the company with which she has been on tour.

The audience seemed to enjoy the performance, liberally applauding Miss Merritt. Walter P. Richardson appeared as Charles Brandon, the hero of the romance, and John R. Lockney was King Henry.

KITTY CHEATHAM IN PARIS.

Her Singing Wins Much Applause from a Distinguished Audience.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 25.—A distinguished audience greeted Kitty Cheatham, the American singer, at her recital in the Salle Femina this afternoon. Her rendering of plantation melodies and children's songs won much applause.

Among those present were Ambassador and Mrs. White, ex-Gov. and Mrs. Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel. Miss Cheatham leaves soon for London, where she will give recitals during the season.

GENEE SAILS FOR ENGLAND.

Dancer Says American Audiences Are More Appreciative Than the English.

Adeline Genée sails to-day for England on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., accompanied by Miss Peters and the eight English dancers who came over with her in October from the London Empire to take part in "The Soul Kiss" at the New York Theatre.

Miss Genée said yesterday that she regretted to leave America, as everybody had been so kind to her. "American audiences," said the dancer, "are much more enthusiastic than those of London. I shall return here in August and visit Niagara Falls and other points of interest. As soon as I arrive in London I shall start rehearsing for the ballet Coppelia at the Empire Theatre, which will be put on June 8."

Miss Genée was much pleased with a quaint neck chain sent her by the doctors and nurses of the Home for Incurables in recognition of her services at the benefit matinée at the New York Theatre on April 30. The staff of the New York Theatre and fellow-artists from "The Soul Kiss" company will bid her good-bye on the pier at 10 A. M. to-day.

LOUISE DRESSER HURT.

Actress and Her Mother Thrown from Machine in Fifth Ave. and Injured.

Louise Dresser, the actress, and her mother, Mrs. Ida Bent, were hurt in an automobile accident yesterday while crossing Forty-second Street at Fifth Avenue. Part of the mechanism of their machine, driven by Harry Baer, caught in the underground trolley slot, bringing the machine to such a violent stop that both women were thrown out of the car.

Though Miss Dresser hurt her knee and both she and her mother were bruised and scratched, they refused medical aid and went to their home, at 2,609 Broadway. Miss Dresser closed her engagement with "The Girl Behind the Counter" company at the Herald Square Theatre on Saturday night.

BAWDEN'S CHAIR DECLARED VACANT

Exponent of Peculiar Marriage Ideas Refused to Resign from Cincinnati University.

TRUSTEES TAKE ACTION

In Statement They Say His Manner of Life Is Destructive of the Family.

CINCINNATI, May 25.—The resignation of Prof. H. H. Bawden from the Chair of Philosophy in the University of Cincinnati not having been presented as demanded by President Dabney, that chair has been formally declared vacant by the University Trustees.

The controversy between President Dabney and Prof. Bawden arose out of the latter's expression of his beliefs on marriage. Prof. Badwen believes that comradeship should be the basis of marriage. He believes also that divorce should be made easy to obtain. It was at first believed that the student body requested President Dabney to ask Prof. Badwen for his resignation, but this was denied.

In a statement issued to-day the Trustees explain that their action was taken unanimously for the following reasons:

(1) Prof. Bawden came here under false pretensions, having been dismissed from Vassar College on substantially the same grounds as mentioned under 2. He acknowledges this in his letter of May 3, published in the newspapers.

(2) His manner of life, as well as his teaching, is destructive of the family, the foundation of human society.

(3) After receiving the President's letter asking for his resignation, Prof. Bawden came to the President's office and threatened him with publication of his story and his opinions on the subject if he did not withdraw the letter. This he afterward did, to the scandal of the university and the violation of public decency and good morals.

The case first attracted attention about two weeks ago.

Meadow Brook Club Steward Hurt.

JUDITH OF THE CUMBERLANDS

A fearless young hero, who is sure to stand well in the reader's good graces, woos a high-spirited and engaging heroine under the most desperate difficulties. The novel combines with the ardent love-making a mountain feud in full career, plenty of illicit distilling of "mountain dew," and enough fire-eating, knife-play and assault and battery to enliven the plot to the last degree. All the business of the story goes on before a wild background of mountain and forest. JUDITH OF THE CUMBERLANDS is a tale strong and interesting in plot, faithful and vivid as a picture of wild mountain life, and in its characterization full of warmth and glow.

THE PROFLIGATE

By ARTHUR HORNBLOW

Author of "The End of the Game," "The Lion and the Mouse," etc.

"Mr. Hornblow is a real novelist. His books are clean-cut expositions of throbbing American life into which he succeeds in welding his own characteristic and illuminating expression. His splendid achievement with 'The Lion and the Mouse' must be fresh in the memory of all who follow current literature. They will remember his brisk and poignant style, his penetration beneath the surface and his grasp upon human nature. Some of his descriptions are worthy of a place beside the poetic prose of Whitman."—Cleveland News.

A tremendous story of the human passions, written with the vigor, charm and remarkable power of graphic description which have quickly put this author in the front rank with the successful novelists of the day. A startling murder mystery unfolded with the skill of a Sherlock Holmes and interwoven with a delightful love romance as tender and absorbing as any in recent fiction. Robert Forrester, the man of passion, strength and weakness, who gambles away life and fortune only to be saved at the brink by his love for a good woman, is a masterly character study rarely equalled in the modern novel. The scene in a luxurious New York gambling hell, the murder inquest, the runaway on the mountain, the meeting at Monte Carlo, the strange betrothal on the tower of Notre Dame, the tracking of the murderer—these are a few of the thrilling chapters in a book which holds the reader from start to finish.

Actors Put a Wreath on the Casket Before It Is Taken from Train.

More than a hundred actors and other theatrical folk were at the Grand Central Station yesterday morning when the body of Peter F. Dailey arrived on the Twentieth Century Limited from Chicago. Members of the White Rats and all the other old friends who were present went to the train after the passengers had left, and, standing in two long lines, paid silent tribute to their favorite comrade. As the body was taken from the car a wreath was placed on the casket.

George Considine, who was in charge of the arrangements; George Monroe, President of the White Rats; Mrs. William West, a sister-in-law of Mr. Dailey, and members of the Lambs and other organizations accompanied the body to Brooklyn.

He entered the army at the beginning of the civil war, and received the rank of Brigadier General in the United States Volunteers in 1865. After the war Gen. Miles fought Indians in the West. Here he received the rank of Captain in the regular army. At the outbreak of the Spanish war Gen. Miles was sent to Cuba. He was retired from the regular army in 1894 with the rank of Brigadier General.

As long as Umpire Egan had to be hit and retired from the game it was a thousand pities the regrettable incident was postponed till the eighth inning. An Eganless game might have made for a higher score for the New York Americans, and in this reflection there is no manner of malice. The proposition is charming in its simplicity—Mr. Egan officiated for seven innings and the Chicagos made nine runs; the local tribesmen none. Mr. Egan was incapacitated and on the bench for the rest of the game, and Chicago made no runs to New York's three. Logic lingers in the offing, and the intelligent reader is implored to draw some conclusions that will take the sting out of yesterday's game.

Aside from the decisions of the determined Mr. Egan, the ill-timed slumbers of the Griffith outfit may be reasonably regarded as contributory cause of the disaster which the 9 to 3 score epitomizes. When you get to a point where even the Sir Galahad of the Farrell forces, the gallant Chase, no less throws 'em wild to second, and the ambitious Ball, just installing himself in the affections of the exacting populace, lets an easy grounder slide through his knees like a well-directed croquet ball through a receptive wicket, then you have reached the tide in affairs which carries the careless forders out and down and down and out to the baseball locker of Davy Jones.

These high crimes and diamond misdemeanors are painful to the historian in the writing, as they must be to the perpetrators in the making. But posterity demands that the record be kept, and so it must be set down that many of the runs of yesterday did not accrue to Fielder Jones's journeymen through batting wizardry. Take the first run in as a sample—Donohue hit past first—this is the second inning, by the way—Sullivan sent down an easy one to Chase, who, in trying for a put-out at second, threw wild, letting Donohue reach third and Sullivan second. Tannehill hit to Ball, who threw to second, and Niles muffed maddeningly, to the groans of the suffering 12,000. That scored Donohue. Parent went out at first, and young Mr. Manning, a future great pitcher, struck out Walsh and Dougherty as nice as you please.

That's the way it went for the whole afternoon, with Chicago giving "Big" Ed Walsh ideal support, and New York giving Manning none at all. In the seventh Manning's arm must have succumbed to the strain put upon it by the peculiar ball he pitches, for they hit him as freely as Fitz did the society boxer the other night. Manning has a delivery that has to be seen to be appreciated. He plants himself lightly on the sod, clutches the ball as if it was the windpipe of his ancient enemy, swings his arm through the air seven times, after the fashion of the big Mexican ropethrower in the Bill Show—and then dislocates his shoulder. When the dislocation comes, it is a sign the ball has been sent toward the plate. After you go through this manoeuvre a hundred or so times, you know you've been exercising some. One of these days, after a particularly spirited performance, the catcher will gather in Manning's pitching arm along with the ball, and it'll be a lesson to the young man.

Five runs came Chicago's way in this disastrous seventh inning, and these, added to previous endeavors, made a total of nine, or an average of one run to the inning, as all the world can figure. Hugh Chilvers, the ex-singer, who lent an air of Forty-second Street to the obsequies, remarked to his neighbor that the score was very depressing, and instantly Harry Von Tilzer and Vincent Bryant were on their feet demanding to know whose score was being thus criticised. These music writers can't get away from business even for one afternoon.

Some very clever exhibitions of ball-playing were given by the gentlemen from Chicago, notably by Mr. Parent, whose throws from short nipped many a Yank at first. Mr. Parent, indeed, was the father of many a put out. (This line belongs to Friar Arthur Liebes, and is used by kind permission of same.)

CHICAGO, Ill., May 25.—There was no lack of exciting incidents to-day in the second game of the series between the Giants and the Cubs, which was won by the latter by the score of 8 to 7 in ten innigs, the three principal events not scheduled occurred in the second half of the second inning. The first event of importance was the retirement of Catcher Bresnahan from the game, due to a foul tip striking his wrist. Manager McGraw took exception to Umpire Emslie's decisions, and suggested to that official that he provide himself with a box of hairpins to hold his wig on, for which piece of witticism he was put out of the grounds, amid the jeers of the spectators.

The climax came when, for the fourth consecutive time, the erstwhile "great Matty" was driven from the rubber. All signs of his former greatness had flown by the time the Cubs got through with him. In the first inning Chicago scored two runs on a bunt, two long singles, and a home run. McGraw refused to be convinced that it was not "Matty's" day, and for this his pet was roughly handled in the second inning, when two singles, a slashing double, Bridwell's error, and a base on balls brought the total for Chicago up to five. Meanwhile McGraw had been sent out of the grounds, and Malarkey succeeded Matty on the slab, but gave way to Wiltse in the ninth inning.

The Giants took partial revenge on the Cubs for their rude treatment of Mathewson, and lighted on Pfeister hard and often in the third, causing a change in the locals' pitching staff, Brown superseding Pfeister. A batting rally in the seventh enabled the Giants to go into the lead, but Chicago returned in kind in their half of the inning, and, with the score tied up to the tenth, the Cubs secured the odd run with only one man out. The score:

Paterson Club Quits Union League.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., May 25.—The Union League outlaw baseball club of this city is a thing of the past. Manager McCann has returned to this city from Philadelphia, where the Paterson Unions played on Saturday. McCann said the Paterson team had no financial backing, and that about $1,000 was owed the players for salaries. He said he understood that most of the Union League clubs were in poor financial condition, and McCann predicted the outlaws would not last after the Memorial Day games.

American Swimming Try-outs.

The Executive Committee of the American Olympic Games Committee has decided to hold swimming trials in order to enable the committee to select the swimmers to represent America at the Olympic Games. These try-outs will be held at Travers Island on Thursday, June 4, at 2 P. M. The first event will be the trials of all competitors entered, at 200 meters, so as to enable the committee to pick the fastest four men in America for the team race in case it is decided to enter a team.

The feature event was a road run from the clubhouse to Washington Arch and return. About twenty members started, and in a close finish J. Howe won from E. Kearin. C. Clark captured the running high jump with a jump of 4 feet 9 inches. F. Marquand was first in the potato race, and F. Connell secured first prize in a similar event closed to members of the St. Colombo Club.

AMATEUR JOCKEYS MAKE GOOD RACING

Gentlemen Riders Figure in Two Feature Events at Belmont Park.

DION KERR WINS THE CUP

Courtland Smith Takes the Hunter's Steeplechase in a Sharp Finish Against a Professional Rider.

The feature events at the Belmont Park race course yesterday, both stakes framed for amateur riders, one on the flat and the other a hunters' steeplechase, made a pleasing break in the monotony of professional racing, in spite of the doubts with which the betting racegoers viewed the contests. Both races produced uncommonly open speculation, and, better than that, they made close and hard-fought finishes, with a head victory for the winner of the Amateur Cup and a smart struggle through the last half mile for the hunters' chase between the only professional rider in the race and one of the most successful of the gentlemen jockeys, with the victory for the amateur. A large patronage witnessed the sport, which brought about results so far from the public expectations that only one positive favorite was successful in six races.

The best and closest contest was that for the Amateur Cup, one mile, for which eight horses, ridden by the most expert amateur jockeys who could be assembled between Washington and Boston, went to the post. August Belmont was represented by two starters, trained in separate divisions of his racing establishment—Antaeus, ridden by Raymond Belmont under the name of "Mr. Daymon," and Black Oak, ridden by John Tucker—and the entry started favorite, with Master of Craft, ridden by Jay O'Brien, second choice, and Rio Grande, ridden by Dion Kerr, the next in favor.

The Belmont entry was in front most of the distance, Antaeus and Black Oak alternating in the lead, and Black Oak looking to be winning when the horses came to the head of the stretch, where the rider of Antaeus obligingly pulled out, at the request of Mr. Kerr, on Rio Grande, and in pulling out carried Black Oak out and across the track. To that point Mr. Kerr had been snugly shut in behind the Belmont horses on the rail, but when the opening was made for him he came on with Rio Grande, and in a sharply fought finish, with whips at work all around, brought Rio Grande up in time to win by a head from Black Oak, with Antaeus a close third.

Amateur jockeys rode six of the seven runners for the Meadow Brook Hunters' Steeplechase, for which the Hampton Stable started two horses, the partners in the establishment, Courtland Smith and Jay O'Brien, each having a mount, Mr. O'Brien on My Grace and Mr. Smith on Pete Dailey. Bat, owned and ridden by the wealthy amateur F. Ambrose Clark, stepson of Bishop Potter, started a strong favorite, but came to grief just after completing the first round of the field, and fell at the jump immediately in front of the clubhouse. The horses coming behind rolled Mr. Clark over repeatedly, and it looked as if he had been badly hurt until he picked himself up and took a seat on a pile of freshly cut grass at the side of the jump and devoted himself to watching the progress of the race. Ell, ridden by a professional jockey, and Pete Dailey were the most prominent horses through the last round of the field, Pete Dailey leading from the far turn, and, hard pressed by Ell until they came to the last jump, drawing away on the flat at the run in, won cleverly by two lengths, while another hot finish was fought out fifty yards further back between W. C. Hayes, on Flying Machine, and Mr. O'Brien, on My Grace, Flying Machine getting third place by a head.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

The two-year-old filly Suffragette, one of the best-tried of the James R. Keene stable's two-year-olds, ran away yesterday morning while being galloped at the Sheepshead Bay course, and narrowly escaped being killed when she ran against a fence. The filly was slightly cut, and her training may be delayed for a time, but her injuries are not of a nature to cause any permanent harm.

Edward Corrigan, owner of Western race tracks, and a conspicuous figure in both breeding and racing in the West, at Belmont Park yesterday said that he had decided to sell both his race horses in training and his breeding stock, but would not attempt to sell all at one time. The yearlings from Corrigan's breeding farm are to be sold in New York this season.

The weights for the Grand National Steeplechase Handicap, two miles and a half, to be run next Saturday at Belmont Park, have been announced, with T. S. Martin the top weight with 160 pounds, and John M. P. next in the list with 158. The other high weights are Agent, 155; Mr. McCann, 154; Grand Pa, 153 and Commodore Fontaine, 150.

GREAT NECK LOSES AT POLO.

New Haven Team Plays Surprisingly Well—Two Mishaps.

Special to The New York Times.

GREAT NECK, L. I., May 25.—The opening of the polo season on Long Island was marked this afternoon by a large gathering of society people and sporting devotees at Gracefield, the estate of W. R. and J. P. Grace, for the second Great Neck Challenge Cup competition between the New Haven and Great Neck Polo Clubs.

This afternoon surprise was keen regarding the splendid play put up by the New Haven men. R. T. Keeney carried the burden of the goal scoring, and on the whole the Long Island men were utterly outclassed. J. P. Grace and George Millburn redeemed the game for the Great Neck four.

In the fifth period George Millburn came to grief when his horse, stumbling, plunged forward on his knees and rolled over, throwing him heavily. He remounted and continued play. The list of disasters was completed in the last period, when a mallet, rising for a well-aimed backward stroke, landed on the knee of W. R. Grace, who was obliged to withdraw. A man on the New Haven team then withdrew to even up, and the game was finished with three on a side. Line-up and summary:

NEW HAVEN.		GREAT NECK.

MURDOCH TOURISTS AT PHILADELPHIA

Packard Car Makes Record-Breaking Trip Across the Continent.

RUN ENDS HERE TO-DAY

Distance of 3,778 Miles from San Francisco to Quaker City Covered in Thirty-two Days.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—J. H. Murdoch arrived in Philadelphia at 4:30 this afternoon in his Packard 30 horse power car, having made a record-breaking trip for a pleasure touring car across the continent from Los Angeles. He left the latter city at 2 o'clock in the morning on April 24, his time to Philadelphia having been 32 days, and to-morrow morning he will start for New York, where his long run will end.

Mr. Murdoch's trip is unique in transcontinental automobile runs, in that it was undertaken purely as a pleasure trip in his own private car, and he had no relay or extra part awaiting him at any point of the route. His running distance to Philadelphia aggregates 3,778 miles, and his actual running time was 25 days. He did not run on any of the five Sundays. Another day was omitted on account of rain, and the seventh day he devoted to absolute rest.

Another unique feature, and, in view of the success of the trip, most interesting from its demonstration of the utility of the standard American car to undertake long pleasure journeys with perfect security and assurance, was the fact that Mr. Murdoch's car carried seven passengers. Besides the owner, the passengers were Mrs. Murdoch, their three children, Lillian, 16 years; Alice, 14 years, and J. H. Murdoch, Jr., 10 years; the mechanician, Philip de Meyard, and P. W. Spaulding, a lawyer of Evanston, Wyo.

Mr. Murdoch had the assistance of L. L. Whitman from Los Angeles to Ogden. Mr. Whitman is well known to autoists as having made two or three early transcontinental runs, but he had never been over the southern route to Ogden, and at Mr. Murdoch's invitation gladly joined him to that place.

"I did not start out with the intention of making a tourist record across the continent," said Mr. Murdoch to-night at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. "I have often wondered whether I could go across the continent with my family, and when we started it was simply with the idea of going as far as we could comfortably and then shipping the car to my home in Johnstown, Penn. Well, we are here, and the journey is not ended, as I have not yet reached New York, but the story of a fairly comfortable trip speaks for itself."

Mr. Murdoch's southern trip out of Los Angeles covers part of the route that will be taken by the cars on the return run on the double transcontinental contest to be started under the auspices of THE NEW YORK TIMES in August.

"With the exception of the run through Death Valley, comparatively little difficulty will be encountered. It is far better going east than west, as the winds blow generally from the west, and in these extensive desert sandy stretches it is a big benefit to have them at your back rather than in your face. My shortest day's run was 67 miles, to Garlic Springs in Death Valley, Nev., and my longest run was from Johnstown to Philadelphia to-day, 242 miles."

Mr. Murdoch's Packard car consumed 509 gallons of gasoline on the run to this city. He had very little tire trouble, and reached Ogden, 1,002 miles from Los Angeles, with the same set of tires he started out with. He carried a tent and cooking outfit, and only once was obliged to camp out in the open air.

"My worst day's run was through Death Valley," he said. "The shifting sand obliterates all trace of any road. The low clearance of our car was also troublesome, and we had to stop frequently to shovel the sand away beneath the machine. We carried five days' provisions with us, and plenty of water. The furthest away from railroad communication that we got was midway between Goldfield and Ely.

"We had a hard time getting around the Great Salt Lake. It had rained and the road was two feet deep in water and the mud four feet deep. We finally had to take to the railroad tracks and had a bumpy run of five miles over the ties."

From Cheyenne east Mr. Murdoch had practically no difficulty. Mr. Murdoch had driven his Packard car over 5,000 miles before starting on his long run.

NEW RACE PROSPECTS.

Automobile Club to Report on Proposed Contest at Savannah.

The Contest Committee of the Automobile Club of America met last night at the clubhouse, on Fifty-fourth Street, and is supposed to have formulated a favorable report to the Board of Governors of the club on the proposal to hold a second international race over the Savannah course. The committee, however, will make no announcement of its action until after the Board of Governors' meeting to-day. The meeting of the Racing Board of the American Automobile Association will be held meantime at the association headquarters on Fifth Avenue, and its attitude toward the proposed new race and the protests of the Automobile Clubs of France and Great Britain will be made known.

VANDERBILT GETS RIBBONS.

Wins Two Classes at Philadelphia's Fashionable Horse Show.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—The seventeenth annual exhibition of the Philadelphia Horse Show Association opened at St. Martin's Green, Wissahickon, to-day, under auspicious circumstances. The day was bright and clear, with just enough breeze stirring to temper the sun's rays, and society and equine admirers turned out in force.

Awards were made in six classes, and to Reginald C. Vanderbilt fell the honor of winning the first blue ribbon, his chestnut gelding, Dr. Selwonk, triumphing in Class 29 for horses in harness. The other blue ribbon winners were:

Western Athletes Expelled.

Word was received from Chicago yesterday that the biggest scandal the Western colleges have experienced in years has just been brought to the surface by the expulsion of Raymond Quigley, Captain and star sprinter of the University of Chicago track team, and Freeman Morgan, broad jumper, from all intercollegiate competitions. From the evidence received Quigley won and kept a purse of $10 at a celebration on July 4 of last year at Cripple Creek, Col., which was only three weeks after he had been elected Captain of the Chicago team. Morgan's offense was in deserting the Chicago team for a dinner at the Midlothian Country Club in preference to representing his club in the dual meet with Wisconsin. The absence of these two men from the meet with the Badgers caused the defeat of Chicago by two points.

McGovern to Box Robson To-night.

Terry McGovern makes his first New York appearance in a ring to-night since he defeated Jimmy Britt at Madison Square Garden two years ago. McGovern's "come-back" will be in a six-round bout with Spike Robson, the English champion, at the National Athletic Club, 147-149 East Twenty-fourth Street.

N. Y. A. C. FORFEITED RACE.

Mercury Foot Oarsmen Unable to Meet Pennsylvania in Row-Off.

The row-off between the eight-oared crews of the New York Athletic Club and the University of Pennsylvania, which was scheduled to take place on the Schuylkill River, Philadelphia, yesterday, was called off by Coach Gianinni. The two crews rowed a dead heat at the American Rowing Association regatta at Philadelphia on Saturday. As it was too dark to row on the same day after the scheduled races were finished, Coaches Ellis Ward and Gianinni decided to row off the dead heat yesterday afternoon.

Coach Gianinni notified the members of the Mercury Foot crew upon his arrival at the hotel, but learned that, owing to important business engagements of several of the oarsmen in this city yesterday, it would be impossible to carry out the programme. He at once notified the stewards and manager of the Pennsylvania crew and left for New York with his men late Saturday night.

As a result of this forfeiture by the New York Athletic Club the Stewards' Plaque, which was the prize, was awarded to the Red and Blue crew. An effort is being made to induce Coach Ward to send the Quaker crew to this city next Saturday to meet the New York Athletic Club in the senior eight-oared race at the regatta of the Harlem Regatta Association.

Cornell Crew Badly Crippled.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 25.—Within five days of the race with Harvard on the Charles River, the Cornell Navy is to-night without a 'Varsity crew. Sanger, who has been rowing bow in the 'Varsity for the last fortnight, was ordered to the infirmary to-day by a physician for treatment, making the second man out of the 'Varsity eight to be sent to the hospital this year. Coach Courtney to-night declared that never in his career had he faced such a dilemma. To break up his second 'Varsity for the doubtful expedient of finding a man to take Sanger's place meant, in his opinion, to lose the second race against Pennsylvania Saturday. On the other hand, defeat at Boston seems inevitable unless some strong oarsman is found to take Sanger's place. There are no substitutes.

Hadley, No. 3 in the Freshman boat, was dismissed from the squad for insubordination to-night.

QUAKERS SEND FEW ENTRIES.

Only Three Philadelphia Crews Will Compete in Memorial Day Regatta.

Philadelphia will be represented by only three crews in the Memorial Day regatta of the Harlem Regatta Association. In view of the fact that thirteen New York crews took part in the American Rowing Association regatta, much surprise was manifested last night when the entries were opened by the Regatta Committee at the Harlem Casino. The committee feels that it has been slighted by the Quakers, as Harlem River clubs have always sent big representations to the regattas on the Schuylkill River.

The total number of entries received was sixty-five, which is considerably less than in previous regattas. The features of this year's big event will be an eight-oared race for schoolboys and an exhibition by the Atalanta Boat Club eight-oared crew that won the championship in 1889 and 1890. The trial heats will be rowed in the morning and the finals in the afternoon.

Yale Navy Goes on Thames Next Week

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 25.—Permission was to-day given by the Yale faculty for the Yale rowing squad to go to Gales Ferry on the Thames next Wednesday to remain until the regatta with Harvard, which is scheduled for June 25. The 'Varsity eight, 'Varsity four, with three 'Varsity substitutes, and the freshman eight with four substitutes will compose the rowing retinue, while Coach Kennedy, the managers, and two faculty representatives will accompany the squad. The 'Varsity eight as made up to-day is as follows: Stroke, Griswold; No. 7, Capt. Ide; No. 6, Howe; No. 5, Dunkle; No. 4, Hunt; No. 3, Rice; No. 2, Peyton; bow, Auchincloss.

Robert Hale Noyes, Jr., who was Captain of the 'Varsity eight last year until forced to resign because of ill health, has been appointed head coach of the freshman eight.

De Witt Clinton Crew Did Not Row.

The schoolboy crew candidates of the De Witt Clinton School are prohibited by the faculty from practicing on Sundays. It was reported that the school crew, which is entered in the Memorial Day regatta on the Harlem River, practiced last Sunday under Capt. John Nagle of the Harlem Rowing Club, who is coaching the crew. Capt. Nagle says the crew did not row last Sunday, but the Stuyvesant boys were out during the morning, which caused the erroneous impression, as the Stuyvesant boys were mistaken for De Witt Clinton.

HUGHES EXPLAINS INSURANCE BILL VETO

Thinks Mitigation of Restrictions Would Cause Return to Old Injurious Conditions.

CITES GAINS BY ECONOMY

Bill Limiting Nominations to One Place on a Ballot Held to be Wholly Indefensible.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 25.—In an extended memorandum Gov. Hughes gives his reasons for not approving the bill of the Assembly Insurance Committee, which would have amended the insurance law so as to mitigate the restrictions made by the legislation which followed the life insurance investigation of 1905 upon the expenditures of life insurance companies doing business in this State in obtaining new business.

The Governor holds that the act would "permit unwarrantable outlays and facilitate a return to the injurious conditions of past years." The proposed limitation of first-year commissions to 50 per cent., for instance, the Governor says, "is illusory and not real," for, he goes on to say, "it is not simply the rate of commission in which the policy holders are interested, but the amount which is actually paid out under any form of compensation in the effort to obtain new business."

With special reference to a proposed modification of the existing prohibition of bonuses, prizes, and additional compensation, "based upon the volume of any new or renewed business or the aggregate of policies written or paid for," the Governor says that "the abuses which had arisen through the promise of bonuses and rewards of various sorts for obtaining a given amount of business made it advisable to impose the present restrictions. No sufficient reason appears for a change in this policy, and in any event the amendment could not be approved in the ambiguous form now proposed."

New Business Extravagance.

"Nothing was more clearly revealed in the legislative investigation of insurance conditions," says the Governor, "than the losses which had been inflicted upon the policy holders by wastefulness and extravagance in the rivalry to secure new business."

Of the much-discussed falling off in the amount of business written by the New York companies during the year since the present law became operative, Gov. Hughes says that "it is unnecessary to attempt a statement of all the causes which produced this result. It is desirable, of course, that new business to normal extent, based upon normal cost, should be obtained. There is no sufficient reason to doubt that it will be." He cites statistics to show that the New York Life, Mutual Life, and Equitable made gains of millions in "loadings" and, he adds, that the comparison would be still more striking if it were made with the years preceding 1906. He continues:

Gains of Economy.

"The gains from economical management have already been reflected in largely increased amounts set apart for payment in dividends, and the policyholders will reap large benefits from the reduction of expenses.

Stating his reasons for not approving the bill of Senator Gilchrist, which it was held would prevent the nomination of any political candidate by more than one party, the Governor says, "this bill provides that the name of a person nominated for any office, except a judicial office, shall not be printed upon the official general ballot for any election more than once under the title of such office.

"This measure is wholly indefensible. Undoubtedly one of the criticisms of the present form of ballot is that candidates' names frequently appear in several columns, but the remedy is to change the form of ballot and to abolish the party column."

STAND BY COTTON SYSTEM.

Exchange Report Says Grading Plan Criticised by Investigators Is Sound.

The annual report of the Cotton Exchange, submitted to the members yesterday, makes no apology for the system of fixing the discounts and premiums on grades of cotton below and above the standard grade of "middling," which was roundly condemned in the recent report to Commissioner Herbert Knox Smith. On this score the report says:

> It is extremely gratifying to find that the strict and careful grading, classing, and stapling of cotton by our Classification Committee is commanding the confidence of the cotton trade more and more. The mills and the sellers of cotton are realizing that disputes between them can best be settled by sending the samples to this impartial and expert tribunal, whose decision is based solely upon the real grade and quality of the cotton.
>
> This privilege is open to every one, nonmembers as well as members, upon payment of the regulation fees. Of course, this does not carry a guarantee against loss that our certificated cotton does, but that it is satisfactory is shown by the fact that this past year the committee has classed, &c., for non-members 43,380 bales, of which 80 per cent. was sent by mills from all parts of the country, Southern and Northern, and even from New Brunswick, in Canada.

The report, which is for the Exchange's thirty-eighth year, shows a falling off of profits compared with the previous year of $5,485.43, the actual figures being $7,381.47. The Exchange now has 420 active members and 20 extra memberships.

STOLE TO SUPPORT 2 WIVES.

Harry Brant, Held for Larceny and Bigamy, Laughs as He Is Arraigned.

Harry Brant, 23 years old, a bookkeeper, of 219 West 111th Street laughed and chatted in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, although he was there to face two wives and an employer, who charged that he he had robbed him.

Wife No. 1, who was Miss Susan Catherine Werner, carried a 15-month-old baby in her arms. Wife No. 2, who was Miss Dorothy Schlomer, fainted on the stand. She is only 19 years old. Wife No. 1 is 21 years old.

Brant was arrested last Friday on the charge of his employer, William Fox, a truckman, of 83 Worcester Street, that he had stolen $1,000 from him by fasifying the books since last September, and yesterday morning two women appeared at Mr. Fox's office at the same time, each saying she was the wife of his bookkeeper, and each anxious to know where Brant was.

"Why did you steal from your employer?" Magistrate Finn asked Brant.

"To keep the women, of course," he replied.

After characterizing Brant as a heartless young scoundrel, Magistrate Finn held him in $2,000 bail on the charge of bigamy, and $1,500 on the charge of grand larceny.

SUICIDE'S BODY IN THE RIVER.

But Not "Packed in a Barrel," as Some Accounts Had It Yesterday.

Floating in the East River off Thomas Jefferson Park, at East 113th Street, the body of Mrs. Helen Hart, 53 years old, of 457 East 138th Street, was found yesterday morning. The body was taken to the Morgue, where George Hart, the woman's son, of 151 West 130th Street, identified it as that of his mother.

Capt. George W. Bockower of Tug 3 of the Harlem River tugboats discovered the body while going through Little Hell Gate. Near it floated a piece of wood attached to her clothing. The body was taken to the Recreation Pier at the foot of 112th Street. The body had been bruised by striking some obstacle in the water.

According to her son, Mrs. Hart disappeared from home on May 10. He said that he had expected that she would commit suicide, as she had often threatened to do so. Mrs. Hart had been a widow for four years. She was slightly demented.

Several accounts were printed yesterday of the finding of the body, which made it appear that it had been found packed in a barrel, and that the woman had been the victim of a sensational murder.

POTATO TRUST GETS MANAGER

Long Island Combination Will Pay Its Profits to Farmers.

The Long Island potato farmers who same days ago formed a trust to control and distribute the product have found a man to become General Manager.

Out in Suffolk County people are said to be so down on trusts that no one could be induced to accept the job of General Manager, presumably because it was called the Potato Trust. However, the objections of Willis D. Van Brunt of Southampton were overcome when he was informed that the salary was $2,500.

The official name of the trust is the Long Island Produce Exchange, and it is incorporated under the laws of New York State. The 2,000 shares of stock have already been sold among the producers. The members will sell their potatoes through the Exchange, which will fix the prices and pay the profits in dividends.

If the Potato Trust succeeds, a trust to handle cauliflower and other vegetables is possible.

GOFF SCORES JACKSON

For Consenting to Adjournment of an Election Case—Prisoner Disappears.

Justice Goff scored Attorney General Jackson yesterday for consenting to the postponement of an election case for which a special panel of jurors had been called in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. The Justice's remarks were addressed to Deputy Attorney General Palmieri, who stated that Mr. Jackson had agreed to the adjournment.

"The Attorney General's behavior is very thoughtless," said Justice Goff, "and shows a disregard of his duty as an officer of the court. It is a very improper action that he has performed."

The Justice then ordered the case to be tried, but as the defendant, Cornelius J. Smallen, who is charged with attempting to aid and abet false registration in the Nineteenth Assembly District, did not appear, his bond of $2,000 was declared forfeited, and a bench warrant was issued for him.

CITY ACCOUNTANT DISMISSED.

Loudoun Charged with Certifying a Restaurateur on Payrolls.

Wood D. Loudoun, Chief Examiner of Accounts in the office of the Commissioners of Accounts, was dismissed yesterday for certifying on the payroll an accountant named Schenck, who had been at work in a restaurant.

ST. LOUIS, May 25.—The Rev. Father Joseph F. Lubeley, who was brought to St. Mary's Infirmary after having been stabbed by Joseph Schutte, at the end of the mass at Salisbury, Mo., yesterday, was reported by his attendants to be resting comfortably to-day. Unless unlooked-for complications arise, it is believed he will be able to leave the hospital within three weeks.

Suit for Morse Bank Stock Goes Over.

The suit of Receiver Hanna of the National Bank of North America against the Metropolitan Trust Company, which was to have been tried yesterday before Judge Lacombe and a jury in the United States Circuit Court, was adjourned until to-morrow. The action is to recover 1,000 shares of the stock of the Chase National Bank pledged with the trust company by Charles W. Morse, which Receiver Hanna says is the property of the failed bank.

RECOUNT FIGHT IS HELD UP AGAIN

No Decision After Day of Argument Over Opening Ballot Boxes.

WILL BRING THEM TO COURT

"If They're Wanted," Says Justice Lambert, but He Reserves Decision on Order for Production.

After a week's adjournment the trial of the Mayoralty recount suit was resumed before Supreme Court Justice Lambert yesterday. The day was taken up in argument on opening the ballot boxes. No decision was made. Deputy Attorney General Dolson offered in evidence the ballot box from the Sixth Election District of the Second Assembly District. He maintained that the evidence proved it had been kept inviolate, and asked that it be opened and the ballots compared with the election returns.

Eugene Lamb Richards, counsel for Mayor McClellan, put in seventeen reasons against the acceptance of the ballot box in evidence, his principal contention being that there was no authority under the election law for such action.

Mr. Richards insisted that Attorney General Jackson and Clarence J. Shearn had failed to establish reasonable proof of the identity of even one ballot box.

Mr. Dolson had not finished his argument when Justice Lambert took up the matter of an order which Corporation Counsel Pendleton got earlier in the day from Justice Guy, directing Attorney General Jackson to show cause before Justice Lambert why a subpoena duces tecum, directing President Dooling of the Board of Elections, to produce certain ballot boxes, should not be vacated. Justice Lambert reserved decision until today.

"We'll have the boxes here," said Justice Lambert, "if the boxes are wanted. I don't want you to understand that my decision will be in favor of opening the boxes, but we will have the ballots here if they are wanted. We won't stand on ceremony."

RUSHING CORN TO CHICAGO.

Western Farmers Taking Advantage of the High Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, May 25.—Western farmers are continuing to pour corn on the market by train loads, owing to the high price of that grain, due to the corner on the Chicago Board of Trade. To-day 324 cars of corn were received at the Omaha Grain Exchange, each car averaging 1,000 bushels.

Practically the entire 324,000 bushels will be shipped to Chicago Tuesday. To-day 165,000 bushels were started for that city from Omaha. All railroads are rushing the corn through in thirty-six hours, and shipments may leave Omaha as late as Thursday night and still be in time for delivery on May contracts in Chicago.

BAN ON OYSTER BAY DOGS.

Bounty of $2 on Every Stray One Killed Before Roosevelt Arrives.

Before the arrival of President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, L. I., for the Summer, every stray dog in Oyster Bay, Locust Valley, Mill Neck, Glen Cove, Sea Cliff, and East Norwich is to be killed. There has never before been any effort to rid these villages of stray curs. Nobody wanted the job of dog catcher at 25 cents a head, and the constables turned up their official noses at the suggestion that they should kill the dogs.

All this is changed now, however. The Town Board is offering $2 a piece for all dogs killed. A dog catcher is to be appointed in each of the fourteen election districts, and men are said to be tumbling over one another to get the jobs.

Slow Progress on Westinghouse Plan.

Stockholders of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, who have come in under the rehabilitation plan, have sent in checks in large numbers for the 25 per cent. initial payment which fell due yesterday. Since the original call the time for participation has been extended to June 1. Subscriptions have not yet been received in sufficient numbers to insure the success of the plan, but it is hoped that stockholders will come in in sufficient numbers before June 1 to prevent the sale of the property.

Stocks Make Recoveries — Call Money Rates, 1½@1¾ Per Cent.

MORE GOLD ENGAGEMENTS

One Shipment to Switzerland—Burlington Bond Offering Success—Copper Metal Prices Down.

After such violent declines as those which occurred in prices on Saturday reaction was to be expected. For a few moments after the opening the closing out of accounts where there had been no response to calls for margin served to carry quotations off to figures somewhat under those of the close on Saturday, but thereafter the course of yesterday's market was forward with unimportant recessions of a temporary nature. At the end of the day the recoveries in the principal shares ran from 2 to 3 points or so, and final prices were in most instances the highest of the day. There was nothing in the day's news to further the recovery, which was due almost exclusively to technical conditions within the market itself. The appearance of weakness early last week and the collapse on Saturday induced apparently a considerable volume of speculative short selling based on expectations of profits to be derived from further declines. When such declines failed to put in an appearance yesterday morning the speculators concerned hastened to buy back stocks, with resulting advances in prices. One rather noteworthy feature of the trading was the heavy selling early in the day for London account. It was estimated that this comprised not less than 40,000 shares, and the explanation commonly offered was that it represented liquidation brought about by the impression produced abroad by the institution of the Government's suit against the New Haven. It is, however, a favorite operation of local speculators to sell through London in this market stock which they fear to offer direct. The real question of the effect of the New Haven proceedings upon the investor has not as yet been answered, but it is satisfactory to know that it has interfered in no way with such a bond offering as that of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, made through a local banking house yesterday and largely oversubscribed. On the Metal Exchange the price of copper was reduced, following numerous advances of late, and on the Cotton Exchange a rise of $1.50 a bale occurred largely as a result of manipulation, based on the floods in the South and Southwest.

Engagements of gold were resumed during the day and before its close $2,850,000 had been taken, all but $600,000 of this for German account. The $600,000 was taken for Switzerland and marks the first operation of this kind reported. It was believed in London that of the $3,500,000 of Cape Town gold arriving yesterday and ostensibly taken for Paris the destination of a considerable portion was really Berlin. The German Bank reporting for the week noted an increase of $8,460,000 in cash and decreases of $3,600,000 in loans, and $13,560,000 in notes. The feeling is now growing in foreign exchange circles here that the export movement is nearing its close.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—A comparatively few stocks absorbed the bulk of to-day's local trading, most of them belonging to the arbitrage class. Rapid Transit continued fairly active, but moved in a direction opposite to that which had been expected, owing to the accident on its Chestnut Hill Branch. Union Traction rose over a point, as did United Gas Improvement. Cambria Steel strengthened slightly and Lehigh Valley also improved, as did Lehigh Navigation trust certificates. The inactive stocks displayed irregularity. Total sales, 24,302 shares.

NO U. P. FINANCING YET.

Officials Meet, but Take No Action on the Bond Issue Plans.

A conference of Union Pacific officials yesterday afternoon led to a revival of rumors that an issue of some of the $100,000,000 of bonds recently authorized was imminent. After the issue had been authorized it was said on authority that although $25,0000,000 would take care of immediate needs, an additional amount would be put out to provide for improvements.

The latest estimate of the amount to be put out at this time has been $40,000,000, and it has been stated that the price would be 93. Yesterday's rumor put the price at 94.

An official of the company declared last night that nothing was done yesterday in regard to the new financing, and that the meeting had considered only routine matters.

Sales for the day were estimated at 6,250 bags, the business including July at 6.10, September at 6.05@6.10, and December at 6.05.

Further details regarding the proposed sales of Government coffee at Hamburg and Rotterdam show that three types will be offered. Type No. 3, which is said to correspond to strictly good average, is to be offered at a limit equal to about 50 francs; Type No. 2, 53 francs, and Type No. 1, 56 francs. Hamburg closed unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower. Havre was ¼ to ½ franc lower at the New York opening, and closed on about that basis. Rio declined 100 and Santos 50 reis. GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Heavy rains throughout Texas and Oklahoma, affecting harvest operations, gave strength to the wheat market yesterday, supplemented by some complaint about Hessian fly in Kansas and rust in Missouri. A notable increase in the movement at Southwest points was shown. Liverpool closed ⅜d net higher. Weekly shipments were especially heavy to the United Kingdom. There was no export business. Cash wheat at New York was quoted as follows: No. 2 red, $1.05 nominal in elevator and $1.00¾ nominal free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.17⅛, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.12 free on board afloat.

CORN.—Reports that one of the big shorts at Chicago had made a private settlement broke in that market. Selling was soon checked by predictions for rain, and late months quickly recovered, holding firm for the day. Liverpool was active, and 1d higher. No. 2 corn in New York closed 78c asked, elevator, and 76c nominal free on board afloat.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Force of New Haven Incident.

Traders are not quite sure of themselves, whatever position they may happen to occupy just at the moment. The reaction since last Friday was sufficient to worry even the most confident bull, particularly those who regarded such stocks as Union Pacific and Reading as the leaders and directing influence in the market. Those bearishly inclined made the most of the New Haven incident, but there is a difference of opinion as to its real significance. If it be true that the initiative in that matter rests with the Attorney General, some profess to believe that it has not the dangerous significance that it might possess had it originated with the chief trust buster himself, or with some one supposed to be more directly concerned with the enforcement of his policies. Railroad men who are asked by brokers said simply that it did not make any difference where it originated, the fact itself was not wholesome from their point of view. Naturally brokers, professionals, politicians, and railroad men hold divergent views in this case, and it is mighty hard for the average trader who realizes that it is at least a tangible factor in the situation, to determine its real significance.

⁂

Activity in Tractions.

There was enough in the traction situation yesterday to attract attention to the various stocks generally grouped under that title, and some of the developments were interesting and suggestive. The opening price for Brooklyn Rapid Transit was, of course, in response to the Governor's veto of the Coney Island Five-Cent Fare bill, but it looked as if the stock had been opened up at a substantial advance in a more or less artificial manner, and while the subsequent fluctuations did not show any tendency to react materially, there was no disposition manifest in the stock to run away. Interborough stocks showed very substantial strength, and tips were very plentiful concerning them. Bullishness was attributed to the so-called Arnold report, but there were few in the district who understood just what the details of this report were. Third Avenue responded to the general optimism in tractions, and Metropolitan Street Railway was quoted leisurely at 27, or thereabout.

⁂

Gold Export Outlook.

No attention is paid whatever to gold exports, and the best test of this is that the chronic announcer of ticker items in the various offices does not think it worth his while to inform his brother-traders that such and such a firm has engaged so much gold. The big surplus of the banks, the belief that we can easily spare the gold, the further belief that other factors are of more importance, and the assurance of the banking fraternity that it is perfectly natural that we should send back part of the gold which we received, all tend to minimize the importance of gold exports. Disregarding the quotations for exchange and the volume of the gold exports, an expert in foreign exchange had this to say yesterday: "I do not pretend to look at the situation from the orthodox point of view, but rather through the glasses of a friend of mine, who is in close touch with monetary conditions abroad. From what he has told me and from my own observations, it seems to me barely possible that before this export movement concludes we shall be paying more attention to it and not be content to ignore it absolutely. Our bankers are not ignoring it, of course, but it is a question whether there may not be a greater demand than we have figured on in the first place, and in the next place that we shall be so well able to afford the transfer abroad."

⁂

Views of a Congressman.

One of the visitors in a brokerage office in the financial district yesterday morning was a Congressman from one of the neighboring States, who has been long enough in Congress to be able to size up the prevailing sentiment and skeptical enough of the promises from Washington to analyze them in the light of his own knowledge of individual feelings among the leaders. He said: "It would not surprise me if an attempt were made to put an emergency currency bill through before the end of the session. We cannot get away until the end of the week, principally because so many conference reports have to be acted upon, and because many individual Congressmen have pet bills that they want put through. Believe me, however, that any compromise measure with a little of the Aldrich bill in it, a little of the Vreeland bill, a little of the Fowler bill, and a little of the suggestion of Speaker Cannon, Mr. Burton, and the other experts, will not be likely to help you folks down here, or, for that matter, help any one at all. My advice is that you tell your Congressman to let it go over until December."

⁂

Government Bond Market.

Government bond dealers are more or less interested in currency legislation and are speculating as to the effect it will have on their business. Just at the moment the market for Government bonds is dull, and there is no particular reason to suppose that there will be any activity until Congress and currency talk have ended for the season. One thing is certain, however, and that is that the high prices paid for bonds last Fall are not likely to be duplicated again, possibly in the history of the country. For example, 2 per cents. sold as high as 109½. They were quoted yesterday—those of 1930—at about 103½ to 103⅝. There is a possibility of an advance from this price, but undoubtedly not sufficient to approximate the high record figure. One thing must be taken into consideration in figuring what loss may accrue to those who purchased Government bonds at the high figure last Fall, and that is that the purchase of the bonds and their deposit to secure circulation made possible the obtaining of currency which would in any event, to secure an equivalent amount, have cost them 3 per cent. premium. Thus the bonds utilized at the high prices as a basis for circulation might be said to average about 106½.

BURLINGTON SELLS BONDS.

J. P. Morgan & Co. Take $16,000,000 Worth of $300,000,000 Issue.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad has sold to J. P. Morgan & Co. $16,000,000 4 per cent. fifty-year general mortgage bonds, being part of a $300,000,000 issue previously authorized by the stockholders to be issued under an indenture dated March 2 last. This is a general refunding issue and is intended in addition to provide for the future requirements of the system. It was stated yesterday that the authorization of this large bond issue, which is about $130,000,000 in excess of the bonds of the system now outstanding, has no reference to any plan for a readjustment of Burlington ownership through some form of retirement of Burlington joint 4s.

The bonds are offered by J. P. Morgan & Co. at 95½ and interest. They are coupon bonds with the privilege of registration of both principal and interest. The application for the bonds received by the bankers yesterday more than covered the entire present issue of the bonds. Lee, Higginson & Co. are offering the bonds in Boston.

$3,100,000 More Gold Exported.

Further exports of gold were arranged yesterday to the extent of $3,100,000, of which $1,500,000 was taken in coin and $1,600,000 in gold bars, the latter by the National City Bank. Part of this bar gold, it was stated, will be shipped to Switzerland, the balance being divided between Paris and Berlin. This brings the total gold engagements on this movement up to $33,600,000, all but $3,000,000 of which was shipped in the form of gold bars.

SOME ROADS FAVORED BY STANDARD OIL CO.

The St. Paul, Which Has Oil Trust Men as Directors, Paid Double Price for Lubricant.

Price Discrimination in Favor of the Pennsylvania Brought Out—Roads "Educated" to Higher Prices.

When the Standard Oil Company started to present its defense yesterday to the Government's suit against the New Jersey corporation, seeking to dissolve it under the Sherman Anti-trust law, a surprise was in store for the oil company's chief counsel, Moritz Rosenthal. When Frank B. Kellogg, the Government's lawyer, got through with one of the Standard Oil witnesses he had laid bare more trade secrets than he had gleaned from the same witness when he had appeared six months ago in response to a Government subpoena.

The hearing was resumed before Examiner Ferris in Room 722 of the new Custom House. There was a formidable array of counsel, Mr. Kellogg being reinforced by E. D. Durant, Deputy Commissioner of Corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor; J. Howard Graves of the Department of Justice, W. B. Hunter, Special Agent of the Bureau of Corporations, and C. B. Morrison. The Standard Oil is represented by Moritz Rosenthal, Frank L. Crawford, and John G. Milburn.

Mr. Kellogg, who is acting as a Special Deputy Attorney General in the Standard Oil suit, brought out the fact that the Galena Signal Oil Company, a Standard subsidiary, is charging some railroads more than 100 per cent. more for their lubricating oil than others, and that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, of which H. H. Rogers, William Rockefeller, and C. W. Harkness, all leading lights in the Standard Oil Company, are Directors, has to pay the highest price. On the other hand, the Pennsylvania Railroad, on whose Board of Directors there are no Standard Oil Directors, pays less than the price for lubricating oil charged to the St. Paul. The lubricating oil used by both roads is of the same grade and is supplied by the Galena Signal Company. C. C. Steinbrenner, General Manager of the Galena Signal concern, a witness called by the Standard Oil counsel, made the admissions about the discrimination in prices. After Mr. Steinbrenner had corrected some of the statements he had made on the witness stand in October last, he was turned over to Mr. Kellogg for cross-examination.

"Isn't it a fact that you charged the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad one and a half times as much for lubricating their rolling stock as you charged the Pennsylvania?" asked the Government's lawyer.

"Yes," replied Mr. Steinbrenner.

Lost Money for the "Advertising."

"And you have been losing money on the Pennsylvania contract for ten years?"

"Yes, that is so," replied the witness.

Mr. Kellogg then suggested that the Galena Signal Company had been earning 100 per cent. on its capital stock, and wanted to know if the money that was lost on such contracts as the Pennsylvania was made up at the expense of such roads as the St. Paul.

"We made it up in our general business," said Mr. Steinbrenner.

"Why do you furnish oil to the Pennsylvania at a loss?" asked Mr. Kellogg, leaning forward eagerly and looking the witness in the eye. The reply seemed to surprise the Government's lawyer.

"For advertising," said Mr. Steinbrenner. "For the effect on our European trade that supplying such a road as the Pennsylvania has."

It was brought out that the St. Paul now pays 100 per cent., the full invoice price for lubricating oil, while for ten years prior to 1908 it paid 93 per cent. of the invoice price. The road is supplied by contract and charged so much per 1,000 miles. There is a rebate to the railroad if the quantity of lubricating oil used per 1,000 miles for a month is less than the amount stipulated in the contract. And on the other hand, if the road uses more oil than the amount stipulated in the contract it is obliged to pay accordingly.

The Pennsylvania Railroad for the last ten years has paid only 38.5 per cent. of the invoice price to the Galena Signal Company. The Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, commonly known as the Panhandle, which is also a Pennsylvania property, has for the last ten years paid only 44.1 per cent., and the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg have paid 56.1 per cent. of the invoice price. Another road which is obliged to pay the full invoice price is the New York Central. William Rockefeller is a Director in the New York Central.

Mr. Steinbrenner, under cross-examination, said his company was making an effort to get control of the railroad lubricating business of the entire country, and hoped to get it soon. He admitted that in addition to the Pennsylvania Railroad, his company supplied oil at a loss to the Southern Pacific and the Central Railroad of Georgia for the advertising gained in that way. On the Union Pacific is one of the roads on which the Galena Signal makes a profit, the charge being almost the full invoice price.

Mr. Kellogg brought out the fact that the roads which are now paying 100 per cent. of the invoice price for lubricating oil were formerly supplied by the Galena Signal at a smaller figure, but that the percentage of invoice price demanded was shoved up after it was demonstrated to the road how great a saving could be made by allowing the oil company to do the lubricating by contract.

Mr. Steinbrenner said that his company was trying to "educate" the railroads up to figures which would mean profit to the oil company, and in some cases this has been done. A staff of "educators" is maintained by the oil company. These "educators" instruct the railroad men in the economic use of lubricants, and by statistics try to convince the railroads that a saving is effected by allowing the oil company to furnish the lubricants by contract.

Educated to Higher Prices.

"In other words, you educate the railroads up to a rise in price of oil," suggested Mr. Kellogg.

"Yes," admitted Mr. Steinbrenner, with a smile.

Edward W. McKenna, Second Vice President of the St. Paul, testified in defense of the Galena Signal Oil Company.

Mr. McKenna submitted tables showing that in 1892 the St. Paul road had 8,109 hot boxes on its freight cars in a total mileage of 87,000,000 covered during the year, and that in 1906 there were only 5,912 hot boxes, although the rolling stock covered 476,728,000 miles. This, he said, was in a large measure due to the better lubrication.

Partial to Standard Oil Product.

"If another oil company offered to put in lubricant at a greatly reduced price I would not accept the responsibility of putting it in," he said. "The dangers from faulty lubrication is too great, and there would be human lives in the balance. Public censure in case of an accident would make me hesitate to take on a new kind of lubricant."

Mr. McKenna, in response to questions by Mr. Kellogg as to how the road could pay an ample dividend in spite of the great increase of the cost of lubricating as well as increased expenses all along the line, replied that it was because of the greater amount of freight hauled now.

"Necessity for economy has stimulated more earnest application by the railroad officials," said Mr. McKenna. "A closer inspection is required than formerly. We don't get as good men on the road nowadays as we did twenty-five years ago."

Mr. Kellogg drew Mr. McKenna's attention to the fact that he had omitted to submit a table showing the effect of the use of the oil on the locomotives. Such a list had been ordered by Mr. Kellogg long ago. Mr. McKenna said that he had prepared such a statement, but did not know where it was.

"Well, I want it," said Mr. Kellogg sharply.

"There are a lot of things you want and won't get," retorted Mr. Rosenthal. But Mr. Rosenthal soon cooled down and said he would try to produce the list. It was not, however, until after Mr. Kellogg had asked the witness if he had tried to "befog some one" by bringing only an incomplete list.

COAL TRUST SUIT BEGINS.

Roads Agree to Furnish Government All the Facts They Wish.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—Attorneys representing the coal-carrying railroads and coal companies named as defendants in the Government's suit against the so-called anthracite coal combine, charging control of prices and other violations of the Sherman anti-trust law, attended here to-day the first hearing in the case before Charles Lewis, an attorney appointed by the United States Court to take testimony.

The question taken up to-day had to do with the attitude of the defendants in regard to the obtaining by the Government from them of information in relation to their affairs. The lawyers present declared they would furnish the Government with the information desired.

The Pennsylvania Railroad was asked to furnish the names, capitalization, and the location of all coal companies controlled by that railroad. It is probable that some of the hearings will be held in New York.

COMMODITY CASE JUNE 16.

Roads Will Be Immune Till Decision Is Reached.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The Department of Justice to-day agreed with the coal-carrying railroads that the case involving the constitutionality of the law, which requires railroads owning coal properties to dispose of their holdings before May 1, popularly known as the "commodity clause" of the Hepburn Railroad bill, shall be heard before three Federal Judges in Philadelphia on June 16 next.

In accordance with an understanding with the Department of Justice the case will be tried upon an agreed state of facts, and no prosecutions will be begun against the railroads directly interested in the suit until a decision of the court has been reached.

$20,000 FINE AFFIRMED.

Appeal of the Omaha Railroad in Grain Rebate Case Not Allowed.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 25.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the United States Circuit Court's conviction and the fine of $20,000 imposed on the Omaha Railroad and the two-thousand-dollar fine assessed against its General Freight Agent, H. M. Pearce, in the grain rebate cases last year in Minneapolis.

The appeal of the company is dismissed, the Government's contentions in the lower court being sustained in every particular.

HEINZE AND OHIO COPPER.

He Is Said to be Negotiating for Resale of His Interest.

With the annual meeting of the United Copper Company scheduled for next week, President F. A. Heinze has been for several days past conferring with Thomas Weir and Henry Catrow of Salt Lake City, from whom he purchased a controlling interest in the Ohio Copper Company, with the idea, it is said, of turning back to them the bulk of his interest in the property.

Associates of Mr. Heinze have admitted that he has been in negotiation with the Weir-Catrow interests in Ohio Copper, explaining the deal as part of a plan to obtain needed funds to push the development work through the participation of the minority and majority interests. It was said on good authority yesterday that the deal will leave the control of the company once more in the hands of the original controlling interests. The Ohio Copper Company owns claims in the Bingham district of Utah totaling 120 acres, and the engineers of the company have stated that it will produce copper for from 6 to 7 cents per pound.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

European Bourses Unfavorably Affected by New York Developments.

LONDON, May 25.—Money was in quiet demand on the market to-day, and discounts were easy. The Continental demand for gold had not abated, and Paris secured the bulk of the £790,000 available.

On the Stock Exchange the slump in American securities on Wall Street Saturday caused a flat opening at from 1 to 5 points below the last quotations. Amsterdam and New York selling depressed values below parity. Around noon a moderate recovery set in, but renewed realizations in the afternoon caused the intermediate gains to disappear. Later New York supported the market well, and Union Pacific rose 2 and other securities from ½ to 1 point. The market closed generally steady; the other sections kept steady.

Gilt-edged securities were supported by investors, while foreigners and Kaffirs hardened on Paris support.

Bar silver was steady at 24 9-16d per ounce.

Money, 1@1¼ per cent.

The Stock Exchange here will be closed June 6 and June 8, Whitsuntide holidays.

PARIS, May 25.—Trading on the Bourse to-day opened hesitatingly on New York advices, but subsequently became firm.

BERLIN, May 25.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was sluggish.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Cotton had a strong bull movement yesterday, but notwithstanding the fact that bad weather was one of the bullish factors, late positions were relatively easy. The close was barely steady on near months, which were 35 to 45 points net higher, and steady on distant months, which were 14 to 22 points net higher. Sales were estimated at nearly 500,000 bales.

The market opened steady at a net advance of 5 to 17 points, and was influenced by sensationally firm cables, excessive rains in the Southwest, and reports that important Fall River mills would resume work on full time. Washouts and floods were also reported in the Western belt.

The range of contract prices was as folows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Sat. Close.
May	10.14	10.10	10.32@10.34	9.97
June	10.35	10.35	10.32@10.34	9.97
July	10.41	10.03	10.30@10.32	9.94
August	10.35	9.91	10.23@10.25	9.78
September	9.65	9.60	9.70@ 9.74	9.45
October	9.62	9.40	9.57@ 9.58	9.35
November	9.30	9.30	9.40@ 9.42	9.25
December	9.39	9.24	9.37@ 9.38	9.23
January	9.36	9.21	9.34@ 9.35	9.17
February	..	..	9.33@ 9.34	9.15
March	9.30	9.22	9.32@ 9.34	9.15

The local market for spot cotton was steady and 30 points higher, at 11.50c for middling upland, and 11.75c for middling Gulf. Sales, 1,300 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Savannah quiet, ⅛c higher, at 11⅜c; sales, 1,674 bales. Norfolk firm, ⅛c higher, at 11½c; sales, 665 bales. Augusta firm, ⅛c higher, at 11⅝c; sales, 621 bales. St. Louis very steady, unchanged, at 11¼c; sales, 381 bales. Houston steady, 3-16c higher, at 11⅜c; sales, 306 bales. Galveston firm, ¼c higher, at 11⅝c; sales, 700 bales. New Orleans firm, ¼c higher, at 11½c; sales, 2,050 bales. Memphis steady, ⅛c higher, at 11½c; sales, 3,300 bales.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, May 25.—An area of showers and thunderstorms that covers the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys will advance over the Atlantic States Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Temperatures that ranged above 90 degrees Monday in the Ohio Valley will be seasonable in that region during Tuesday and Wednesday, while in the Atlantic States temperatures will be high Tuesday.

Kite flights at Mount Weather, Virginia, Monday, showed at an elevation of 4,200 feet a temperature of 66 degrees as compared with 72 degrees at the surface. This was about one-half the average gradient for that elevation, and shows unusual warmth in air strata at that height.

Winds on the Middle Atlantic and New England Coast will be fresh southerly; South Atlantic Coast, light to fresh southeast.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have fresh southerly, shifting to southwest, winds and fair weather, followed by showers to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Tuesday, with warmer in south portion; showers Tuesday night and Wednesday; fresh south winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Tuesday; showers Tuesday night and Wednesday; fresh south winds.

New England—Fair and warmer Tuesday; Wednesday showers; fresh south winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1907.	1908.		1907.	1908.
3 A. M.	55	69	4 P. M.	57	70

9 A. M.	55	69	9 P. M.	50	59
12 M.	59	77	12 P. M.	50	59

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 68; for the corresponding date last year it was 55; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 62.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 68; at 8 P. M. it was 60. Maximum temperature, 77 degrees at noon; minimum, 59 degrees at 9 P. M. Humidity, 48 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 83 per cent. at 8 P. M.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Estate Sells East Sixty-ninth Street Apartments—Deal for Eighty Lots in Brooklyn—Business Among Brokers and at Auction.

Albert B. Ashforth has sold to a client for the Maloney estate the three five-story apartment houses 163, 165, and 167 East Sixty-ninth Street, on a plot 50 by 100. The property will be improved by the new owner.

New Building for 28th Street.

The Surety Realty Company has made a building loan of $25,000 to the Tarrytown Building Company on 131 and 133 West Twenty-eighth Street. The property was transferred yesterday to the latter corporation by Jefferson M. Levy.

Jacob Brown has sold 34 West Seventeenth Street, a ten-story store and loft building, on lot 28.6 by 92. The buyer gives Brooklyn property in part payment.

The sale of the Perry Belmont house at Fifth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street to Arthur Tooth & Sons is referred to in detail in another column.

Eighty Brooklyn Lots Sold.

Pease & Elliman have sold for Mrs. Anna L. Stevenson to a client eighty lots on Eighty-fourth and Eighty-sixth Streets, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Avenues, Brooklyn. The property is in what was formerly the Township of New Utrecht.

Quick Resale on 107th Street.

Edgar T. Kingsley has sold for the Freehold Construction Company, (Nevins & Perelman,) 120 East 107th Street, a three-story brick dwelling on lot 16.8 by 100.11. The sellers purchased the property last week at auction. Nevins & Perelman have moved to the Metropolitan Building, 1 Madison Avenue.

Buyer for West 87th Street House.

J. R. Thomas has sold to Eugene Vallens 312 West Eighty-seventh Street, a three-story brownstone dwelling, on lot 17 by 100.8.

Dwelling Sold on Marble Hill.

Jacob Rosborg has sold to a client of John H. & Sumner Deane four lots at the northeast corner of 225th Street and Jacobus Place, Marble Hill. Richard Alexander was also interested in the deal as broker.

Trask Estate Sale To-day.

At the Trask estate auction sale, which Joseph P. Day will begin at 11 o'clock this morning in the Vesey Street Salesroom, buyers will only be required to pay 5 per cent. interest on mortgages of 70 per cent. of purchase prices, and if they leave a mortgage of only 40 per cent. the interest rate will be only 4 per cent. These are unusual terms in these days and will add to the interest in the sale, which is the last of the big Spring offerings in the Bronx. The property comprises 600 lots, on and near Westchester Avenue and Clason Point Road. The former has a direct trolley line connecting with the Subway and elevated road, and the latter is a new, broad thoroughfare, on which also a trolley line is planned.

Builder Buys Bronx Corner.

Ferdinand Kramer has sold the northwest corner of 167th Street and Bryant Avenue, 75 by 100, to a builder, who will erect an apartment house on the property.

The Butler & Herrman Company has sold for Leopold Louis the plot, 75 by 100, on the east side of Southern Boulevard, 200 feet south of 172d Street. The buyer, Frank L. Burt, gives in exchange the large residence, on plot 75 by 145, at the corner of the Boulevard and Deems Avenue, Westerleigh, Staten Island.

Flushing Dwellings in Trade.

George Ketchum has sold for John J. Kouhn 215 Franklin Place, Flushing, L. I., a two-and-a-half-story frame dwelling, on plot 100 by 150, to John P. H. De Wint, who gave in part payment 412 Sandford Avenue, corner of Wilson Avenue, Flushing, a two-and-a-half-story dwelling on plot 50 by 100.

Lohbauer Park Brought $390,000.

Over 2,000 persons attended the sale of the remaining lots in the Lohbauer Park property, conducted on the premises by Joseph P. Day on Saturday. The entire property, consisting of 700 lots, the greater part of which was sold in the Vesey Street Salesroom on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, yielded a total of between $385,000 and $390,000. The general average of prices was fair, although the bids for some of the parcels were below the range of other recent quotations in the same neighborhood.

The results of the sale indicate a substantial profit for the Lohbauer Park Improvement Company, which bought the tract of fifty-one acres about a year ago and undertook the development of it. Charles V. Halley, who is President of the Lohbauer Park Improvement Company, has been identified recently with a number of successful development enterprises in the Bronx—notably that involving the Sisters of Charity property on the Eastern Boulevard—and has also engaged in several large building operations.

BELMONT TUNNEL WILL NOW BE OPENED
Governor Hughes signed the bill Friday, authorizing the City to take over the tube.
This will give Subway Rapid Transit from 42nd Street to Queens Borough, and will increase values at once many hundred per cent.
Kissena Park is on the direct line of the Belmont system, half hour from Grand Central Station, by trolley, fare five cents, without change of cars.
The property consists of 4,800 lots, properly restricted and improved with sewers, sidewalks, curbs, gutters. It has the advantage of being surrounded by a city park of 100 acres of the most beautiful wooded hills, lakes and streams, which means a perpetual playground for the residents of Kissena Park North.
It is immediately adjoining the built-up section of Flushing, with all proper home environments, such as schools, churches and stores. To the investor this means a steady and continual rise in values. To the homeseekers it means all the conveniences of the City with all the advantages of the suburbs.
Prices from $550 Upward.
Entire price list will be advanced each month until the entire property is sold. Houses in course of construction or built to order. Easy terms. Send for booklet, maps and views.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court, Part I, held at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 1st day of May, 1908.—Present, Hon. Vernon M. Davis.—In the matter of the application for a voluntary dissolution of MAX DREYFUS COMPANY.—Alias order.

On reading and filing the order heretofore made by this court herein on the 27th day of January, 1908, on the petition of Max Dreyfus, President, and only remaining Director of Max Dreyfus Company, a corporation created under the laws of this State, having its principal office located at No. 125 Front Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, duly verified by the petitioner on the 31st day of December, 1907, and upon the affidavits of Max Dreyfus, verified the 13th day of April, 1908, and on motion of Clarence F. GOLD MEDAL AWARDS FOR SAFETY DEVICES

Scientific American Prize Goes to a Marine Fire Fighting Apparatus.

SHOW ENDS WEDNESDAY

Officers and Exhibitors Guests at Luncheon at the Engineers' Club—Bishop Potter Praises Plan.

Two of the gold medals to be awarded to exhibitors in the American Museum of Safety Devices and Industrial Hygiene, which closes on Wednesday in the Thirty-ninth Street building, were presented yesterday at a luncheon of the officers and exhibitors at the Engineers' Club. About eighty-five persons were present and listened to remarks by Dr. William H. Tolman, Director of the Museum; Charles Kirchoff, editor of The Iron Age, who presided, and T. Commerford Martin, editor of The Electrical World.

The gold medal offered by The Scientific American for the most meritorious invention in transportation was awarded to the Rich Marine Fire Detecting and Extinguishing System Company for their apparatus, which has recently been installed on the Lusitania and Mauretania.

This device consists of one-inch pipes which run to each hold and coal bunker. These pipes are all assembled at the bridge, where they terminate in a case with a glass window. At the top is a small fan, constantly exhausting air from all sections of the vessel. In front is a clock, which rings a bell once every fifteen minutes, calling the attention of one of the officers to the apparatus. If there is no indication of smoke he rings a time clock and gives the smoke detector no attention for another fifteen minutes. If a fire is detected, the case is opened and a hose is attached to the end of the pipe and live steam is run into the compartment in which smoke was detected, putting out the blaze, or at least checking it until it could be fought from below.

Honorable mention was given the exhibits of the Welin Quadrant Davit Company and the Simmen Automatic Railway Signal Company. The jurors for this award were Prof. F. R. Hutton, H. H. Westinghouse, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Samuel Sheldon, George Gilmour, John Hays Hommand, and Stuyvesant Fish.

The Welin device is a lifeboat davit constructed on the quadrant principle, and so arranged that it is operated easily by a small crank. The Simmen system is a new railroad signal device which contains many of the principles of the automatic block and interlocking tower systems, but improves on both.

The gold medal offered by Francis H. Richards, the inventor, for the best device in the field of motor vehicles was awarded to the Non-Explosive Safety Naphtha Container Company, with honorable mention to the Rutherford Wheel Company. The jurors for this department were Dr. S. S. Wheeler, Caspar Whitney, and A. G. Batchelder. The winning device can be applied to a gasoline or naphtha can, making the explosion of its contents impossible.

Among other awards yet to be made is that of a gold medal offered by the Travelers' Insurance Company for the best invention in the Departments of Mines and Mining.

A few of those at the luncheon were Commissioner Darlington of the Health Department, Secretary Larney of the Fire Department, Deputy Fire Chief Whitney, C. A. Munn, proprietor of The Scientific American; Dr. S. U. Treadwell, ex-President of the Long Island Medical Association, and Chief Engineer Gilmour of the Travelers' Insurance Company.

Touching upon the movement to make the museum permanent, a letter from Bishop Potter was read by Dr. Tolman, who has accepted the Chairmanship of an Educational Committee to push the matter. In the letter the Bishop says:

"I have gone over your plan for a campaign in the interests of social and industrial peace through a museum of safety devices and industrial hygiene. The plan is practical, of far-reaching importance, and commends itself to my best judgment. I hope that you can find a hearing in every centre of influence in our country, particularly the organizations of industrialists and those of labor."

President Gould Reports Condition of City and Suburban Homes Co.

The annual meeting of stockholders of the City and Suburban Homes Company was held at the office of the company, 281 Fourth Avenue, yesterday afternoon. E. R. L. Gould, President, presided.

The following Directors, whose terms had expired, were re-elected for three years: Alfred T. White, Charles Stewart Smith, Frederick G. Bourne, Joseph S. Auerbach, and John D. Crimmins.

The twelfth report submitted by President Gould called attention to the fact that the company had not only demonstrated its usefulness in providing model tenement accommodations in Manhattan for about 2,000 families, representing an investment of $4,314,451, and 236 houses at Homewood, Brooklyn, the suburban estate, representing an investment of $733,435, but that it had exercised a helpful influence in fixing higher standards and in promoting improved tenement legislation.

More than 4½ per cent., the usual dividend, was earned upon the outstanding capital stock, but the Board of Directors, owing to prevailing financial conditions, deemed it wiser at the present time to add to surplus account than to pay more than 4 per cent.

The company's balance sheet, which now shows assets of $5,388,131, takes no account of the increase in ground values, so that in reality the financial position of the company is at least a half a million dollars stronger than appears from the figures.

The officers and Directors are: President, E. R. L. Gould; Vice President, Charles Stewart Smith; Chairman of the Board of Directors, R. Fulton Cutting; Treasurer, Isaac N. Seligman, and Secretary, George W. R. Fallon; Joseph S. Auerbach, Frederick G. Bourne, John D. Crimmins, W. Bayard Cutting, Robert W. De Forest, Adrian Iselin, Jr., D. O. Mills, Alfred T. White, and George W. Young.

ERASO POISONING UNSOLVED.

Coroner's Jury Frees Druggist Who Was Held Pending the Inquest.

At the inquest over the body of Eduardo Eraso, the wealthy Venezuelan coffee planter, who died on May 19 of atropine poisoning at the Victoria Hotel, due, it was alleged, to a mistake of a Sixth Avenue druggist in filling a prescription, the Coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict to the effect that Eraso came to his death by means of atropine poison, procured and administered in a manner unknown to the jury. Morris Schwartz, the druggist who has been held pending the inquest, was discharged.

Coroner Acritelli said last night that nobody saw Mr. Eraso take the poison, and nobody knew that he had taken it from the bottle he bought at the drug store. It would require much more evidence to convict any man, he said, and under the circumstances there was nothing more to be done.

HELD TO SUBWAY BID.

Contractor Graham Must Take Up Section of Fourth Ave. (Brooklyn) Road.

In spite of his attempt to be released, James P. Graham, the Brooklyn contractor, has received the award from the Public Service Commission of the contract for the first section of the Fourth Avenue (Brooklyn) Subway. This extends from Nassau to Willoughby Streets, and Graham bid $1,020,476.55 for the railroad work and $101,374.55 for the pipe galleries.

These figures were considerably below the offer made by the next lowest bidders, Rogers & Haggerty, who bid $1,374,000 for the railroad work and $118,000 for the pipe galleries. Mr. Graham appeared last week before the commission and asked to be relieved of the contract. He explained that he had omitted certain items in figuring the cost of the work, and that he could not hope to break even if awarded the contract.

The commission, however, came to the conclusion that there was no legal reason why Mr. Graham's bid should not be accepted. He had been obliged to deposit with them a certified check for $12,500, which can be forfeited to the city if he declines to carry out the work altogether. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the Board of Estimate.

If Mr. Graham undertakes the work the total cost of the Fourth Avenue Subway to the city will be $15,886,340.

NOT TO CHANGE SUBWAY LINE.

It Would Cause Too Sharp Curves to Have 138th St. Station at 3d Av.

The North Side Board of Trade and the South Bronx Property Owners' Association appeared yesterday before the Public Service Commission to ask that the route of the proposed Broadway and Lexington Avenue subway should be changed so as to have the 138th Street station at Third Avenue and the division into the Jerome Avenue and Westchester Avenue lines north of this point.

Commissioner Eustis challenged the views of the delegation on this matter, pointing out that a change of the line would occasion too sharp curves on the Jerome Avenue branch and mean much loss of time.

"But there are curves in both the elevated and the present Subway," urged Mr. Davis.

"Exactly," answered the Commissioner, "and that's what limits the service at this point."

It appeared that if the line was to be altered as suggested it would be necessary to build it under private property.

"Which branch will be built first?" asked Mr. Davis.

"The Manhattan branch," replied the Commissioner.

Subway Expresses on Local Tracks.

At the inquiry held yesterday by Commissioner Eustis of the Public Service Commission into the accident of May 3 at the Flatbush Avenue Station of the Subway, complaints were made that express trains are run on the local tracks and that many passengers are carried past their stations. General Manager Hedley of the Interborough explained that on such occasions trainmen were always supposed to call out the stations which were to be passed without stopping.

ROCHESTER'S BUILDING BOOM.

1,000 Architects Compete for Construction of 2,000 Homes for Workmen.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 25.—As an indication of the opinion that this city holds regarding a speedy return of good times, it is interesting to know that of all the cities in the United States Rochester alone is at the beginning of a building boom.

Under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce, S. R. Clarke, the local Secretary, feeling the instant demand for cottages suitable for the occupancy of skilled workmen drawing good wages, started a competition among architects for the construction of 2,000 six-room cottages of the most modern design.

Plans were submitted from nearly 1,000 architects, not only in this country, but also England, Scotland, France, and Germany.

As soon as the winning plans are decided upon by the committee, the erection of these cottages will be immediately begun, and Rochester will possess as fine accommodation for workmen of the class mentioned above as can be found probably anywhere in the world.

The report of Rochester's success in this enterprise has already spread as far as Honolulu, Hawaii, whence H. P. Wood, Secretary of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, wrote requesting that the blue prints of these designs be turned over to his committee in order that he might begin a similar campaign.

The reason for the construction of these cottages is to be found in the remarkable increase in queries from outside manufacturing concerns for locations in Rochester, besides the need for satisfying immediately the increased demand on the part of local employers.

2,000 CHILDREN GIVE PARK MAY FESTIVAL

Girls' Branch of School Athletic League Enjoys Folk Dances and Games.

50 SCHOOLS REPRESENTED

Russian, Bohemian, Swedish, and Irish Dances Given to Band Music and Applause of a Great Crowd.

Central Park had a new kind of a May party yesterday afternoon. It was made up of 2,000 children from the Girls' Branch of the Public School Athletic League, who held a festival of folk dances and games on the green. The Park has seen many May parties, but one in which a host of children were all doing the same thing at the same time to music was entirely novel. It was so pretty that even Mrs. Russell Sage, who seldom goes anywhere, rode up in her automobile to watch it.

The girls belonging to the league had been invited from fifty schools in the different parts of the city, forty children from each. They joined their teachers at their respective school buildings, and made their way to the Park. There in the centre of the green was the Seventh Regiment Band, and the children, by schools, dotted the thick green grass-covered lawn. Most of the children were in white frocks, a few wore red dresses or blues or pinks, and those from a couple of schools were in uniform. School 25 of the Bronx was the only one to wear the gymnasium bloomers of dark blue, with white shirtwaists, and another set of girls wore blue skirts with white blouses and big red hair ribbon bows.

There were even a few little boys who had managed to get into the festival with the girls of School 144, Brooklyn, but they weren't allowed to dance the famous ox dance, a Swedish dance which the children love, because the little partners give each other something in the nature of a hug in that. But one little girl named Florence said she did not mind, and little Michael Devine danced the ox dance with her, though they left the hug out.

There were eleven dances, one Bohemian—and many of the children who danced in that were Bohemians—a Russian dance, and there were enough Russian children to make it almost a real Russian dance; the Swedish dances, which are favorites; a Hungarian dance, the highland fling, and the Irish washerwoman dance, which was perhaps the jolliest music of all.

As the familiar music was played the children in the circles in which the schools had formed danced, while crowds of people gathered around to watch and applaud. The final number, one of the Swedish dances, the "Carousal," the children danced all together in three enormous rings, so large it gave the bicycle policeman who tried to press the crowd back to make room for them an attack of bad temper. It took one of the mounted police to make the final attack, and the children and older people looking on were afraid of the horse and dropped back hurriedly.

The prettiest part of the whole festival came at the end of this dance, when the band played "Dixie" and the children ran from all sides to the band in the centre, looking in their white gowns, with scattering dots of color, like the wind-blown flower petals of some enormous tree, and stood crowding together while the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," in which they all joined.

Mrs. Sage was accompanied in her automobile by Lorillard Spencer, Jr. Mrs. Robert Belknap and Miss Belknap were present. The Misses Tuckerman, Mrs. Arthur Turnbull, Miss Turnbull, Mrs. Egerton L. Winthrop, and Miss Leverich, who is at the head of the Girls' Branch of the Athletic League, were in charge.

New England Factories on Full Time.

WESTBORO, Mass., May 25.—The H. E. Brigham shoe factory, one of the leading industries of this town, went on full time to-day. The several hundred employes have been out of work for almost four months. The Westboro underwear factory also started on a schedule of full time to-day.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 25.—The plant of the American Yarn Company here, which has been on a short time schedule for the last three months, went back to full time to-day. It employs 250 hands.

URGES ELECTION REFORM.

Independence League Sends Long Communication to the Governor.

The Executive Committee of the Independence League sent a communication to Gov. Hughes and to the Legislature yesterday, urging the need for reform in the ballot laws of the State. The communication asks that the present special session of the Legislature do not adjourn until election laws are placed on the statue books which shall make it impossible in the future to repeat the frauds of the past.

The communication recites the prosecution of election criminals, recalls the passage of the recount bill, and rehearses the investigation resulting from the charge that the office of Superintendent of Elections was "notoriously inefficient."

In concluding, the letter calls attention to confessions by election "repeaters," and the recent presentment of the Grand Jury concerning election frauds, ending with the assertion that "the continuance of the present system of conducting elections will inevitably result in the dissolution of our form of Government, and in the placing of governmental functions in the hands of an oligarchy of election thieves, criminals, and their employes."

HE DODGED JUDGE FINN.

Lieutenant Arraigned Prisoners in Another Court and Had Them Fined.

In explaining his reason for arraigning yesterday morning two men charged with disorderly conduct in the Essex Market Court instead of the Jefferson Market Court, Lieut. Sheehan of the Detective Bureau said:

"These two men are Judge Finn's constituents, and I don't know what I would get there."

Sheehan had arrested Arthur Murphy, 28, who said he lived at 235 West Twenty-eighth Street, and Henry McMahon, 24, of 151 Watts Street, on Sunday night, while, as the detective alleged, they were trying to induce immigrants to change a bogus ten-dollar bill.

When Magistrate House had heard Lieut. Sheehan's explanation he said: "I will hear your evidence."

The Magistrate then fined the prisoners $10 each, and said he was sorry that the evidence did not warrant a more serious charge.

LIVED UP TO HIS NAME.

Eleven-Year-Old Sam Houston Routs a Peddler with a Revolver.

Eleven-year-old Samuel Houston of Newark, N. J., was turned over to the Truancy Department of that city yesterday because he emulated his famous namesake in carrying war into the enemy's country. Houston climbed with great difficulty into the rear of the wagon of George Anthony, a peddler. Anthony told the youth to climb down again, which Houston did.

The boy then hurried to his home, obtained a revolver, and hurried after the peddler. He caught up with him and drove him from the wagon, and was in hot pursuit of Anthony when the police ended the rout and lodged young Houston and his revolver in the police station.

Disorder in Ice Cream Makers' Strike.

The strike of the Ice Cream Sandwich Makers' Union against the Consolidated Wafer Company for higher wages and recognition of the union reached the riotous stage yesterday. Strikers and strike sympathizers attacked the strikebreakers at various places, and some of the latter were frightened into quitting work. A crowd of strikers made an attack on a number of the strikebreakers at Broome and Eldridge Streets, and eventually the strikebreakers fled. An unsuccessful attempt was made by the State Board of Arbitration to arbitrate the strike, the company declining to accept anything but an unconditional surrender.

ISLAND BRIDGE SCARE SCOUTED BY EXPERTS

While Plan Is Similar to Wrecked Quebec Structure, More and Stronger Steel Used Here.

LITTLE DANGER OF BUCKLING

Chief Engineer Ingersoll Denies Design Was Changed After Bridge Commissioner Lindenthal Quit Office.

Mayor McClellan repeated yesterday that he had been assured by Bridge Commissioner Stevenson that there is not the least reason for any alarm about the safety of the Blackwell's Island Bridge. This will not, however, prevent the examination by Prof. William H. Burr of Columbia University from going on.

Chief Engineer Ingersoll of the Bridge Department, Assistant Engineer Seaman, now Chief Engineer of the Public Service Commission, and Assistant Engineer Wilkins, who examined the Quebec Bridge after its collapse and compared the result of that investigation with the construction of Blackwell's Island Bridge, have stated to Commissioner Stevenson that the bridge here, while similar in certain parts of its construction to the Quebec structure, is stronger built in every respect.

Discussing the Scientific American criticism of the Blackwell's Island Bridge, Chief Engineer Ingersoll said yesterday:

"The Scientific American has got its facts wrong. It states that a change of plan was made in the Blackwell's Island Bridge after Commissioner Lindenthal left office. You can see for yourself from these plans that it was Mr. Lindenthal who altered the original plans himself and signed those which we have carried out.

"Don't think, however, that I think he was wrong in making the changes. They are a real improvement of design. I am only pointing out that whatever was done was done by Mr. Lindenthal himself."

The alteration to which Mr. Ingersoll referred is in the chord of the bridge, which corresponds to the chord of the Quebec Bridge, which collapsed. Originally it was to have been constructed of three steel beams joined together by a covering, which, however, would not, as The Scientific American has said, have been over their whole length.

For these three beams were substituted two pairs of beams, each pair coupled together by lattice work, plates being used to bind the beams together. Now the Quebec Bridge chord was also composed of two pairs of beams connected with lattice work.

But it was pointed out yesterday by Chief Engineer Ingersoll that whereas the Quebec lattice work extended from the outer edge of one pair of beams to the outer edge of the other and was astride all four beams, consequently placing the points of junction between the lattice work and the beams far apart, the Blackwell's Island Bridge lattice work is only between the beams which form each pair. There is no attempt to bind all four beams together by latticing, the construction between the two pairs being maintained by plates bolted in at intervals. There are in consequence four joints of junction between the lattice work and the beams they bind together to every two in the Quebec design.

The value of the latticing is to prevent the chord from buckling, as any break is sure to occur between the points of junction of the lattice and the beams. The space between these points of junction on the Quebec Bridge were just three times as long as the corresponding spaces on the Blackwell's Island Bridge. The latticing used upon it is moreover stronger than that employed at Quebec, and there was two and a half times as much latticing used here as in the Canadian bridge.

Mayor Opens Long Island City Bridge.

Mayor McClellan yesterday officially opened the retractile bridge which spans Dutch Kills Creek at Borden Avenue, Long Island City, and then took a look at the terminal of the Belmont Tunnel at Fourth Street and Van Alst Avenue. The new bridge cost $156,000, is 170 feet long, and weighs 450 tons. It is operated by a twenty-five horse power electric motor, and can be opened or closed in forty-five seconds.
